AMERICAN SHIP SUNK BY GERMAN SUBMARINE.

Rumor is Current that no Warning was Given—Crew is Rescued.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The American steamship Housatonic has been sunk near the Scilly Islands by a torpedo fired by a German submarine.

The rumor is current that the Housatonic was sunk without warning.

All her officers and crew were saved by a British armored cruiser, whose identity has not yet been revealed.

News of the Housatonic's sinking caused a sensation here, particularly among the members of the American colony, in view of the fact that it is believed the incident may be revealed as the overt act that will serve to throw the United States into war against Germany.

By a queer twist of fate the first steamship of American registry to go to the bottom as the direct result of the new Prussian policy of ruthless submarine warfare was until recently a unit of the German merchant marine fleet. The Housatonic left Galveston, Tex., on January 6, touched at Newport News, Va., and left there for London on January 16. She received American registry in April, 1915. Prior to that time she had been the Georgia, of the Hamburg-American line fleet. Until she came under American registry the Housatonic had been at New Orleans, La., from the start of the European war.

Announcement was made on March 29, 1915, that the Housatonic, then the Georgia, had been purchased by the Housatonic Steamship Company, of which Edward F. Geer of New York was the president. The company, according to the announcement, paid $85,000 for the vessel.

The Housatonic was 3143 tons gross and was built at Glasgow in 1890. She was 238 feet in length, 20 feet deep and 40 feet wide.

[DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 3.—On the Housatonic, according to Edward F. Geer, agent of the Housatonic Steamship Company, owners of the vessel, were thirty-seven officers and men, of whom twenty were known to be American citizens. The citizens are:

Capt. Thomas A. Ensor, whose wife is at present living at Bermuda; Ralph Jones, first officer, who lives on Staten Island; Paul Boness, second officer;

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

The news of the war, of whatever origin, appears to have given way for the time being to the chronicle of events in Washington and comments thereon. There have been eleven other instances in American history of ambassadors recalled, but not all of them by any means were followed by war. The situation is everywhere regarded as grave and Mr. Wilson is represented as threatening war to the Kaiser in the event Americans lose their lives as the result of the new submarine blockade.

The Pershing expedition is expected to cross the border into the United States tomorrow. Up to date the expedition has neither captured nor punished Villa, who with his various bands of outlaws, is reported to be in the wake of the expedition, occupying territory formerly held by the Americans. A strong border patrol is to be maintained along the Mexican line.

BULLETINS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—It was reported tonight in diplomatic quarters, but unconfirmed in any American official source, that President Wilson in advising neutrals of his action in severing diplomatic relations with Germany has invited other neutrals to follow his course.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The entire National Guard of New York State and the Naval Militia were ordered out tonight by Gov. Whitman after a conference with Maj.-Gen. John F. O'Ryan.

Gen. O'Ryan was directed to have every arsenal, armory and watershed adequately guarded by the militiamen and Commodore Forshew of the Naval Militia was ordered to protect all bridges.

The Governor's order was issued at the direct request of Mayor John P. Mitchel of this city, soon after Mr. Whitman arrived here tonight from Albany. Gov. Whitman said he would remain in New York tomorrow to keep in close touch with the situation.

"Of course, all our people will loyally support the President," he declared.

A strict military censorship was established at National Guard headquarters immediately after the Governor's order was issued. "I think it is the patriotic duty of newspapers not to seek or publish any information concerning the use of troops at this time," said Gen. O'Ryan.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Offers to place government contracts ahead of all others were received by the Navy Department today from virtually every shipbuilding company and every concern manufacturing supplies and material used by the military. Vice-President Grace of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation has telegraphed that he would do everything in his power to meet whatever orders might be given his company.

Both the War and Navy departments were deluged with offers of service from prominent citizens throughout the country. To all officials replied that the offers would be filed and accepted in case of need.

Big Sacrifice.

KAISER'S ACT OVERTURNS HUMANITY'S STRUCTURE.

American Work in Caring for German Interests in Seven Countries and Large Sections of Egypt and Morocco Ceases — Relief Efforts for Belgium to be Continued as Long as it is Possible to Remain There.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—An entire diplomatic structure to protect probably 2,000,000 prisoners in the midst of their enemies, to care for a whole conquered nation in Belgium, to represent the interests of the four sovereign states in Germany and German interests in nine enemy countries, crumbled today before German necessity.

One of the most complex, ultra-legal, humanitarian machines ever evolved, the slow, patient work built up during two and a half years of effort, thus is sacrificed at the Berlin government's desperate challenge to the whole neutral world in a last attempt to reach England.

American organization, genius and American means of restraint in the war zones will cease from today to operate. All American representatives will be withdrawn from Germany, and the duties they have efficiently performed, except looking after Belgium, will fall on untrained forces. The physical parts of the organization, as far as possible, will stand as they are, embassies, legations and office building continuing under their new directing forces, but the hand and heart that built their invaluable files and records will retire.

STAY IN BELGIUM.

From Belgium the United States will not withdraw till the military conquerors make it impossible for her to continue. The 100 Americans who have from the war's beginning proved the directing genius for the greatest and the longest sustained relief work in history, will remain at their posts until the Germans force them across the frontier. Brand Whitlock, American Minister to Belgium, will remain in Brussels until forced to the present seat of Belgian government in Havre, France.

Minister Havenith called at the department this afternoon in the greatest anxiety at this latest blow to Belgium. His feelings were torn between the stunning possibility of the withdrawal of American relief and joy at the thought of another neutral standing behind his nation's resurrection.

Belgian relief ships will continue to run for the present, it is understood here, and every attempt made to secure their immunity from German attack. If food from this country is cut off, Belgium will be reduced to an almost helpless state, as it will be impossible to spare either food or tonnage from the other belligerent or neutral nations. If the United States is hampered in this work it will be regarded by Entente sympathiers as the final act to make Germany an outlaw nation.

PRISONERS SUFFER.

As to prisoners, the United States represents the interests of at least 1,000,000 and probably 2,000,000 men, in the countries from which Germany has forced the withdrawal of American diplomats. American officials have been untiring in their efforts under conditions almost intolerably difficult.

No exact figures are obtainable here as to the number of prisoners represented, as all that work has been carried out by American officials who have reported directly to the belligerent countries. In Russia, alone, there are known to be over 400,000 with another 100,000 in England, and very large numbers in France and Germany.

Germany's interests in seven countries and the large sections of Egypt and Morocco have been turned away from American sympathy and aid to whatever neutral Germany can find to accept the work. The State Department today instructed its officials representing German interests in England, France, Russia and Japan, Rumania, Serbia, Greece, Egypt, and Morocco, to suspend all activities along that line and await information to be conveyed through some neutral government to whom Germany wishes those interests surrendered.

IN NEW HANDS.

German interests undoubtedly will suffer severely as a result of this indirect effect of her action in forcing the United States to the step she has taken. It will take some time for inexperienced hands to pick up all the threads and master the details. Moreover, no nation still neutral has either the facilities or the position to secure the results the United States has been able to secure for Germany.

All American consuls were instructed to leave Germany at the same time Ambassador Gerard's recall was ordered. Spain was today asked to take over all American interests, diplomatic and consular.

Parting of the Ways.

PASSPORTS TO VON BERNSTORFF; CONSULS IN GERMANY RECALLED.

Diplomatic Relations to be Broken with Austria Also the Moment She Notifies World of Adhesion to Lately-declared Submarine Blockade — Demand for Immediate Release of American Prisoners.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—President Wilson has broken off diplomatic relations with Germany and warned the Kaiser that ruthless sacrifice of American lives and rights means war.

Similar action is waiting for Austria when she notifies this government that she joins in the campaign of unrestricted submarine warfare.

The President made formal announcement of his action to the country and to the world today at a joint session of Congress.

Passports have been handed to Count von Bernstorff; Ambassador Gerard with all his staff and all American consuls have been ordered out of Germany. All German consuls in the United States are expected to withdraw that the severance of relations may be complete.

American diplomatic interests in Berlin have been turned over to Spain; German diplomatic interests in the United States have been taken over by Switzerland. Foreign diplomatic interests which the United States had in charge in Germany have been turned over to various neutrals.

CULMINATION.

Two years of diplomatic negotiation, marked with frequent crises and attended with the loss of more than 200 American lives on the high seas, have culminated with an act which in all the history of all the world has always led to war. Every agency of the American government has been set in motion to protect the country against acts of German sympathizers. These moves are of necessity being kept secret.

With the notice of severance of diplomatic relations the United States sent to Berlin a demand for the immediate release of sixty-four Americans taken from ships captured by German raiders in the South Atlantic.

At the request of the President, Congress immediately after hearing his address began work on new laws framed by the Department of Justice to check conspiracies and plots against the United States which cannot now be reached under existing statutes.

The question of convoying American merchant ships through the submarine blockade has been taken up and is being considered as one of the next moves by this government.

The news of the torpedoing of the American steamer Housatonic, coming almost before President Wilson's words in Congress had died away, created a tremendous sensation, but it does not necessarily constitute such an invasion of American rights as the President said he would meet by asking Congress for additional authority to act.

Only the establishment of the exact facts can determine whether the sinking of the ship was a new attack on American

EXTRAORDINARY PRECAUTIONS TO SAFEGUARD OUR DEFENSES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Precautions to safeguard naval stations, army posts and arsenals and other service property constituted the military measures taken by the government tonight following the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany.

President Wilson conferred briefly after his address to Congress with Secretary Baker and Secretary Daniels. The conference, it was stated, had to do entirely with precautionary steps, although the secretaries also probably gave some general information as to the nation's preparedness for war.

It was made clear that the administration had no desire to take warlike measures unless forced to do so by some act of Germany.

SPECIFIC ORDERS.

The following specific orders went out during the day:

The White House and White House grounds were closed to visitors for the first time in many years.

All navy yards and stations were closed to the public, only employees and officers and enlisted men of the navy to be admitted until further notice.

Officers commanding army posts, arsenals, magazines, and coast batteries were directed to exercise every precaution.

The State, War and Navy Building was closed to visitors and cards of identification were issued to employees and press representatives entitled to admission.

Publication of the daily ship movement list, giving the departures and arrivals of naval vessels, was suspended.

AS TO THE FLEET.

Secretary Daniels said there was no change in the orders of the Atlantic fleet. "The fleet will continue maneuvers in the Guantanamo region," he said.

Measures of national preparedness taken within the last two years make it unnecessary for the War and Navy departments to do much work that otherwise would have to be begun. For the navy a survey of all merchant craft under the American flag and of all small pleasure craft and pleasure boats has been completed. Guns for the arming of merchant ships have been assembled at the various navy yards with plans for the structural work necessary for putting them aboard already worked out. The availability of each vessel so examined for some particular part in a naval mobilization has been determined.

For the army and navy both, an inventory of the manufacturing resources and plants of the country has been carried well forward, each plant examined having been listed for its best use in producing war munition.

A text-book on munition manufacture has been completed and is about ready for issue. From it private manufacturers can learn quickly the steps necessary for the conversion of their plants for war uses. The committee of national defense created last year already has taken over the co-ordination of factories for war purposes and has worked out in part its general plans.

Without additional authority from Congress President Wilson can direct that the regular army be increased to its full war strength of 286,000 men and the navy to 87,000.

Turning Point.

AMERICA WINS BACK PRESTIGE; LONDON HAILS NEWS WITH JOY.

BY ARTHUR S. DRAPER.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—America has already won a big victory. She has regained her place in the world, won back all her lost prestige. Britain and her allies welcome her action as an enormous moral indorsement and a tremendous material assistance.

I can state that Britain considers the President's action as marking the decisive point in the war, as bringing the United States up into a dominating place not only in the war but in the peace that is to follow. The effect of America's action will be felt immediately and it will grow as time goes on. One government official told me tonight he regarded it as the most heartening news in months.

Americans in London are holding a war dance tonight. They are proud and happy for the first time since the sinking of the Lusitania. They are proud they are Americans; proud their President had the courage to take the decisive action. Americans here know something of the hardships and distress of the war, but they feel the President has taken the only course left open to him.

Almost like a thunderbolt came the news of the American decision in the quiet of the Saturday half-holiday. Most of the professional and business men of the city had departed for their country or city homes, but the news spread quickly and everywhere was hailed with joy, which was the more accentuated by the fact that the public had been generally led to believe that the President had determined to await an overt act by Germany before taking action. Those newspapers which reached the streets early with the announcement were quickly seized, the most eager buyers being found among the Canadian and Australian soldiers on leave in the city.

Second only to the action of America itself is the effect it is bound to have on the European neutrals. They are awaiting America's lead and some, if not all, are sure to follow her action. England awaits their action with the keenest expectation.

Then comes the moral effect on the peoples of the Entente and the Central Powers. Upon those of the Allies it is bound to have a heartening and strengthening effect. Conversely, upon the peoples of the Central Powers, America's action must have a demoralizing and depressing effect to know that the rest of the world is against them. This is what the British statesmen mean when they rejoice over the moral support.

The effect on the theater crowds tonight was most apparent. These people, mostly women with khaki-clad escorts, seemed unusually buoyant and cheerful. There were no longer any references to the unfortunate "too proud to fight" utterance, but rather tremendous feeling of gratitude and respect for the President's action.

EFFECT ON BELGIUM.

The drawbacks of the American action are almost as many as the advantages and were quick to be recognized by British officials. The severance of relations between Germany and the United States deprives Entente prisoners in Germany and Austria of American assistance, for one thing, and there is grave doubt of the ability of any other neutral accomplishing the same results. Then there is the danger that now confronts Belgian relief work. The British fear that hundreds of thousands of Belgians will starve once the American Relief Commission is withdrawn.

The part that the United States will play in the war, however, is Protection.

STRICT MEASURES TAKEN TO GUARD THE ISTHMUS.

Kronprinzessin Cecilie, Interned for Two Years, Found Crippled..

[BY CABLE AND A.P.]

PANAMA, Feb. 3.—Four Hamburg-American line steamships which have been in Cristobal Harbor were seized this afternoon by the Canal Zone authorities. Night harbor traffic at Cristobal has been stopped and strict protective measures have been taken throughout the Canal Zone.

The steamers seized are the Savoia of 2614 gross tons, the Grunewald of 4707 gross tons, the Sachserwald of 3559 gross tons and the Prinz Sigismund of 4600 gross tons. The vessels have been in the harbor since the beginning of the war.

DAMAGE TO CECILIE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—The North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie, which was seized by United States Marshal Mitchell on a civil process tonight, was found to be crippled beyond possibility of early usefulness, according to an official who assisted in the seizure.

The liner's boilers were said to have been cleared of all water, the fires were burning at top capacity and countless valves in the engine-room had been mutilated, transferred or removed entirely, this official stated.

The Cecilie has been nominally in custody since the litigation instituted against the owners by the National City Bank of New York.

Capt. Charles A. Polack and the skeleton crew of 112 men who have made the ship their home for more than two years, were put ashore and housed for the time being at the immigration bureau. They made no resistance. The German engineers, firemen and others were replaced by American citizens and fifty men of the city police force were put on board to protect the vessel from any willful damage.

This action followed notice to the Marshal by attorneys for the National City Bank and the Guarantee Trust Company of New York, that they would hold him liable for any damage to the ship to the extent of their claims, which amount to $2,500,000.

TURNED BACK EN ROUTE.

"The gold ship," as the craft has come to be known, was in mid-ocean en route from New York to Liverpool when war was declared. Capt. Polack turned back and found refuge in Bar Harbor, Me. She had on board $4,000,000 in gold consigned by the complaining banks to bankers of London and Paris. Her failure to deliver the gold caused the consignors to libel the vessel and institute proceedings to recover damages.

With the developments of the new situation with Germany, the banks demanded a bond of $1,800,000 to secure them against any damage that might be done to the ship, and threatened action against the Marshal personally if they were not protected.

U. S. Dist.-Atty. Anderson said he wished to make it plain that the seizure was purely a civil proceeding.

rights or whether the case comes within the range of other American ships carrying contraband, destroyed in accordance with international law and presenting a case to be settled under its precepts.

Admittedly, if the Housatonic was sunk without warning or with loss of American life, it will amount to little less than an act of war and be followed by all the consequences which the President so clearly pointed out in his address.

NEUTRALS NOTIFIED.

Neutral governments have been notified of the action of the United States and have been openly invited to follow its action if the new submarine campaign violates their rights.

The breaking off of relations came with a crash, despite the fact that it had been discounted and practically determined upon last night. The President returned from his night conference with the Senators determined that a break in relations was the only act "consistent with the dignity and honor of the United States." He worked most of the night preparing his address to Congress.

At 10:30 o'clock this morning it became known that Ambassador Gerard had been ordered home and that passports had been sent to Count von Bernstorff. Although there was no official confirmation of the President's decision until he formally announced it himself to Congress, the knowledge spread rapidly.

BERNSTORFF NOTIFIED.

Count von Bernstorff heard it unofficially while talking with an Associated Press correspondent. While apparently deeply moved, he was not surprised. His first act was to ask Dr. Paul Ritter, the Swiss Minister, to come to the German Embassy, and prepare to take over its affairs. Then he informed his wife, an American-born woman, of the development, and likewise told the Embassy staff. His passports were not actually delivered until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. While the President was addressing Congress, one of Secretary Lansing's confidential assistants called at the Embassy and delivered the passports and a note in reply to the German declaration.

President Wilson kept himself in seclusion during the morning, except for a brief conference with Secretary Lansing, until he left the White House for the Capitol shortly before 2 o'clock. In preparation for the history-making event, the Senate and House had assembled in the hall of the latter body. Justices of the Supreme Court had seats on the floor, the Cabinet sat in a reserved space. Ambassador Jusserand of France occupied his reserved seat in the diplomatic gallery, which was packed, principally with neutrals, who came to hear words of far-reaching importance affecting their own governments.

AT THE DAIS.

As usual a committee of Congressmen met the President and escorted him to the speakers' dais. The whole body rose and cheered as the President, acknowledging their greeting without his usual smile, but grim-faced and solemn, took his place at the clerk's desk and began reading the document which is being heard "round the world."

Not a sound came from floor or gallery but the clear, calm tones of the President reading slowly and distinctly. The assemblage of Senators, Representatives and notables about him listened with closest attention to words which may record one of the somber moments of American history, if not indeed of the world.

Briefly he reviewed how last April the United States warned Germany after the destruction of the Sussex that unless the imperial government declared and effected an abandonment of that sort of submarine warfare, the United States would have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations altogether. Then he quoted from the German reply, which gave assurances that no ships would be sunk without warning and provision for safety of passengers and crew. He recounted the provisions the German government attached, which in effect reserved to itself the right to recant its promises if the United States did not secure relaxation of the British restraints on commerce, and then quoted from the reply of the United States which refused to consider a conditional pledge and gave Germany final warning that it could not entertain or discuss any such suggestion. The President did not refer to the long list of submarine operations which have been conducted in violation of the Sussex pledges, but proceeded at once to the new war zone order which became effective February 1.

When he told how the German proclamation left nothing for the honor and dignity of the United States but a break in relations and that he had ordered passports sent to Von Bernstorff and a recall to Mr. Gerard, the assemblage broke into a cheer in which Republicans and Democrats alike joined. More applause greeted his declaration that only an overt act could convince him that Germany intended to violate American lives and rights, and there was prolonged applause and cheering when he concluded by announcing that should American ships and lives be sacrificed, "in needless contravention of the just and reasonable understanding of international law and the obvious dictates of humanity," he would again appear before Congress to ask authority to "use any means that may be necessary for the protection of our seamen and our people."

BACK TO WHITE HOUSE.

As he concluded there were cheers of approval from both sides of the chamber and the President returned to the White House to discuss measures of precaution with Secretary Daniels of the Navy and Secretary Baker of the War Department.

There were expressions of support and approval of the President's course. As the joint session dissolved, both houses went back to their work.

Soon after Count von Bernstorff's passports arrived United States secret service men threw a guard about the Ambassador and his suite to make certain that the hospitality of the United States is not violated while he remains on American soil. The status of Count Tarnowski, the Austrian Ambassador, was undecided, although he called at the State Department to arrange for presenting his credentials to President Wilson.

For months, ever since relations with Germany became acute, there have been ominous signs of threatened activities of German sympathizers and disloyal Americans if diplomatic relations were broken off. The administration has not been unmindful of these. Various branches of the government have informed themselves on the subject far more completely than might be thought. Officials expressed themselves as satisfied that they will be able to cope with the situation. In the army and navy and in the citizenship generally, officials realize that the composite character of American nationality makes it difficult not to find some persons who will express sympathy with the land of their birth.

The attempt to sink the torpedo boat Jacob Jones at Philadelphia today is recognized as an instance of some of the things which may be expected, but on the whole all the agencies of the government believe they have made preparations to meet such exigencies or are prepared to meet them as they arise.

BERLIN POTATO SUPPLY CUT OFF.

AMSTERDAM (Holland) Feb. 3 (via London.)—The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger says that owing to the prevalence of low temperatures, endangering potatoes in transit, the supply for Berlin has been cut off. The municipality, therefore, the newspaper states, will be unable to distribute any potatoes next week, and as a substitute, bread flour will be given out.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE NOTIFYING WORLD OF BREAK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The full text of President Wilson's address to Congress, notifying it of the break with Germany, is as follows:

Gentlemen of the Congress:

The imperial German government on the 31st of January announced to this government and to the governments of the other neutral nations that on and after the first day of February, the present month, it would adopt a policy with regard to the use of submarines against all shipping seeking to pass through certain designated areas of the high seas, to which it is clearly my duty to call your attention.

Let me remind the Congress on the eight of April last, in view of the sinking on the 24th of March of the cross-channel passenger steamer Sussex by a German submarine, without summons or warning, and the consequent loss of the lives of several citizens of the United States who were passengers aboard her, this government addressed a note to the imperial German government in which it made the following declaration:

THE NOTE.

"If it is still the purpose of the imperial government to prosecute the relentless and indiscriminate warfare against vessels of commerce by the use of submarines without regard to what the government of the United States must consider the sacred and indisputable rules of international law and the universally-recognized dictates of humanity, the government of the United States is at last forced to the conclusion that there is but one course it can pursue. Unless the imperial government should now immediately declare and effect an abandonment of its present methods of submarine warfare against passenger and freight-carrying vessels, the government of the United States can have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations with the German empire altogether."

In reply to the declaration the imperial government gave this government the following assurances:

ASSURANCES.

"The German government is prepared to do its utmost to confine the operations of war for the rest of its duration to the fighting forces of the belligerents, thereby also insuring the freedom of the seas, a principle upon which the German government believes now, as before, to be in agreement with the government of the United States.

"The German government, guided by this idea, notifies the government of the United States that the German naval forces have received the following orders: In accordance with the general principles of visit and search and destruction of merchant vessels recognized by international law, such vessels, both within and without the area declared a naval war zone, shall not be sunk without warning and without saving human lives, unless these ships attempt to escape or offer resistance.

"But," it added, "neutrals cannot expect that Germany, forced to fight for her existence, shall, for the sake of neutral interests, restrict the use of an effective weapon if her enemy is permitted to continue to apply at will methods of warfare violating the rules of international law. Such a demand would be incompatible with the character of neutrality and the German government is convinced that the government of the United States does not think of making such a demand, knowing that the government of the United States has repeatedly declared that it is determined to restore the principle of the freedom of the seas, from whatever quarter it has been violated."

THE TERMS.

To this the government of the United States replied on the 8th of May, accepting, of course, the assurances given, but adding:

"The government of the United States feels it necessary to state that it takes it for granted that the imperial German government does not intend to imply that the maintenance of its newly-announced policy is in any way contingent upon the course or result of diplomatic negotiations between the government of the United States and any other belligerent government, notwithstanding the fact that certain passages in the imperial government's note of the 4th inst. might appear to be susceptible of that construction. In order, however, to avoid any misunderstanding the government of the United States notifies the imperial government that it cannot for a moment entertain, much less discuss, a suggestion that respect by German naval authorities for the rights of citizens of the United States upon the high seas should in any way or in the slightest degree be made contingent upon the conduct of another government, affecting the rights of neutrals and noncombatants. Responsibility in such matters is single, not joint, absolute, not relative."

To this note of the 8th of May, the imperial German government made no reply.

COMPLETE SURPRISE.

On the 31st of January, the Wednesday of the present week, the German Ambassador handed to the Secretary of State, along with a formal note, a memorandum which contained the following statement:

"The imperial government, therefore, does not doubt that the government of the United States will understand the situation thus forced upon Germany by the Entente Allies' brutal methods of war and by their determination to destroy the Central Powers, and that the government of the United States will further realize that the now openly disclosed intention of the Entente Allies gives back to Germany the freedom of action which she reserved in her note addressed to the government of the United States on May 4, 1916.

"Under these circumstances Germany will meet the illegal measures of her enemies by forcibly preventing after February 1, 1917, in a zone around Great Britain, France, Italy and in the Eastern Mediterranean, all navigation, that of neutrals included, from and to England and from and to France, etc., etc. All ships met within the zone will be sunk."

I think that you will agree with me that, in view of this declaration, which suddenly and without prior intimation of any kind, deliberately withdraws the solemn assurance given in the imperial government's note of the 4th of May, 1916, this government has no alternative consistent with the dignity and honor of the United States but to take the course which, in its note of the 18th of April, 1916, it announced that it would take in the event that the German government did not declare and effect an abandonment of the methods of submarine warfare which it was then employing and to which it now purposes again to resort.

RELATIONS SEVERED.

I have, therefore, directed the Secretary of State to announce to His Excellency, the German Ambassador, that all diplomatic relations between the United States and the German Empire are severed and that the American Ambassador at Berlin will immediately be withdrawn; and in accordance with this decision, to hand to His Excellency his passports.

Notwithstanding this unexpected action of the German government, this sudden and deeply deplorable renunciation of its assurances, given this government at one of the most critical moments of tension in the relations of the two governments, I refuse to believe that it is the intention of the German authorities to do, in act, what they have warned us they will feel at liberty to do. I cannot bring myself to believe that they will indeed pay no regard to the ancient friendship between their people and our own or to the solemn obligations which have been exchanged between them and destroy American ships and take the lives of American citizens in the wilful prosecution of the ruthless naval programme they have announced their intention to adopt. Only actual overt acts on their part can make me believe it even now.

FIRM STAND.

If this confidence on my part in the sobriety and prudent foresight of their purpose should unhappily prove unfounded; if American ships and American lives should, in fact, be sacrificed by their naval commanders in heedless contravention of the just and reasonable understandings of international law and the obvious dictates of humanity, I shall take the liberty of coming again before the Congress to ask that authority be given me to use any means that may be necessary for the protection of our seamen and our people in the prosecution of their peaceful and legitimate errands on the high seas. I can do nothing less. I take it for granted that all neutral governments will take the same course.

We do not desire any hostile conflict with the imperial German government. We are the sincere friends of the German people and earnestly desire to remain at peace with the government which speaks for them. We shall not believe that they are hostile to us unless and until we are obliged to believe it; and we purpose nothing more than the reasonable defense of the undoubted rights of our people. We wish to serve no selfish ends. We seek merely to stand true alike in thought and in action to the immemorial principles of our people which I have sought to express in my address to the Senate only two weeks ago—seek merely to vindicate our right to liberty and justice and an unmolested life. These are the bases of peace, not war. God grant that we may not be challenged to defend them by acts of wilful injustice on the part of the government of Germany.

BUENOS AIRES FOR WILSON.

Decision is Approved by All Circles in Capital of Argentina.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 3.—President Wilson's decision to sever diplomatic relations with Germany is approved by all circles in Buenos Aires. La Epoca, the organ of the President, says: "The point in question is that it is no longer a war for political ends or dynastic interests. This is a war for the vindication of the principles inherent in human conscience. After twenty centuries there is an attempt to torpedo the rights of humanity. The United States stands against a power which aspired to destroy morals. The opinion of the world heartily approves the step taken by President Wilson." Most of the newspapers eulogize President Wilson's decision.

HOW THE PRESIDENT DECIDED HIS ACTION

NEVER APPEARED MORE COOL THAN DURING ADDRESS.

After Conference with Secretary Lansing He Discusses Situation with Cabinet, then with Senators and Finally Concludes to Make Momentous Move.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The story o fhow President Wilson decided to break diplomatic relations with Germany became known tonight.

The first news of the German note giving notice of the abandonment of restrictions on submarines, conveyed to the President by Secretary Tumulty on the basis of press dispatches, was received by Mr. Wilson with undisguised amazement. He thought Mr. Tumulty must be mistaken, but in a few minutes came word that the note actually had been delivered to the State Department.

The President determined that any decision made immediately would be hasty and based more on emotion than on judgment. That night he conferred with no one except Secretary Lansing.

GOES TO CABINET.

Yesterday, believing hasty judgment had sufficiently cooled to begin assessing the true situation, he laid it before the Cabinet and asked the opinion of individual members. Already the opinion had formed that the course of the United States was almost inevitable, and in this he was supported by the Cabinet officers. Some speeches were made at the meeting, it was learned today, which stirred all present. The view was general that a super-crisis had been reached, although there were some preliminary differences on the exact course which should be followed.

Then the President made his trip to the Capitol yesterday afternoon. He wanted members of the Senate to give him an idea of general public sentiment. Again his view was confirmed, for the great majority of the Senators favored an immediate break.

The President saw no callers last night. Late into the night he worked on his speech to Congress and then went to bed. This morning he read the document over again and finally decided to take it to Congress. Once the decision was made, he characteristically put the matter from his mind and went golfing, realizing that arduous work was ahead of him and that his health must be of the best.

TUMULTY SUMMONED.

Shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday Secretary Tumulty was summoned and given the address to send to the public printer. The President also authorized the secretary to make arrangements for the joint session of Congress.

Secretary Lansing followed Tumulty to the White House and details of the situation were gone over. About that time the announcement that the President would address Congress at 2 o'clock was made by Mr. Tumulty to newspaper men, and soon afterwards the President's decision became known.

The President never appeared more cool than when he went to the Capitol. After his speech he received the congratulations of Senators and Representatives gravely and then hurried back to the White House for conferences with Secretaries Baker and Daniels on details of precautionary measures to protect the interests of the United States. Late in the afternoon he went automobile riding with Mrs. Wilson and at 6 o'clock he talked with Attorney-General Gregory.

CHECKERBOARD OF WAR ON TIME AND WHEAT

Why the Germans have Dared to Risk a Break with United States.

BY HARRY CARR.

MANY persons have marveled that Germany should risk adding to the list of her foes a country as powerful as the United States.

The explanation of this seeming reckless bravado is very simple, after all. It is a matter of time and wheat.

The Allies are in a critical situation as regards food supply. Wheat-crop failures in Canada, India, France and elsewhere have reduced the surplus in England to a very low ebb.

It is apparent that the one great outstanding chance for the Central Powers to win the war is to starve England into submission before the May wheat crop is harvested. It is not to be expected that another bad crop will be harvested all over the world. The May wheat crop probably will materially change all the military aspects of the war.

ACUTE PRESSURE LACKING.

The position in which the Allied armies lie around the German frontiers makes it impossible for the Kaiser to apply acute pressure upon any one of his foes. No matter how severe a drubbing he gives Russia, the Czar has only to retire to get out of trouble. The same is true with all the other allies. The only chance for the Germans to apply intense pressure by taking advantage of this particular food crisis is to cut England off from wheat by a submarine blockade. You might say that Opportunity has given the Central Powers from now until May to make good.

In a long, dribbling war the Allies are pretty sure to get the best of it. Germany's one chance is to follow up her military victories sharply while they are still hot.

GERMAN STRATEGY.

It is a principle of German strategy that numbers do not count in war—that the advantage of the favorable moment outweighs the disadvantage of superior numbers.

If they can possibly maneuver to keep the United States out of war, the Germans will naturally leave no stone unturned. Should they fail, should we be added to the list of the Allies, Germany doubtless figures that she can finish England and bring her to her knees by the threat of starvation before the United States could get into battle.

As a matter of fact, it is not [illegible] how we could help the Allies [illegible] much strictly in a war way [illegible] some time along in the [illegible] or next winter. We have no [illegible] diers to send; we could not [illegible] to train any inside of eight or [illegible] months. We have a tidy little [illegible] of high efficiency, but warships [illegible] not seem to be of very much [illegible] against the hidden submarines. [illegible] British already have more war[illegible] on the North Sea than they [illegible] what to do with.

It is true that we would be c[illegible] upon for financial help, but [illegible] would not help the Allies win [illegible] war. They have money enough [illegible] carry on the war to its ultimate [illegible] clusion, whatever that it. Our [illegible] ing a share of the finances w[illegible] make the burden easier on the [illegible] payers after the war, but w[illegible] have no great effect upon the [illegible] duct of the war.

In reality, the greatest reason [illegible] Germany should shrink from [illegible] ing the United States into it is [illegible] danger that comes from awak[illegible] a sleeping giant.

OUR MILITARY POWER.

Just at present our military [illegible] is a joke, but some such inc[illegible] as this might bring into life the [illegible] mense military resources of [illegible] country. As a country ambitious [illegible] embark upon the Seven Seas [illegible] colonial power, Germany ca[illegible] afford to rouse another great [illegible] to combat her ambitions.

From personal investigation [illegible] know that the Germans dread [illegible] rupture with the United States [illegible] the reason that, in the intense [illegible] of commercial competition to [illegible] after the war, when all the [illegible] are frantically rushing for the [illegible] markets, there will be an attempt [illegible] boycott Germany, to freeze her [illegible] of the world markets. She [illegible] upon trade with the United [illegible] to tide her over this period.

Strictly from a military [illegible] however, the most favorable [illegible] that could happen to Germany w[illegible] be a declaration of war from [illegible] United States. Her deadly [illegible] could then sink every ship that [illegible] tured out upon the Atlantic O[illegible] and the food crisis would be [illegible] the blockade absolute.

Germany is playing her tr[illegible] cards. Should this bold plan [illegible] should the British weather the [illegible] sis, she would then have to face [illegible] prospect of another great [illegible] lending her resources to the [illegible] Also her own food is reported [illegible] in no condition to stand a siege.

This is the hour. Germany [illegible] struck.

LATIN-AMERICAN ACTION IS SOMEWHAT IN DOUBT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Although there have been indications that the break between the United States and Germany may be followed by a severance of relations also between the Berlin government and Brazil, Argentina and perhaps other Latin-American republics, no evidence came to light today to show that the Latin-American diplomats here were doing more than gathering information to transmit to their governments.

Mr. Naon, the Argentine Ambassador, was the only member of the Latin-American corps who called at the State Department during the day. He conferred for half an hour with Counsellor Polk.

None of the diplomats would hazard a guess as to the effect [illegible] the break on the policy of the La[illegible] American countries and so f[illegible] could be learned, no definite [illegible] mation on the subject had re[illegible] either the State Department or [illegible] diplomats.

TRIAL OF FOUR BEGINS IN LLOYD GEORGE CASE

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

DERBY (Eng.) Feb. 3.—The Guild Hall was crowded when Attorney-General Sir Frederick E. Smith today opened the case against four persons accused of conspiracy to murder Premier Lloyd George and Arthur Henderson, member of the War Council. The accused are Mrs. Alice Wheeldon, her two daughters, Miss Ann Wheeldon and Mrs. Alfred George Mason, and Mrs. Mason's husband.

POISONED DARTS.

A sensation was created when Attorney-General Smith alleged it had been intended to murder the Premier with poisoned darts to be shot at him while he was playing golf.

Both the Premier and Henderson were to be killed, he added, by means of poison handed by Mrs. Wheeldon to an agent, employed by the military authorities, who had ingratiated himself into her favor. The poison comprised hydrochloride, strychnine and an American Indian poison called curare, said to be [illegible] in poisoning arrows.

GERMAN AMBASSADOR WAITING FOR-TICKET.

"I Wonder How I am Going to Get Home," Bernstorff Laments.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Having received passports for himself, his family, and his suite, together with a note explaining why President Wilson has severed diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany, Count von Bernstorff tonight was waiting for his departure to be arranged by the Swiss Minister.

The Minister, Dr. Paul Ritter, has cabled Berne for formal authority to take over Germany's affairs here and when it is received he will call on Secretary Lansing and arrange details.

Count Tarnowski, the new Ambassador from Austria-Hungary, who has not yet presented his credentials to President Wilson, denied himself to callers today, and official confirmation of reports that his government had taken action similar to that of Germany was not obtainable at the Embassy. It is taken for granted that when such action is taken relations will be broken with the Vienna government.

It is still uncertain what action will be taken by Turkey.

LAST OFFICIAL DAY.

The German Ambassador's last official day in his Embassy, was an eventful one. His friends noticed that while he retained all his customary courtesy and tried his best to appear pleasant, actually he was deeply affected and gravely apprehensive at the prospect of the future.

The Ambassador arose this morning with the feeling that before the day was over his diplomatic connection in the United States would be ended.

Shortly after 10 o'clock he received a correspondent of The Associated Press in his study. The Ambassador was busy signing checks for personal bills. He swung around in the chair at his desk.

"Well," he said smiling and offering his hand, "what do you hear this morning? Am I going to be turned out? No information? Well, I have none either. I haven't heard a word."

As the talk drifted to prospects of peace and the Ambassador expressing the personal opinion that it was not improbable, even if relations were broken off, that efforts might be continued in that direction, a telephone tinkled. The Ambassador picked up the receiver smiling. He was quiet a moment, then the expression on his face changed.

"You say relations have been broken and that the President is going to Congress? Are you sure? Well, may be that's so. No, I have no comment to make and nothing to say. If that is true I am a private citizen again."

The Ambassador turned to the correspondent and asked that verification of the report he had heard be obtained. This was done and the Ambassador quickly walked into the next room to carry the news to Countess von Bernstorff.

EYES MOIST.

When he came back into his study, his eyes were moist and he said:

"So it really is true. I'm so sorry. However, as you know, I expected it. I never expected anything else. There was nothing left for the United States to do. I wonder how I am going to get home?"

"I suppose I will get my passports any time now. But I certainly am not surprised at the action that has been taken. My people in Berlin will not be surprised either. They knew what was coming when they declared unrestricted submarine warfare. However, I have simply been here to carry out the orders of my government and I have done so. I have not had any communication from my government for the last day or so and now I suppose I will be unable to communicate with them at all, since the use of my code will not be allowed and I could not send messages in plain language."

It was nearly 2 o'clock when Assistant Solicitor Woolsey of the State Department arrived at the embassy with the Ambassador's passports and the note from Secretary Lansing. Mr. Woolsey was taken to the embassy study. He delivered the documents and left immediately.

A group of newspaper correspondents then went in.

The Ambassador, as is the custom, sat down under the portrait of his Emperor and opened the conversation by saying:

"I am very glad to see all you gentlemen, but what interests can you have in me? I am a private citizen again."

"Have you received your passports, Mr. Ambassador?" was asked.

"Yes," he replied. "I have them for myself, my family and my suite."

"When am I going home? I don't know. You will have to ask the Swiss minister that, I have asked him to take charge of our affairs and he will make all the arrangements for my departure. Procedure? I don't know that either. This is my first experience of this kind, and I will have to inform myself regarding what shall be done. I am just waiting to see what is going to happen."

The Ambassador was told that the United States would take necessary steps to protect American life and property on the seas and was asked what would happen.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN?

"What will happen?" he replied. "I can't say about that. If American warships are going to convoy ships carrying ammunition—well, really—I can't say what will happen." And the Ambassador shrugged his shoulders, lifting his hands and letting them fall upon his knee. He said he expected to stay in Washington for the present, because in view of the situation on the seas he did not see how he was going to return to Germany. The interview over, Count Bernstorff went into an adjoining parlor and there conferred for half an hour with William Nye of the United States secret service, who had called to arrange for one of his men to remain constantly with the Ambassador during the remainder of his stay in the United States. This step was taken as a measure of personal protection.

Soon after the Ambassador called for his automobile and went for a drive through the parks. A secret service man jumped on the front seat, beside the uniformed chauffeur just as the car was pulling away from the embassy. Count von Bernstorff observed him with a broad smile. He returned to his embassy in an hour, saw a few visitors and later entertained a few close personal friends at dinner.

All business at the embassy heretofore one of the busiest in Washington, ceased abruptly when the word went around that relations had been broken off. For the rest of the day the embassy was as quiet as a private home. Clerks and attaches stood about asking each other "how are we going to get home?"

Diplomacy.

HOW VON BERNSTORFF GOT WORD TO LEAVE.

Text of the Communication Delivered to the German Ambassador Conforms to that of the Address Delivered by the President to Congress — "All Diplomatic Relations Severed."

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The note handed to Count von Bernstorff with his passports, conveying a formal notification that the United States had severed diplomatic relations, conforms closely in substance to President Wilson's address to Congress.

Signed by Secretary Lansing and addressed to the Ambassador, the communication views tersely the diplomatic correspondence between the two governments since the sinking of the Sussex, using the same quotations that were embodied by the President in his address. It then announces bluntly that "all diplomatic relations between the United States and the German empire are severed;" that Ambassador Gerard will come home, and that Count von Bernstorff's passports have been made ready. The note begins as follows:

The Secretary of State to the German Ambassador, Department of State, Feb. 3, 1917:

"Excellency: In acknowledging the note with accompanying memoranda, which you delivered into my hands on the afternoon of January 31, and which announced the purpose of your government as to the future conduct of submarine warfare, I would direct your attention to the following statements appearing in the correspondence which has passed between the government of the United States and the imperial government in regard to submarine warfare."

Then follow the quotations used by the President in addressing Congress: That from the Sussex note, giving notification of a severance of diplomatic relations unless Germany's submarine warfare is brought within international law; that from the German reply, giving new pledges, but reserving liberty of action should the Allied blockade continue unmodified; that from the American rejoinder, saying that the United States could not predicate Germany's compliance with international law upon the conduct of another belligerent, and, lastly, that from a memorandum accompanying the German note of January 31, giving notice of unrestricted naval warfare.

"In view of this declaration," concludes the note handed the Ambassador, "which withdraws suddenly, without any prior intimation, the solemn assurance given in the imperial government's note of May 4, 1916, this government has no alternative consistent with the dignity and honor of the United States but take the course which it explicitly announced in its note of April 18, 1916, it would take in the event that the imperial government did not declare and effect an abandonment of the methods of submarine warfare then employed and to which the imperial government now purposes again to resort.

"The President has, therefore, directed me to announce to Your Excellency that all diplomatic relations between the United States and the German empire are severed, and that the American Ambassador at Berlin will be immediately withdrawn, and in accordance with such announcement to deliver to Your Excellency your passports.

"I have the honor to be "Your Excellency's obedient servant,

ROBERT LANSING."

Baldness

—Is rapidly increasing — says Prof. John H. Austin, Chicago's bacteriologist, hair and scalp specialist of 38 years' practice—and is in many, many cases directly or indirectly caused by —A very common scalp trouble.

Alopecia Pityrodes—

—It starts with a scaling of the scalp, sometimes slight, called "dandruff," sometimes abundant — producing thick, grayish-white, dry or greasy scales—which leads to faling of the hair.

—At first, when the hair starts to fall, it is hardly noticeable, but as this ailment, "Alopecia Pityrodes," becomes more deeply seated, and the germs multiply, as they always do, the falling of the hair increases rapidly, and in time the top of head becomes entirely bald. Both men and women of all ages of life are subject to Alopecia Pityrodes, but particularly those between the ages of 20 and 35 years.

—Prof. Austin, who is now at Hamburger's, says that people who are at all troubled with any kind of hair and scalp trouble, such as

—Itching Scalp
—Falling Hair
—Excessively Oily Hair
—Dry and Brittle Hair
—Dandruff
—Split Hair
—Gray or Faded Hair

—Should have their hair examined at once under his powerful microscope.

—Professor Austin says that the use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonics, vaseline and elixirs is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

—During the past two years Prof. Austin has made thousands of free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp of Hamburger's patrons—and they enthusiastically appreciate this service.

—Prof. Austin invites both men and women to take advantage of the FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATIONS of the hair and scalp this week in his private office on the Second Floor of Hamburger's. Hours: 10 to 12 and 2 to 4 daily.

PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE ANEW TO THE FLAG.

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS AT NOTABLE BANQUET.

Present Crisis in National Affairs Lends Unwonted Solemnity to Annual Affair of Men Who Served Under Stars and Stripes on Strange Shores.

With every address breathing a spirit of allegiance to the government, veterans of foreign wars last night held their eighteenth annual banquet in commemoration of the outbreak of the Philippine insurrection. The affair was held at Christopher's and among the guests were officers of the United States Army and Navy.

The present crisis in national affairs, lent a solemnity to the gathering seldom before felt. The men who followed the flag to foreign shores in their young manhood were there 200 strong and before the programme had ended, they again had pledged allegiance to their country, whatever occasion might arise.

Among the significant addresses was that of Gen. Robert Wankowski, who deplored the attitude of the public in ridiculing the National Guard in time of peace. Other speakers called upon those assembled to instill patriotism in the younger generation and to impress upon every citizen the ideals upon which the United States government is founded.

The following toasts were given: Welcome, Comrade Jesse R. Shafer, commander Corregidor Post, No. 8, V.F.W.; The Flag, Comrade E. E. Kirk; G.A.R., Col. J. C. Minniman, Past Commander, Dept. of Iowa, G.A.R.; U.S.W.V., Comrade E. A. Lane; U. S. Army, Maj. George B. Pillsbury, U. S. Eng. Corps.; U. S. Navy, Commander Ward Winchell, U. S. Navy Recruiting Service; The National Guard, Gen. Robert Wankowski, N.G.C.; The Soldier As a Citizen, Comrade Dr. Howard W. Seager, Hospital Corps; The Philippines As a Commercial Asset, Comrade James M. Sheridan; Why a F.W.V., Comrade Spofford.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD.

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacupful at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

THOUSANDS CHEER FOR LLOYD GEORGE.

SAYS GERMANY IS ADVANCING IN BARBARISM.

Declares Intention to Sink Ships Without Warning Indicates no Respect will be Paid Henceforth to Any Flag Except the Black Flag.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

CARNARVON (Wales) Feb. 3.—Four thousand of Premier Lloyd George's constituents flocked to Carnarvon today to hear his accounting of his stewardship. Owing to the recent plot against the Premier's life, extraordinary precautions were taken to protect him.

In his address Mr. Lloyd George said the coming imperial conference would consider the question of the disposal of the captured German colonies.

"Peace without victory" would not mean peace, but a rest for the Central Powers, with time to recuperate, Mr. Lloyd George said.

Peace would come in 1917, said the Premier, if Great Britain's enemies knew by holding out until 1918 they would be worse off, not better off.

The Premier said he never had had any doubts as to ultimate victory, but "neither have I any doubts that before that is reached there will be many broad, turbulent rivers to cross and the nation must help to bridge those rivers.

"There is much in the military situation which must necessarily cause anxiety. It is no one's fault in particular. All the four countries undoubtedly have been to blame for the present condition. The improvidence, the lack of vision, imagination, promptitude and decision, the delay, all these combine to produce this Balkan muddle.

"When we come to the sea there is much glory in that after two and one-half years our strength is unbroken."

In regard to Germany's new sea policy the Premier said:

"It is after all only an advance along the road to complete barbarism, which is crushing out of that country the last shreds of civilization."

The Premier said Germany must stand revealed, even to the most indulgent neutral, as "a Goth in all his naked savagery," and added:

"Germany intends to sink ships without warning. No respect will be paid henceforth to any flag except the black flag.

"We can win the war," the Premier continued, "but only if the nation is prepared to back the government with all its resources. The nation must support the government in money, labor and in sacrifice of convenience and comforts. Then we shall pull through.

ENEMY DESPERATE.

"The enemy is getting desperate. The Prussian thoroughly understood that the resources at our disposal were adequate to command a victory on land.

"The Germans knew," he continued, "that the Allies would break their military machine, but they knew that if they could destroy British transports, the British armies would languish and the people would die of hunger.

"When the smoke of this great conflict has been dissolved," the Premier went on, "there will reappear a new Britain. It will be the old country still, but it will be a new country. Its commerce, trade and industries will be new. There will be new conditions of life and toil, new conditions for capital and labor alike, and new relations between both of them and the state. Old principles will still survive, but there will be a new outlook and character in the land. The men and women of this country will become fine building material for the new Britain that is to be.

"There have been epochs in the history of the world when in a few raging years the character and destiny of the whole race have been determined for unknown ages. This is one. Then let us not be weary in well doing, for in due time wa shall reap if we faint not."

ASKS FAIR PLAY.

The Premier asked for fair play for the men at the head of affairs. For the first time on a great scale, he said, success in business had been placed on the same footing as success in politics as a claim to high offices. They had to straighten out many tangles.

The Premier referred to the work done by the Ministry of Munitions, and said that at the end of the Somme offensive there had been more guns and more munitions than when the battle began. The government already had saved many thousand tons of shipping, had arranged for construction of new ships and had set up a great new organization for the production of food. They were working hard, and "I think effectively, at the urgent problem of dealing with the piratical brutality of Germany on the high seas."

Mr. Lloyd George said the one task was to mobilize the resources of all the Entente Allies and utilize them for the best purpose possible. The empire, he said, could and would do more than it was doing at present. The imperial council would be held in the course of the next few weeks, and among other questions to be considered by it was the disposal of the German colonies.

He appealed to the whole nation to support the war loan, food control and national service plans, and asked farmers to cultivate every available foot of land. The farmers, he said, wanted their able-bodied men back, but they could not get them, as they were wanted in France.

Great Britain, said the Premier, had suffered less than any other belligerent country thus far, her men being delegated too much to the trenches. He said the nation must give its utmost assistance to them without delay.

SPANISH AND GREEK SHIPS TORPEDOED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

MADRID (via London) Feb. 3.—The Spanish steamer Butron and the Greek steamship Elekon have been torpedoed and sunk by the German submarine U-67. Two Spaniards were drowned in the sinking of the Butron. The rest of the crews of both vessels were landed.

Tension in Maritime Circles Shown by Failure of St. Louis to Sail.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—An indication of the tension felt in shipping circles here was shown tonight by the announcement that the American line steamship St. Louis, which had obtained clearance papers to sail tomorrow for Liverpool, would not leave before noon Monday at the earliest. The following statement was issued by the company:

"The officials of the American line are in consultation with the Department of State at Washington and have decided not to sail the St. Louis before 12 o'clock noon on Monday, February 5."

The American line steamship St. Paul, which left Liverpool last Saturday, and ordinarily would be due here tomorrow, may be delayed, it was said tonight, by the heavy northwest gale of the last three days. No wireless messages have been received from her.

Reports that the St. Louis would be convoyed by a warship of the United States or of the Entente Powers could not be confirmed. Several persons who had booked passage on the St. Louis canceled their reservations today.

IN NEW WAR ZONE.

Late maritime records show that there now are at sea near the newly-defined war zone, or upon the trans-Atlantic sea lanes, twelve steamships, not counting the liner Philadelphia, which may be safe at Liverpool. These ships are:

Almanace, Baltimore, January 26, for Liverpool.

Alaskan, Boston, January 28, for St. Nazaire.

Bantu, Baltimore, January 26, for Liverpool.

Dochra, New York, February 2, for Genoa.

Finland, New York, January 25, for Liverpool.

Healdton, Philadelphia, January 26, for Rotterdam.

Onega, New York, January 20, for Rotterdam.

Vacuum, New York, January 20, for London.

Wilmore, Baltimore, January 26, for Marseilles.

Macona, New York, January 23, for Havre.

Muskogee, Philadelphia, January 31, for Savona.

Sun, Philadelphia, February 1, for London.

LEAVING VESSELS.

At the piers of the North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American lines in Hoboken additional guards were placed. Late today it was reported to the collector that many sailors of the self-interned ships were leaving the vessels and taking with them their personal belongings. One explanation was that they feared the ships might be seized by the United States and the crews made prisoners. The officers would remain on board, the sailors asserted.

A report that preparations had been made to scuttle or disable the vessels in the event of actual hostilities between the United States and Germany was vigorously denied by Commodore Hans Ruser, in command of the Vaterland, largest of the German steamships.

Neikirk, Walter Trevallian, J. H. Wood, George Sawyer, W. H. Miller, James Rogers, William Mannix, L. M. P. Pretchet, Leo Parker, George Reach, Charles P. Crow and Stanley Avery.

Mr. Geer said that the only news of the sinking of his vessel was what he had read in the newspapers. He said that the Housatonic was carrying 114,200 bushels of wheat under charter to the Brown & Jenkenson Company of London.

Mr. Geer also stated that since her acquisition by his company the Housatonic had made several voyages with wheat to Rotterdam under charter to the Belgian Relief Commission.

UNDER CHARTER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The steamship Housatonic, sunk by a German submarine, was under charter to Brown, Jenkinson & Co. of London, it was asserted tonight by Edward F. Geer, president of the Housatonic Steamship Company. On her last trip to Europe, which was in August, she carried a cargo of supplies to Rotterdam for the Belgian Relief Commission.

The ship, however, was of American registry, flew the American flag, and her eight officers and twelve or more members of her crew were American citizens. Capt. Thomas A. Ensor was formerly a British subject, but took out his naturalization papers a short time before the ship sailed.

SENSATION IN WASHINGTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—News of the sinking of the Housatonic created a sensation here, but State Department officials pointed out that it would depend entirely upon the circumstances whether the incident would affect the present situation.

The ship was carrying contraband, and if she was destroyed with proper warning and provision for the safety of her crew, or in an attempt to escape, the United States merely would have a claim for damages as in the Frye case.

The first effect of the incident in official quarters was to direct attention anew to the President's declaration in his address to Congress today that if American ships and lives were sacrificed in "heedless contravention of the just and reasonable understandings of international law" he would again go before Congress for authority to "use any means that may be necessary for the protection of our seamen and our people."

FROM GALVESTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

GALVESTON (Tex.) Feb. 3.—steamer Housatonic sailed from Galveston January 6 for London via Newport News. She carried 144,200 bushels of wheat for this port.

At the offices of the Texas Transport and Terminal Company, agents for the Housatonic, it was stated that there were approximately fifteen Americans in the crew and twenty-four of other nationalities.

The Housatonic was formerly the Hamburg-American line steamer Georgia, and American registry was granted to her in April, 1915. Prior to that time she had been laid up at New Orleans since the beginning of the war.

It was then announced that the vessel had been bought on March 29 for $85,000 by the Housatonic Steamship Company, of which Edward Geer of New Orleans was president.

BOARD REVIEWS LOAN OUTLOOK.

Advises National Banks not to Invest Too Much in Foreign Bonds.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The Federal Reserve Board, reviewing its recent admonitions to national banks against investing too heavily in foreign bonds, expressed the opinion today in its annual report to Congress that a reduction of American exports or settlements therefore in gold would be preferable whenever the absorbing power of the investment market shows signs of exhaustion, to having banks "unduly extend their investments in foreign securities at a time when business prudence and conservatism suggest the necessity of their maintaining themselves in a particularly strong position." "The purchase by American investors of desirable foreign loans in large amounts," reads the report, "and the absorption by them of a vast volume of American securities previously held abroad may be regarded as a healthy and normal operation in view of the circumstances which have existed since the war began, but the board has deemed it necessary, nevertheless, to emphasize the importance of having the banks of the country keep themselves in a liquid condition.

"Banks may, of course, perform an important function as temporary holders of securities during the process of their distribution to ultimate investors, but in times when there are enormous international transactions such as we have witnessed during the past two years, the velocity and volume of our foreign trade as far as it is based upon long time credit, must be regulated by the power of absorption of the American investor."

Wins Back Prestige.

the chief topic of conversation. There is little doubt felt in any quarter that America cannot keep out of the fatal war. Notice of the sinking of the American steamer Housatonic confirmed the general belief that a few days only would suffice to see the United States drawn into the maelstrom.

Another topic of conversation is the possibility of the German merchantmen in American ports being seized and pressed into trans-Atlantic service. With a great part of neutral shipping held in European ports on account of the German declaration, the addition to the Atlantic trade of all the German ships now in American ports would be of invaluable help, it is recognized.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE'S VIEW.

Lord Northcliffe voiced the very general feeling when he said to me tonight:

"My view is that Great Britain is very glad of America's support. While we welcome her assistance in financing Russia, Italy, Rumania, Montenegro, Serbia and Belgium, we can finish the fighting job by ourselves. Her moral support is of immense value to us and to all neutrals. When the history of this war is written, the United States will want and will deserve a place. Americans are good fighters. Those now fighting in France prove that the present generation has lost none of the ability of their fathers and grandfathers. The Germans are desperate, they have gone mad."

Although large crowds of homeward-bound Americans left the city this morning, the demands for transportation were far less urgent than had been expected, and virtually one entire deck with first-class accommodations on the departing steamer was left untaken.

There was little apprehension among the passengers, the sailing being exempt under the German warning. Among the passengers were Col. Spencer Cosby, returning American military attache at Paris, and Mrs. Cosby.

AT AMERICAN EMBASSY.

At the American Embassy and Consulate the scene resembled that in the early days of the war. Crowds of American travelers were seeking passports and making inquiries. At the same time the Embassy officials were preparing to turn over to some other neutral the work which they have been carrying on in behalf of the Central Powers. Plans for this were evolved as early as the Lusitania crisis and little trouble is expected.

None of the American ships in European waters has reported any change in sailing plans, according to Consul-General Skinner. The liner Philadelphia is expected to sail from here on Monday, while the Dutch liner Ryndam due at Falmouth next Wednesday, has made no change in her sailing plans.

Stranded.

THREE BRITISH VESSELS ARE ASHORE OFF CAPES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NORFOLK (Va.) Feb. 3.—Three British steamers, all outward bound, are tonight ashore within one mile of each other on the middle ground directly off Capt Henry. They are: The Australian, the Rosalind and the Hannington Court.

The lifeguards from these stations have been assembled at the Cape Henry station and are ready to remove the crews if necessary. A heavy northeaster and dangerous sea prevail. The coast guard cutter Yamacraw, the sea going wrecking tug Rescue, and several smaller tugs are standing by the stranded vessels.

Hollweg Believes Submarine Terro Only Way of Making Peace.

BY ERNEST KAHN.

[BY WIRELESS AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPAT

BERLIN, Feb. 3 (via Sayville.)—Germany will stand by the terms of her note to the United States and is prepared to accept all the consequences which they imply.

The announcement of an unlimited submarine warfare is approved here on all sides as the expression of a policy of the utmost resolution and the greatest sternness. The announcement of Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg acknowledges as a fact that the German government after vainly attempting to finish the war by agreement, regards the employment of the most rigorous measures by land and sea as the surest method of bringing peace.

Circles which have hitherto opposed the extension of the submarine warfare to its full capacity now stand inflexibly beside the government. The universal confidence in the imperial ministry and in the military leaders, whose conscientiousness and ability in selecting the best means for furthering the ultimate interests of the empire have always been highly respected, even by those who disagreed with their opinions, is now unbounded.

The German peace proposition and the American peace note and the Wilson Senate speech, and the preposterous peace terms dictated by the Entente in their recent communication to Mr. Wilson, are regarded here as undoubted proof that the Entente never wishes peace unless the Central Powers are crushed and mutilated beyond possibility of recovery.

The new submarine warfare is therefore regarded as the last and the heaviest section of our struggle against the brutal ambitions of our enemies. The overwhelmin

ALL ARMS OF SERVICE PREPARE FOR WOR

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—After the announcement today of a diplomatic break with Germany, preparations for possible eventualities were made by every branch of the government service. Under orders from the War and Navy departments, guards were doubled around all the forts and coast defenses which protect the approach to the port of New York. Similar precautions were taken at the navy yard and Governor's Island, headquarters of the Department of the East.

Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the Department of the East, denied himself to all callers and prohibited his staff from making public any information regarding the movements of units under his command, which covers twenty-two of the Eastern States and the District of Columbia.

FLEET, FIGHTING UNIT, NOT TO BE SEPARAT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The War and Navy departments were full of gossip today as to what steps lay beyond the severance of relations with Germany. The question of the use which might be made of the navy occupied most attention as one that would have immediate bearing. Navy officials would not say what plans were under contemplation, whether American merchant craft would be convoyed, patrols against submarines set up off American ports, or submarine-chasing squadrons organized.

So far as the fleet is concerned, officials appeared to agree that its present situation was most desirable, even if war is to come immediately. It is highly improbable that any element of the

HASTEN BILLS ON NEUTRALITY

Acts to Strengthen Federal Statutes in Congress.

Collectors will be Allowed to Inspect Vessels.

Regulation of Passports to be Strict in Future.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Steps to strength the Federal statutes under which prosecution may be brought against those committing offenses in the United States to further the interests of foreign governments were hastened in Congress today after the break with Germany was announced. Seventeen bills submitted by the Department of Justice several months ago to facilitate prosecution of such offenders were approved by a Senate subcommittee when word came that President Wilson wanted action on them hastened, and they probably will get to the floor of the Senate early next week.

The more important of the measures, whose passage is sought by the administration because the Department of Justice frequently has found itself handicapped during the past few months by insufficient authority, would make the following provisions:

Authorize collectors of customs "at any time during war between foreign nations" to inspect any private vessel within American jurisdiction for evidence of attempts to violate the statutes of the United States or the laws of nations.

ISSUE OF PASSPORTS.

To regulate the issue of passports and provide five years' imprisonment for their forgery or falsely representing the facts to obtain one.

Authorize the arrest and return to the proper place of any officer or man belonging to the forces of a belligerent who has left his place of internment in this country, and make it a crime for anyone to aid or entice an interned person to leave.

Makes it a crime punishable with five years' imprisonment for any person "wilfully and knowingly to make any untrue statement, either orally or in writing, under oath before any person authorized and empowered to administer oaths, which the affiant has knowledge or reason to believe, has, or may be used to influence the measures of conduct of any foreign government, or of any officer or agent of any foreign government, in relation to any dispute or controversy with the United States or with a view or intent to defeat any measure of, or action by the government of the United States in relation to such dispute or controversy."

FOR SEARCH WARRANTS.

Prescribe new regulations for the issue and service of search warrants and warrants for seizure and detention of property so as to permit issue of such warrants to any authorized civil, naval or military officer of the United States upon proper application to a court or the United States commissioner, where the facts show ground for belief that the law of nations or treaty obligations or United States statutes are violated.

Authorize use by the President of the United States of the land and naval forces to enforce "obligations of the United States under the law of nations" to restrict aliens in the United States from acting as the diplomatic agents of a foreign government except when duly accredited.

Punish with five years' imprisonment any person who falsely assumes or pretends to be a diplomat, consular, or other official agent of a foreign government in order to defraud any person or obtain from any person any "paper, document or other valuable thing."

EXPORT OF ARMS.

Make more stringent the prohibitions against export of arms to be used against a friendly nation and those against revolutionary conspiracies against a friendly nation fomented in this country.

Empower the President to withhold clearance from any vessel, domestic or foreign, or to forbid its departure where there is reasonable cause to believe such vessel is carrying arms or supplies to a foreign belligerent in violation of the obligations of the United States.

Punish with ten years' imprisonment any person setting fire to, tampering with the motive power, or placing bombs on any ship within the United States or of American registry on the high seas with intent to injure the vessel or her cargo or of persons on board.

Impose ten years' imprisonment for wilfull interference with commerce by injury or destruction to places where the instrumentalities of such commerce are stored, produced or manufactured.

BLOCKADED ZONE AGAIN ALTERED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN Feb. 3 (via London.)—The following official statement was given out here today:

The eastern limit of the blockaded zone around England has been altered as follows:

The line now runs from the point 53 deg. 30 min. north Lat., 4 deg. east Long., across to the point 56 deg. north Lat., 4 deg. east Long., to the point 56 deg. north Lat., 4 deg. 50 min., east Long. Otherwise the line remains as already announced.

The effect of the alteration of the blockaded zone is to move about twenty miles further from the coast that part of the eastern limit of the zone which lies off the northeastern Dutch coast, and Schleswig-Holstein. This affords Dutch shipping a wider pathway to the Atlantic.

"FUTURE ON WATER," GERMANY'S SLOGAN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Feb. 3 (via London.)—Admiral Sheer, commander of the fleet, today telegraphed the following to the Lokal Anzeiger:

"My slogan is that our future lies on the water. However the British lion gnashes his teeth, we must and will attack him until a free way on the seas has been won."

FOIL PLOT TO SCUTTLE TORPEDO-BOAT DESTROYER

Vessel in Philadelphia Navy Yard is Found with Two Feet of Water in the Hold, and Chief Machinist's Mate is Arrested and Put in Irons — Shore Leave to Marines and Sailors Refused.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—An attempt was made today to scuttle the United States torpedo-boat destroyer Jacob Jones by opening several of her seacocks at the Philadelphia navy yard, according to unofficial but reliable reports. Officials at the yard refused either to confirm or deny the reports, pointing out that upon instructions from Washington a strict censorship had been placed upon all activities at the navy yards throughout the country.

An officer of the Jacob Jones, it was said, found that the ship was listing heavily to port as she was being towed from her anchorage in the Delaware River to a dock, and all persons aboard were detained and questioned. The chief machinist's mate, whose identity was not disclosed, was arrested and placed in irons on one of the battleships. Whether the prisoner is a German sympathizer or a fanatic is not known.

FIND WATER IN HOLD.

More than two feet of water was in the hold of the Jones when it was discovered that her seacocks had been opened. They were quickly closed and two government tugs assisted in warping the destroyer into her dock.

The local navy yard virtually was placed upon a war basis today.

Early tonight the interned German auxiliary cruisers Kronprinz Wilhelm and Prinz Eitel Friedrich were seized by order of the Navy Department and their crews imprisoned in an isolation barracks. The seizure was followed by the placing of an armed guard at the yard entrance, while marines were assigned to patrol the land side limits of the government preserve.

BOATS PATROL RIVER.

Motorboats and other light craft with machine guns aboard patrolled the river and prevented vessels from coming within prescribed limits. Commandant Russell issued orders recalling shore leave of all marines and sailors. Visitors to the yard were strictly forbidden.

Disregarding the new sea peril announced by Germany, four steamers, one flying the American flag, laden with munitions and other rich cargoes destined for the war zone, sailed from here today. Among the half-dozen steamers that cleared for foreign ports was the American tanker Gold Shell for Bordeaux and Rouen, France.

POST HEAVY GUARD AROUND ARSENAL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DAVENPORT (Iowa) Feb. 3.—Col. George Burr, U.S.A., commandant at the Rock Island Arsenal in the Mississippi River, opposite here, called in all passes tonight except those issued to employees and members of the garrison. A heavy guard was posted around the buildings and strangers barred from approaches to the post.

The Rock Island arsenal is one of the largest government small arms ordnance stations in the United States.

DESTROYERS SAIL FOR SAN DIEGO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—The United States destroyers Paul Jones and Whipple sailed for San Diego today, under orders issued previously.

The destroyer Lawrence and the coast guard cutter McCulloch were on guard here under orders of the collector of the port.

EXTRA GUARDS IN HONOLULU HARBOR.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE AND A. P.]

HONOLULU, Feb. 3.—Extra precautions to guard against violation of neutrality were taken today by army and navy forces here. Extra guards were patrolling the wharves harboring interned German vessels.

The United States cruiser St. Louis is patrolling the harbor entrance and all outgoing vessels are forced to show their registry numbers.

Brig.-Gen. Frederick S. Strong, commanding the troops here, held a conference today with various heads of the army posts, followed by conferences between United States District Attorney Huber and the naval commandant, Capt. George R. Clark. No statements were issued.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—J. P. Morgan has offered to co-operate in raising a large endowment fund to make the American academy in Rome one of the foremost institutions in the world, it was announced here last night. The late J. P. Gen. Bell said he anticipated no orders that might require extra vigilance in guarding forts and governmental property.

MAY DROP CEREMONY OF INAUGURATION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—While no decision has been reached officially there is a very decided sentiment in all official quarters to abandon the public ceremonies of inauguration on March 5 and simply have the President take the oath of office in the White House on Sunday, March 4. The army and navy reception at the White House probably will be abandoned.

Those officials who favor abandonment of the public ceremonies feel that with the President facing such critical international affairs, the good of the country demands that he shall not be called upon to participate in public functions.

AMERICANS TRYING TO GET BACK HOME.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—A large crowd of homeward-bound Americans took the boat train at Euston station this morning. There seemed little apprehension, as today's sailing was exempt under the German warning, it being the last one with such exemption.

It turned out that the demands for transportation by Americans desiring to get away from England were less urgent than expected and virtually one entire deck with first-class accommodations on the departing steamer was not taken.

TWO HUNDRED AMERICAN VICTIMS OF SUBMARIN

Most of Them Were Traveling Peacefully on Un Merchant Vessels and Believed Themselves to be Under International Law—Lusitania Case the Startling Incident and is Still Unsettled.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Two hundred Americans, at least, probably more, have gone to their deaths through German and Austrian submarine operations.

Most of the Americans lost were traveling on unarmed merchant ships, and under the practices of international law and humanity, believed themselves safe. More than 3000 citizens of other nationalities lost their lives in the same attacks, but they compose only a part of the toll of the life taken by the submarine warfare. The ships lost on which the Americans met death are only a fraction of the number sent to the bottom by torpedoes, most of them without warning.

The cases which involve the United States and Germany are primarily those in which American life was lost or endangered. The first American of whom there is record to lose his life in submarine attack, was Leon T. Thresher, a passenger on the British liner Falaba, torpedoed and sunk March 27, 1915, off Milford, Eng. The Falaba, after a hopeless attempt to escape, stopped and while boats were being lowered and passengers still were aboard, the submarine drove a torpedo into her side and she sank in ten minutes. Of 242 persons, 136 were saved.

GULFLIGHT ATTACK.

The first American ship attacked was the Gulflight, an oil tanker, from Port Arthur, Tex., to Rouen, France, torpedoed without warning off the Scilly Islands May 1, 1915. Two men jumped overboard and were drowned. Her captain died of heart failure. The Gulflight did not sink and was towed to port. The German government acknowledged the attack as an accident, expressed its regret and promised to pay damages.

The next attack was the one that shocked the civilized world and brought the United States and Germany for the first time to the verge of war. It was the destruction of the Lusitania on May 7, 1915. Unarmed, with 1257 passengers, of whom 159 were Americans, and a crew of 702, she was torpedoed without warning and sunk in twenty-three minutes off Old Head of Kinsale as she was nearing Liverpool. In all, 1198 lives were lost, of which 124 were Americans, many of them men of national prominence.

Everything pointed to a prearranged German plan to torpedo the ship. The German Embassy had published advertisements warning Americans in veiled terms and at the wharf a number of prominent Americans received telegrams warning them not to sail. It has been charged that the German Ambassador himself knew the liner was to be sunk and that German officials here counted her progress across the ocean day by day and as the hour of her destruction drew near they watched for the extra newspapers, which they knew would announce her destruction. The case passed into diplomatic negotiations, which never took final form.

NEBRASKAN INCIDENT.

Before this case passed from the public mind a German submarine torpedoed another American ship—the Nebraskan, without warning May 25, 1915, south of Fastnet Rock. The Nebraskan's name was painted on her sides in six-feet letters, but her American flag had been hauled down at dark, as is sea custom. The Nebraskan reached port but under her own steam one was injured. The Ger ernment again promised damages.

What They Say.

VARIANCE IN VIEWS OF GERMAN-AMERICAN PR

THE following editorial comment on the diplomatic break has been gathered by the Associated Press:

The Omaha Daily Tribune (German:) On Thursday the Tribune expressed the fear that the German-American citizens might be called to endure the most severe trial in their history, and to empty the bitter cup to the dregs. All too soon these fears seem to be an actual realization. The break with our old fatherland is at hand and on account of questions whose handling by our government sometimes seemed to us not entirely just and in keeping with the best interests of the future of our country.

But we have duties toward our adopted country. Our allegiance belongs to America first, last and all the time. These duties we must perform, and will perform above all considerations and regardless of what the future may have in store for us.

INTERNECINE WARFARE.

Chicago Staats Zeitung: „It cannot be doubted that an overwhelming majority of our people stand behind the President in his efforts to keep this country at peace with all the world. But it is doubtful that a majority will indorse giving the German Ambassador his passports at the present time. Let us consider America first, last and all the time. Millions of Americans are bound by blood ties to Europeans who are fighting. Were America to engage in the war on either side, the hearts of millions would be sa the knowledge that they war against their kin.

MAY DROP CEREMONY OF INAUGURATION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—While no decision has been reached officially there is a very decided sentiment in all official quarters to abandon the public ceremonies of inauguration on March 5 and simply have the President take the oath of office in the White House on Sunday, March 4. The army and navy reception at the White House probably will be abandoned.

Those officials who favor abandonment of the public ceremonies feel that with the President facing such critical international affairs, the good of the country demands that he shall not be called upon to participate in public functions.

GERMAN SOCIETY FOR BUDAPEST.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BUDAPEST, Jan. 20.—The German colony here has founded a society with the object of promoting good will and co-operation between Germany and Hungary. The new society is to welcome two prominent German guests next month, Herr Bassermann and Count Westarp. The former is the President of the National Liberal party in the Reichstag, and the latter is the leader of the Conservatives. Both are known as supporters of the so-called annexationist ideas in Germany.

MEXICO TO REDUCE RAILWAY EMPLOYEES

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 25.—Felipe Pescador, director-general of the railroad lines operated by the government, after a trip over the various systems, has announced that the force of employees will be reduced materially in the near future. He announced that there were now more men employed on the railroads than in 1912 when traffic was at its height and that the work necessary could be performed adequately by a force approximately one-third less.

AMERICANS TRYING TO GET BACK HOME.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—A large crowd of homeward-bound Americans took the boat train at Euston station this morning. There seemed little apprehension, as today's sailing was exempt under the German warning, it being the last one with such exemption.

It turned out that the demands for transportation by Americans desiring to get away from England were less urgent than expected and virtually one entire deck with first-class accommodations on the departing steamer was not taken.

TWO HUNDRED AMERICA
VICTIMS OF SUBMARIN

Most of Them Were Traveling Peacefully on Una Merchant Vessels and Believed Themselves to be Under International Law—Lusitania Case the Startling Incident and is Still Unsettled.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Two hundred Americans, at least, probably more, have gone to their deaths through German and Austrian submarine operations.

Most of the Americans lost were traveling on unarmed merchant ships, and under the practices of international law and humanity, believed themselves safe. More than 2000 citizens of other nationalities lost their lives in the same attacks, but they compose only a part of the toll of the life taken by the submarine warfare. The ships lost on which the Americans met death are only a fraction of the number sent to the bottom by torpedoes, most of them without warning.

The cases which involve the United States and Germany are primarily those in which American life was lost or endangered. The first American of whom there is record to lose his life in submarine attack, was Leon T. Thresher, a passenger on the British liner Falaba, torpedoed and sunk March 27, 1915, off Milford, Eng. The Falaba, after a hopeless attempt to escape, stopped and while boats were being lowered and passengers still were aboard, the submarine drove a torpedo into her side and she sank in ten minutes. Of 242 persons, 136 were saved.

GULFLIGHT ATTACK.

The first American ship attacked was the Gulflight, an oil tanker, from Port Arthur, Tex., to Rouen, France, torpedoed without warning off the Scilly Islands May 1, 1915. Two men jumped overboard and were drowned. Her captain died of heart failure. The Gulflight did not sink and was towed to port. The German government acknowledged the attack as an accident, expressed its regret and promised to pay damages.

The next attack was the one that shocked the civilized world and brought the United States and Germany for the first time to the verge of war. It was the destruction of the Lusitania on May 7, 1915. Unarmed, with 1257 passengers, of whom 159 were Americans, and a crew of 702, she was torpedoed without warning and sunk in twenty-three minutes off Old Head of Kinsale as she was nearing Liverpool. In all, 1198 lives were lost, of which 124 were Americans, many of them men of national prominence.

Everything pointed to a prearranged German plan to torpedo the ship. The German Embassy had published advertisements warning Americans in veiled terms and at the wharf a number of prominent Americans received telegrams warning them not to sail. It has been charged that the German Ambassador himself knew the liner was to be sunk and that German officials here counted her progress across the ocean day by day and as the hour of her destruction drew near they watched for the extra newspapers, which they knew would announce her destruction. The case passed into diplomatic negotiations, which never took final form.

NEBRASKAN INCIDENT.

Before this case passed from the public mind a German submarine torpedoed another American ship—the Nebraskan, without warning May 25, 1915, south of Fastnet Rock. The Nebraskan's name was painted on her sides in six-feet letters, but her American flag had been hauled down at dark, as is sea custom. The

VARIANCE IN VIEWS OF GERMAN-AMERICAN PR

THE following editorial comment on the diplomatic break has been gathered by the Associated Press:

The Omaha Daily Tribune (German:) On Thursday the Tribune expressed the fear that the German-American citizens might be called to endure the most severe trial in their history, and to empty the bitter cup to the dregs. All too soon these fears seem to be an actual realization. The break with our old fatherland is at hand and on account of questions whose handling by our government sometimes seemed to us not entirely just and in keeping with the best interests of the future of our country.

But we have duties toward our adopted country. Our allegiance belongs to America first, last and all the time. These duties we must perform, and will perform above all considerations and regardless of what the future may have in store for us.

INTERNECINE WARFARE.

Chicago Staats Zeitung: It cannot be doubted that an overwhelming majority of our people stand behind the President in his efforts to keep this country at peace with all the world. But it is doubtful that a majority will indorse giving the German Ambassador his passports at the present time. Let us consider America first, last and all the time. Millions of Americans are bound by blood ties to Europeans who are fighting. Were America to engage in the war on either side, the hearts of millions would be the knowledge that they

Daniels Asks that Congress Grant Him Authority.

To Insure Quick Construction for American Fleet.

Clark Wants to Know Why Work Isn't Hastened.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—To insure quick construction of naval vessels and manufacture of ammunition and equipment for which private plants are under contract, Secretary Daniels today asked Congress for authority to commandeer such plants if necessary and operate them in the public service.

A draft of the proposal sent to the House by the Secretary, was presented by Chairman Padgett of the Naval Committee as an amendment to the annual naval bill, on which debate was just closing. Following closely upon the President's address to Congress, submission of the amendment enlivened discussion of the bill and there were many references to impending developments in connection with the break with Germany.

MR. PADGETT'S VIEWS.

"This is an hour of reflection and serious consideration," said Mr. Padgett. "I address myself to the patriotism and wisdom of the House. There is no partisanship in considering the navy. Under the circumstances, at this time, that sentiment finds cordial expression from every member. This is not the hour to hesitate."

Several Republicans expressed similar sentiments, urging that the naval bill be brought to passage as quickly as possible, as others on both sides of the House, entered objections against the commandeering amendment. Representative Madden, Republican, suggested that it involved the question of taking private property without due compensation, and Representative Fitzgerald, Democrat, said it involved the inviolability of contracts.

CLARK INTERRUPTS.

Speaker Clark interrupted the discussion to ask why warships could not be constructed more rapidly and to urge the Naval Committee to employ every means to speed up building.

Representative Britten announced he had prepared an amendment to appropriate $119,000,000 to hasten completion of 113 warships authorized at previous sessions of Congress and now under construction in government and private shipyards.

General debate was concluded today and detailed consideration of amendments will begin Monday.

Alien Viewpoint.

FOREIGN EDITORS WRITE OPINIONS.

JOURNALISTS OF LOS ANGELES DISCUSS CRISIS.

Italian, Swedish, Japanese, French and Mexican Angles of Vision on the German-American Situation Involve Disparities, but in Main Commend Wilson.

Following are views expressed yesterday by editors of some of Los Angeles' foreign-language newspapers in regard to the German-American crisis:

Prof. G. Andreini, editor La Patria (Italian): When Germany sent its note to the United States it was unavoidable that there should come a break in diplomatic relations, but unless Germany commits some grave overt offense I believe this country would not be justified in going to war with that country, and that it will not take such action unless absolutely forced to do so to preserve its own honor and in the interests of humanity. President Wilson has done his best to preserve neutrality. There are some who have constantly urged that he has had a secret love for England, but I do not believe this. Even were it true I believe the President of the United States would not take a stand that would bring about the sacrifice of many human lives because of this. I think, in reality, he has feared that the great danger to this country lay with England. I believe he has acted with great patriotism and love of his country, and that he will be sustained by the nation.

Alfred Hall, editor California Veckoblad (Swedish): I believe President Wilson has acted too hastily, and that his action may bring about grave results for this country. In my opinion, he should have delayed any such action until there was some overt act on the part of Germany. We should expect the most conservative action from the head of the nation in such perilous times.

H. T. Komai, editor Los Angeles Japanese News, (Rafu Shimpo): As a Japanese journalist, I view the act of President Wilson in severing diplomatic relations with Germany as a forced movement, but patriotic procedure. Should America submit to the declaration of Germany as to its intention for submarine warfare, the honor of the President would be clouded and the rights not only of the American people but of the entire world would be violated. Yet, in spite of the severance of diplomatic relations, there is no overt act on the part of Germany, notwithstanding the President's ultimatum, that should drag America into war. It is to be hoped the act of America will cause Germany to pause and reflect before any such act is committed.

Maurice Fog, editor L'Union Nouvelle (French): It's another case of "a scrap of paper." Germany knows no law nor humanity, and its renewal of frightfulness is now on in earnest. That the Germans feared the loss of their German steamers interned in American waters, in case of conflict, goes without discussion. This was the leading factor in German discussion heretofore. Now the die is cast, and they defy President Wilson without hesitancy, the Teutons will slaughter Americans on the high seas with as little compunction as they show for Swedes.

HOME FOR NEW POLICE CHIEF?

City Hall Rumors Say that Butler may be Supplanted March 1.

Before March 1 there will probably be a change in the office of Chief of Police, according to reports at the City Hall last night. These are to the effect that Chief Butler is to go and that Detective George Home is to be appointed in his place. This rumor could not be confirmed, but it is known that Mayor Woodman considered Home's name at the time that he considered Butler. Home has been suggested by certain interests in the city, but there has been considerable opposition to his appointment. At the same time during the period of Chief Butler's administration it has been the seeming intent of the city administration to indicate that everything that Chief Butler did was in the right direction.

Danes, Spaniards or other of the smaller neutrals.

In French diplomatic circles the present situation has been foreseen for some time. Private dispatches received here have shown that the present events were rapidly approaching, and the action of President Wilson, in view of his previous statements to Germany, is quite in keeping with the status of a great nation such as the United States of America. The affront of the German government, in again voiding its solemn pledges, could have only one reply: "To arms, citizens; maintain the prestige and honor of America!" On my part, as a Frenchman, I welcome the new allies of the United States of America.

Juan de Herra, editor El Heraldo de Mexico (Mexican): The opinion of El Heraldo de Mexico, a weekly published in Spanish, in regard to the actual situation between the United States and Germany is the following:

That although diplomatic relations have been severed, war should not supervene, because the great good sense of the President of this country and that of the Emperor of Germany, and also of the people surrounding them, should apprise them that such a war would conduce to no practical results nor would it be justified in any way, as it would rebound, in whatever form it should terminate, in irreparable prejudice, to the commerce of this country and to the already difficult situation of Germany.

That events have been precipitated and that, without loss of honor by one or the other nation, this disagreeable step might have been avoided.

That the writer has seen with positive satisfaction that in these difficult times the American people has known how to give proof of patriotism, supporting its President with determination, now that things which have happened cannot be avoided.

That as for the foreigners in the United States, their role ought to be that of a mere spectator, attentive always to the laws and respecting in every way the policy this country follows, whatever it may be, lamenting only, within the laws of humanity, that the peril of war threatens a nation in which have been extinguished all hopes that it would be the guide to peace in Europe.

The programme consisted of a series of musical selections and recitations after which the long roll was sounded by Comrade Philo L. Case, who called the boys into action at the battle of Shiloh.

The evening exercises were closed by the singing of America and the 300 people assembled joined in. LEADERS FAVOR WILSON COURSE.

Democrats and Republicans Say He Acted Rightly.

Is Supported by the People, Lodge's Declaration.

Clark Does not Think There will be Any War.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Leaders in Congress, without regard to politics, expressed freely their approval of President Wilson's course, and of his address. Vice-President Marshall said:

"If the President has to deliver the other address he spoke of, you will find the sentiment of the country has crystallized behind him on the address he made today. The American people is an easy-going people, but when it gets its back to the wall, it will fight."

Senator Stone, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee:

"I think there are two things we should do now as far as it is possible—keep our heads level and our mouths closed."

Senator Lodge, ranking Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee:

"I most thoroughly approve and cordially support the President in giving the German Ambassador his passports and in recalling our Ambassador from Berlin. It is the right thing to do and is supported both by the honor and the safety of the American people."

SPEAKER CLARK'S VIEW.

Speaker Clark:

"I do not think there is going to be any war. I do not think the Germans will blow up any of our ships. I think the President stated the conditions exactly."

Republican Leader Mann: "I do not see how the President could do any less. I am glad he did not purpose to do any more."

Senator Kern, Democratic Senate leader:

"I believe the American people are behind the President to a man and Congress certainly is. There is nothing more to be done, of course, until some tangible programme is presented to Congress. The business of Congress now is to await developments."

Senator Gallinger, Republican leader of the Senate:

"Of course if Germany sinks an American ship or takes an American life, we shall have to fight. But we should view the situation calmly, dispassionately and hopefully. The President's message was admirable."

Senator Reed, Democrat:

"There was no alternative for the President. A great nation cannot permit a foreign potentate to mark out the lines through the ocean over which he will graciously permit commerce to be borne. A nation which loses its self-respect will soon lose its independence."

SMOOT APPROVES.

Senator Smoot, Republican:

"I approve the President's position, and believed if the same attitude had been taken by the President a year and a half ago, we would have saved the country a great deal of humiliation and would have been better understood by the other nations of the earth."

Senator Cummins, Republican:

"I entirely approve of the President's course. I do not see how he could have done anything else in view of the American position. Whether war comes, depends, of course, on whether Germany carries out her threat. I agree with the President in the belief that Germany will not go that far."

Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the Senate Military Committee:

"The President has done all that could be done. Now it is up to Germany."

Senator Brandegee, Repuublican:

"I approve the recall of Ambassador Gerard from Berlin and the dismissal of the German Ambassador from this country. The administration would have stultified itself if it had failed to sever diplomatic relations."

Senator Weeks, Republican:

"I think it is the best address the President ever made. He could not say any more and he could not say less."

FLOOD EXPECTS WAR.

Chairman Flood of the House Foreign Affairs Committee evidently expected the chances of avoiding war were remote.

"If an American ship is sunk by a German submarine," said he, "it will be followed immediately by a declaration of war by Congress."

The news of the break was received in the House as the naval bill was being considered.

Some of the pacifist element, headed by Representatibe Callaway of Texas, decried the possibilities of the United States being drawn into the war.

"I can't conceive that we should go into the war over a little zone around Great Britain," said Callaway.

Republican Leader Mann admonished the speakers to "keep cool" and hear what the President had to say.

"Now we must look out for something like Dewey at Manila," remarked Senator Sheppard of Texas.

"The President has done the only thing that any self-respecting nation could do," said Senator Reed of Missouri.

"I approve the President's action," said Senator Poindexter, Republican. "I think the country will unitedly support it. It was the only thing to do."

"We have to show our virility as a nation," asserted Senator Saulsbury, Democrat. "Any other course would merely be a postponement of what we are doing now."

FOR UNPAID TAXES.

Government Suit Filed is Against Defunct Company and Others, on Ground There was Shortage in Payments of Imposts.

An action was filed in the United States District Court yesterday by Assistant United States District Attorney Palmer, asking a judgment of $13,538.95 against the Los Angeles Farming and Milling Company, J. B. Lankershim and Susannah H. Van Nuys, for alleged shortage in taxes due under the Federal law levying imposts on the capital stock of corporations, during the years 1909-10-11. It is said the corporation forfeited its charter in 1914.

Among the allegations is the charge that the returns of business transacted by the company in 1909 showed a total of but $360,583.09, when the true amount should have been given as $393,073.12; that in 1910 the return was $448,136.43, when it should have been $1,769,382.19; and in 1911, the return was given as $49,172.21, when it should have been $49,321.24.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated, or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore, it cannot salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

"Meet Me On the Third Floor"

MY PRE-INVENTORY GENUINE SACRIFICE of MEN'S SUITS

TAILORED TO MEASURE

STARTS MONDAY MORNING at 8 O'CLOCK

Business is usually a cold proposition—a concrete application of the evolutionary rule—the "survival of the fittest." A backward merchant may defy the demands of competition, yet keep aglow the spark of life in a small concern; but no big business, such as my UPSTAIRS tailoring shop, can be kept alive on any other lines than the constant anticipation of conditions and perpetual improvement. My Pre-Inventory Sales are to prevent the accumulation of short lengths of woolens and to make room for new designs of the next season.

Men—I Use Plain English!

I wish to make my offer is this sale so clear that there will be no possible loophole for a misunderstanding.

If you question my ability to produce all that I promise, I will gladly put my time against yours in a rigid test, and if the clothes I make don't excel your expectations, you needn't pay me a cent.

You may go to any tailor in Los Angeles and get a sample of any $22.50 or $25.00 Suit and bring it to me. I will produce the same grade of woolen and the identical pattern—use the same kind of linings and trimmings, and employ the same high-grade tailoring—and make a Suit to your order at $14.00, or I will cheerfully refund your deposit if you decide I have failed to make good in every way.

Isn't this a fair, open and shut proposition? Can you figure out any chance of your losing anything by it?

All Short Ends Regardless of Regular Prices

Men—This week you can save about half on a faultlessly tailored suit, and select a pattern from an almost endless assortment of the finest woolens ever shown here. In a sale of this kind, just before stock-taking I make it a point to clear out all short ends of woolen goods—particularly fabrics of which there is left only enough for a single suit. Hundreds of yards of the woolens to be sacrificed in this $14 sale were selected for my $27.50 and $30.00 suits, but I can't bother with "short ends," so out they go at $14.00—Suit, Made to Order.

Water Never Ran Up a Hill

—and men would not easily go up to the third floor of an ordinary office building in such numbers to have clothes made that, in ten years, I have built up one of the largest custom tailoring establishments on the Pacific Coast. There must be real merit behind any proposition to accomplish such results. And yet the explanation is as simple as A, B, C; my ridiculously low rent and minimum expense plan of doing business have enabled me to produce tailoring values absolutely impossible under ordinary conditions.

In the suits I offer this week at $14 I will incorporate the same standard workmanship which has made my shop famous in this city. I will exercise the same care in designing and cutting your Suit—use the same linings and trimmings and guarantee an absolutely perfect fit. Every phase of the transaction will be the same as if you paid every cent of the regular price.

ARIZONA BOARD NOMINATIONS.

Campbell's Selections go to Special Committee.

Democrats Trying to Hold on to Their Jobs.

Gubernatorial Recount Shows Gains for Hunt.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, Feb. 3.—Nominations by Gov. Campbell of Doane Merrill for secretary of the Board of Control, George Smalley for State examiner and J. A. Johnson and Frank P. Moore for live-stock commissioners were referred in Senate to the special committee of Devine, Windsor and Whipple.

The anti-Mexican labor bill was finally killed, only Roberts, Kinney and Windsor voting for the measure.

New bills: By Roberts, demanding two years of high school work for admission to State Normals; by Butter, two bills amending laws concerning selection of election boards and on canvassing election results.

The Presidential resolution was adopted; the Senate also adopted a concurrent resolution passed several days ago by the House, though it did not exactly fit, having in it congratulations to the President over his success in keeping America out of war.

SQUABBLE OVER PLACES.

While Rudolph Kuchler has been accepted as a member of the State Tax Commission, it is told that this has been done because the appointment by Campbell was to fill a vacancy in the term of an elected officer (Campbell himself,) something with which the Legislature has nothing to do, and an office over which the Senate has no rights of confirmation. It may be different with the State examiner, secretary of the Board of Control and members of the Live-stock Sanitary Board, all of whom are subject to confirmation by the Senate. So there is a rumor that the Democrats in those offices propose to protest their dismissal by Campbell till their successors are confirmed. The names all went to the Senate today and there is some Democratic hope that confirmation might be held up indefinitely.

In the House has been received a letter from I. Colodny, an instructor in the English department of the University of Arizona, dismissed last month for something that has been described as "pernicious civic activity." He asks the Legislature to investigate how a man with a contract to teach for a school year can be discharged in the middle of the term. The university happens to have a special statute in this regard giving its regents full power to remove when deemed best for the interests of the institution.

In consideration of Whipple's Senate bill denying the stores of mining companies any rights over the pay of the company's employees was brought out news of a plan of the Calumet and Arizona Mining Company to establish at Ajo a store in which its employees may purchase goods at cost and upon what will be a co-operative basis.

GAINS FOR HUNT.

The gubernatorial recount thus far has shown gains for Hunt, who is about forty votes ahead of the point where he started. Judge Stanford has made a number of rulings that are at variance with the contentions of the Campbell attorneys, who have represented to the judge that his interpretations of the will of the voter and the letter of the law do not agree with their own ideas of consistency. At the same time it is appreciated that the various forms of unusual or defective ballots are most confusing, daily bringing up new features that must be passed upon by the court.

The Campbell side of the controversy is far from cast down by the initial results of the count. The precincts that are being counted are those upon which the Hunt attorneys have placed their main dependence and have been selected by them for early counting. Farther along are a number of precincts that are expected to swing the pendulum very much the other way.

Possibly the most important ruling is that in which Judge Stanford has refused to count the vote for Governor on tickets that had been marked as straight Democratic, with a cross over to the Republican column, where a cross was placed opposite the name of Campbell. About twenty-five such ballots were cast in Maricopa county and many more elsewhere in the State. This loss, however, is expected to be balanced by a Hunt loss of many "cross-overs" from the Socialist column, as about 1500 Socialist votes were cast for the Democratic nominee.

CAMPBELL HOPEFUL.

Gov. Hunt has been seen but little since he left the capitol. He is represented publicly by a "Trustee for Gov. Hunt's Contest Fund," understood to be his private secretary, Leroy Ladd, with Homer Wood of Yavapai county and Mulford Winsor of Yuma county as advisers. The Trustee has taken space in a morning paper, at a cost of $17 a day, to secure publicity for the Hunt side, which has journalistic support only in two of the weeklies of this county.

Gov. Campbell holds daily receptions in the executive chambers, where business proceeds with its accustomed regularity. Despite possibility of a charge in present conditions, the de facto executive seems the calmest and most unconcerned of all the Republicans now around the State house. He is convinced personally that success in the recount is sure and that he will be shown as the choice of the voters of Arizona.

One feature of the post-campaign lies in the fact that bets, said to aggregate about $50,000, still are unpaid, covering the question of the governorship. In the same line are heavy wagers that have been placed, in Cochise county particularly, at even money, on the result of the pending contest.

The date of the contest's completion cannot be determined by any data thus far gained in the Superior Court. Democratic claims are made that the Republican attorneys deliberately are prolonging the agony, so that a Republican Governor may sit during the entire two months of the legislative session. The Republican answer is that Attorney Ives, for Hunt, has tried to rush matters, wholly with a view to the interests of his client, in reality not for the benefit of a correct determination of the issue.

A number of suggestions have been made that might hurry up the count, but none that have been accepted. Judge Stanford has suggested appointment of a referee for his own assistance.

CORPORATION'S FIGHT.

A conclusion has been reached on the Corporation Commission hearing of the application of the Arizona Hercules Mining Company against the Ray and Gila Valley Railroad Company, and the matter will be submitted on briefs, with a prospect that these preliminary features will consume about fifty days more. The case has consumed nearly a week of time in its hearing. It is sought to compel the railroad company to build and operate a bridge across Mineral Creek, at Ray, and several miles of tracks to the Ray mines of the applicant and to the site of a mill to be built near Kelvin, or Ray Junction, near the line of the Arizona Eastern Railroad. Applicant's experts have given the cost of this work at $38,000 for the mine track, and $153,000 for the mill spur. The railroad's attorneys insist the real cost would be nearer $300,000. Funds are to be provided by the mining company, which asks repayment later in the profits made by the railroad in the transportation of ore between mine and mill, about eight miles, most of the distance on trackage already operated. At the mine it is told that over $400,000 has been spent in the development of about 3,000,000 tons of ore, that is to be milled in the new concentrator, on which $1,000,000 is to be spent.

The contesting railroad company expresses willingness to make connection with any spurs or tracks that the Hercules may build and to handle the ores delivered to it, but its attorneys stood fast upon a contention that the Corporation Commission had no legal right to make the order sought. A determination to this effect is said to have been made already in California, where there is a corresponding public service commission.

MANY POINTS INVOLVED.

It was claimed that the line proposed would not be profitable, that it would take a long time to pay for, and that there could be no determination of the life of the mine and the corresponding period of freight traffic. Specifically it was denied that the railroad company could be compelled to build outside of its own right of way. That the railroad does a very fair business already was brought out in a showing that it had had, in 1916, earnings of $548,473 and a net profit over operation of $348,704, though it appears that no dividends were declared.

JAPANESE PARTY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FULLERTON, Feb. 3.—One of the unique entertainments of the week was the Japanese party given Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. F. Vine on E. Amerige avenue. Games were played in Japanese fashion and afterward Mrs. G. Wilkins gave several mandolin selections. The hostess served a dainty repast.

MOTHER! LOOK AT YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE

Give "California Syrup of Figs" If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Constipated—They Love It.

Watch Children Now! Guard Against Colds, Grippe, Sore Throat and Sickness by Keeping Liver and Bowels Free from Poisons.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which becomes clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother; if coated or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has the grippe, or a sore throat of any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrup. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. See that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't merely ask for Syrup of Figs, but ask for "California Syrup of Figs." Remember, California.

NEWSPAPER MEN TELL OF LEAK.

Admit Sending Information to the Hutton Firm.

Bolling in Tears for Weeks, Operator Testifies.

Urged to Tell the Truth to Congress Committee.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Two Washington newspaper men, J. Fred Essary, head of the Baltimore Sun bureau, and W. W. Price, White House correspondent of the Washington Star, admitted at the "leak" inquiry, today, that on December 20 last they supplied advance forecasts of President Wilson's peace note, December 21, which eventually found their way to the office of E. F. Hutton and Company, New York brokers.

Essary swore that it was solely through friendship for F. A. Connolly, a Washington broker and partner of R. W. Bolling, a brother-in-law of President Wilson, and without financial gain that he prepared the telegram that Connolly previously testified he wrote and sent to the Hutton house over his private wire. Such information as the message contained, Essary said, he gained from conversations with other newspaper men and deductions he made from his knowledge of the international situation. He added that he was not one of the group of correspondents confidentially advised by Secretary Lansing that the note was coming.

PRICE'S TESTIMONY.

Price said he sent two messages to Chicago brokers, Frederick A. Aldrich and Findlay, Barrell and Company, telling them he understood Secretary Lansing was about to issue a statement touching on peace. He said he was regularly employed to furnish such information. They both went to the same address at the office of Clement, Curtis and Company, brokers of Chicago, and less than an hour later a message signed "Clement" and using much of Price's language, was received by the Hutton offices in New York. Price insisted that his messages were based on information he had received from other reporters which he did not consider confidential and his own interpretation of the situation.

George A. Ellis, Jr., a member of the Hutton firm, supplemented the testimony of both Essary and Price. He wrote the "warning" message sent broadcast to Hutton's correspondents, which he based, it now develops, on Essary's information.

With tears in his eyes, Edwin A. Roper, telegraph operator for Connolly, to whom Essary handed the forecast of the note, told today how Bolling had pleaded with him to tell the truth and set him right before the country. Bolling did not know the source of the note, he said, until within a few days.

BOLLING IN TEARS.

"For two weeks," said Roper, "Bolling was in tears. He said the public looked at him as though his sister had violated the confidence of the President. I have been wanting to come here, but I did not want to put Essary in wrong. Several times I started but I turned back. Then, yesterday, Bolling implored me again to come up and tell the truth, you subpoenaed me, and here I am. When I left the office today Bolling said, 'God bless you.'"

Essary testified that he had known Connolly for years, had an office near him in a downtown building and was trying to help him all he could by giving him his opinions on public matters which might interest him.

The committee will continue its investigation on Monday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Two Washington newspaper men, J. Fred Essary, head of the Baltimore Sun bureau, and W. W. Price, White House correspondent of the Washington Star, admitted at the "leak" inquiry, today, that on December 20 last they supplied advance forecasts of President Wilson's peace note, December 21, which eventually found their way to the office of E. F. Hutton and Company, New York brokers.

Essary swore that it was solely through friendship for F. A. Connolly, a Washington broker and partner of R. W. Bolling, a brother-in-law of President Wilson, and without financial gain that he prepared the telegram that Connolly previously testified he wrote and sent to the Hutton house over his private wire. Such information as the message contained, Essary said, he gained from conversations with other newspaper men and deductions he made from his knowledge of the international situation. He added that he was not one of the group of correspondents confidentially advised by Secretary Lansing that the note was coming.

PRICE'S TESTIMONY.

Price said he sent two messages to Chicago brokers, Frederick A. Aldrich and Findlay, Barrell and Company, telling them he understood Secretary Lansing was about to issue a statement touching on peace. He said he was regularly employed to furnish such information. They both went to the same address at the office of Clement, Curtis and Company, brokers of Chicago, and less than an hour later a message signed "Clement" and using much of Price's language, was received by the Hutton offices in New York. Price insisted that his messages were based on information he had received from other reporters which he did not consider confidential and his own interpretation of the situation.

George A. Ellis, Jr., a member of the Hutton firm, supplemented the testimony of both Essary and Price. He wrote the "warning" message sent broadcast to Hutton's correspondents, which he based, it now develops, on Essary's information.

With tears in his eyes, Edwin A. Roper, telegraph operator for Connolly, to whom Essary handed the forecast of the note, told today how Bolling had pleaded with him to tell the truth and set him right before the country. Bolling did not know the source of the note, he said, until within a few days.

BOLLING IN TEARS.

"For two weeks," said Roper, "Bolling was in tears. He said the public looked at him as though his sister had violated the confidence of the President. I have been wanting to come here, but I did not want to put Essary in wrong. Several times I started but I turned back. Then, yesterday, Bolling implored me again to come up and tell the truth, you subpoenaed me, and here I am. When I left the office today Bolling said, 'God bless you.' "

Essary testified that he had known Connolly for years, had an office near him in a downtown building and was trying to help him all he could by giving him his opinions on public matters which might interest him.

The committee will continue its investigation on Monday.

NO LONGER HANDLE GERMAN INTERESTS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—American Ambassador, Ministers and Consular representatives in England, France, Russia, Japan, Rumania, Serbia, Greece, Egypt and Morocco were today instructed by the State Department to suspend all activities in relation to the German interests which they have taken over, and to await information to be conveyed through some neutral government as to whom Germany wishes these interests entrusted.

Thus comes to an end the great humanitarian work the United States has been doing in caring for German prisoners in those countries, as well as the practical task of handling Germany's diplomatic interests.

SAYS ENGINE WAS RUNNING WILD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Feb. 3.—The Salt Lake engine which turned over in Cajon Pass late last night, killing Fireman John Davis and injuring Engineer J. E. Dalzell, was a runaway, according to statement of Dalzell tonight. Descending the grade, one of the pipes leading from the air reservoir broke and the speed of the engine could not be arrested by air.

Knowing they were powerless to stop the locomotive, which was racing down the grade, Dalzell and Davis climbed out on the rear of the tank car and clung on the rods, awaiting a chance to jump. At the curve on the Blue Cut the engine left the tracks. Davis was thrown against the embankment and killed. Dalzell sustained a broken arm. He secured the signals and flagged the oncoming Missionary westbound Santa Fe passenger train.

SWIFT STEPS TO GUARD SUBMARINES AND FORT.

WITH receipt of news of the break with Germany, immediate and energetic steps were taken yesterday at Los Angeles Harbor and Long Beach to safeguard government enterprises and property.

Capt. A. H. Archer, in direct charge of the construction work at Fort MacArthur, received orders from Washington to close the site to all visitors, and announced no permits of any kind to visit the fort will be issued until further notice. The strength of the guard around the site will be doubled.

Lieut. R. W. Holt, temporarily in command of the submarines H-1 and H-2, which are now stationed at the harbor, received code messages from Washington, but did not divulge their contents.

The only other naval vessel now stationed at this port is the torpedo boat Farragut, in reserve as a training ship for naval militia.

At Long Beach officials of the California Shipbuilding Company doubled the number of guards around their plant, where six government vessels—five submarines and a lighthouse tender—are under construction. All visitors were barred from the premises.

Two submarines, L-6 and L-7, that cost $560,000 each, were launched recently and are now nearly ready for service. The lighthouse tender Cedar, also recently launched and to be used in the Alaskan coast service, to convey supplies to the lighthouse bases, and occasionally make journeys to islands off Alaska, where Uncle Sam maintains fishery bureaus, is ready for her boilers, which are expected from the north next week.

The California Shipbuilding Company will rush the work on the three O-type submarines, the O-14, O-15 and O-16, which are now about 40 per cent. complete.

In addition to placing extra guards from his own force about the plant, General Manager W. C. Foley has requested Public Safety Commissioner Williams of Long Beach to safeguard the plant and government vessels from the outside.

These steps were taken in compliance with orders received from the United States War Department yesterday—general orders issued to all shipbuilding plants where government vessels are under construction to take every precaution to guard the ships against spies and cranks.

Because of the recent union-labor trouble in Long Beach and on account of the menacing union pickets that still loaf around outside the fence of the Long Beach ship plant, special precautions are deemed necessary. The police have been requested to disperse the agitating idlers that loiter around the ship yards.

Armed guards are watching the "one-man" submarine just completed by Milo J. Trumble of Los Angeles, who took his craft to Long Beach yesterday for launching. Mr. Trumble declared someone maliciously scuttled his former undersea craft, launched and tried out at Naples. Whoever destroyed the boat bored a hole in the hull just underneath the engine, sinking the craft and causing considerable damage.

The new craft is said to be capable of thirty-five knots an hour submerged. It is twenty-five feet long and seven deep. Mr. Trumble, president of the Trumble Refining Company of Los Angeles, will launch the boat in a few days at Naples.

PROJECT OF AMERICAN DISTASTEFUL IN PEKING.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

PEKING, Feb. 3.—A New York dispatch to the newspaper Asahi Shimbun of Tokio, printed at Tokio on January 28 and reprinted at Peking, saying that Willard D. Straight, in behalf of the American International Corporation, and Vice-President Eijiro Ono of the Industrial Bank of Japan, are negotiating for the reconstruction of the Grand Canal, jointly by American and Japanese capitalists, has caused much comment.

The Peking Gazette denounces the rumored copy as a Japanese attempt to fortify Japan's claims to the German provinces, saying "We warn Willard Straight that the inevitable result of an attempt by Americans to co-operate with the Japanese in China will be that they will be grouped in the same category with the Japanese."

VIEW OF STRAIGHT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Willard D. Straight said here today that there has been some discussion here looking to the bringing about of co-operation between American and Japanese capital in the Grand Canal reconstruction project, but that nothing has come of it yet. He would not discuss how far the matter had gone, saying that due announcement would be made if any definite arrangements were reached.

POLITICS

The American Game.

THE WATCHMAN.

END OF CURRENT POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

Despite rumors to the contrary, it is quite certain that Gov. Johnson is going to relinquish his fat job at an early date, don the United States Senatorial togs and leave the State machine in the hands of the Lieutenant-Governor and others who have been good dogs during his six years of misrule in California. The Governor's pet sheet in Sacramento has been publishing yards of arguments in support of its contention that High Ram should remain at the helm indefinitely, that there would be no reason in his giving up to Stephens unless an extra session of Congress be called. It sounded fine to the Governor and he has been on the fence for weeks; but yesterday the news came from the local Progressive stronghold that their former chief has a lot of nerve, but not enough to hog the two biggest jobs in the hands of the people. He has decided to surrender the Governorship soon and hie for Washington.

Lieut.-Gov. Stephens is proving himself to be a reactionary soldier. He has taken orders on all questions that may be expected to have an effect upon the future in Progressive politics and upon his own candidacy to succeed himself. Ham Lewis, the national whip, has nothing on "our own" soon-to-be Governor when it comes to working in harmonious accord with past policies of the party that cheated him out of re-election to Congress and prepared the way to perpetuate his career in State politics.

The long-threatened break in the Progressive camp has materialized. It bids fair to split the State, with northern Progressives lined up solidly against those of the south. Neither side is making any bones about it. In the north they say, "We will carry out the policies of Johnson." In the south they say, "Johnson has held the power too long; he is going to Washington and we have at last got a chance to get complete control especially with Stephens at the helm." During the first session of the Legislature, which closed a week ago, the bitterness of some of the southern Progressives toward Johnson came to the surface and it is growing stronger each day. State Senator W. E. Brown was one of the first to leave the machine gang. He defiantly slapped the Governor over that Weinstock affair and he has no intention of relenting in his attitude. Marshal Stimson said yesterday that there is no truth in the report that he is not on the Governor's calling list, but his friends say it is all true. "I had a fine chat with the Governor just the other day," Mr. Stimson said. He did not say, however, who did most of the chatting or what it was about. Some of the wise ones say Mr. Stimson was pointing out the possibilities of the machine strength dwindling unless northern Progressives unite with the south behind Stephens for Governor. Johnson, of course, never was for Stephens and if he has any influence after he leaves Sacramento all of it will go for Mayor Rolph of San Francisco. Even the southern Progressives have had quite enough of the patronage stuff that is handed out to northerners and they will insist that the new Governor be from the south in reality as well as in name.

The upshot of the squabble in the Progressive ranks will be the election of a regular Governor, a big, representative Republican, upon whom both the north and south can agree. Right now it looks as if the choice will be a northerner, a man highly connected with the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, but he will not be obnoxious to the south because he is a man—not a renegade such as the Progressive party has a penchant for developing.

If publicity is good for a politician, State Senator Rominger of Long Beach is a lucky fellow. When a representative of William Randolph Hearst went to Sacramento a few weeks ago with a 10 per cent. alcohol bill in his pocket he is said to have called upon some forty or more Assemblymen and Senators with the plea that any one of them be sponsor for the measure. They were afraid of it and turned him down on every hand. Finally he met Mr. Rominger and got the ball a-rolling. The Hearst publications have been printing reams about it and, of course, the State Senator has had his name in the head lines almost every day; but what will it all amount to? Local Assemblymen say the bill has no chance, that the people of California last November expressed their will in a most decisive manner on the prohibition question and their servants in the Legislature are not going to defy that will. They believe that if the measure should be framed to permit the sale of all California wines and beer, it might carry; but any attempt to curtail the wine and grape industry, one of the largest assets the State has, will be defeated by an overwhelming majority.

Among the long list of possible candidates for Mayor, the name of Boyle Workman, former member of the Board of Public Service, banker and son of one of the pioneer chief executives, has been mentioned frequently during the past week. Mr. Workman is well known, has a lot of friends and no doubt could gather a large number of votes, but he is in the category which includes all of the others who would unseat Mayor Woodman. The incumbent is looked upon in every quarter as impregnable and it is hard to imagine anything he could do between now and the primaries to keep him from being elected. Owen McAleer, member of the Board of Public Works, former Mayor and wise politician, keeps his hat in the ring and no doubt will go to the primaries, but his best friends believe this would be an off year for him.

Mark Jones, who made a strong fight against Supervisor Norton last November, will probably be a candidate for the Council. He says the matter has been placed before him by a large number of friends and he may consent to run.

Dr. Glen McWilliams, the very efficient secretary to Mayor Woodman, is being importuned by many to try for the Council. He has a big following among the church folks and is popular with the liberals. As a result he might be a formidable candidate.

Assemblyman Bert Farmer will be a candidate for the Council if he has the time to make a campaign. He slipped into the Legislature in a walk and if he is a repeater no doubt could be one of the lucky fifteen next June.

While Councilman Bob Brain will not conform the rumor that he will resign to take up the agency of an automobile concern it is said there is no question about his refusal to be a candidate for re-election. One term was enough, he is reported to have said.

BRIGHT REPORT BY UNION OIL.

Great Gain in Earnings and Business Status Shown.

And Outlook for New Year is Pronounced Promising.

Gives Striking Evidence of Petroleum Prosperity.

No more striking evidence of the unprecedented prosperity of the oil industry in this State during the past year has been offered than the report of the earnings of the Union Oil Company. The net profit of this big oil concern, after deducting depreciation charges, was $7,224,564, or 21 1-4 per cent. on the capital stock of $35,000,000, compared with $2,819,129 in 1915, or 8 1-4 per cent., according to the annual statement of the company, mailed to stockholders yesterday. The increase in the net profit over the previous year thus amounts to nearly $4,500,000.

While a considerable portion of the gain rests on the improvement in the big oil company's marketing facilities, larger production, etc., the main cause is the excellent prices that prevailed during the year for oil. In closing their report, W. L. Stewart, president, and R. D. Matthews, comptroller of the company, state: "It may be remarked that the California oil industry has recovered from the long depression prevailing up to the fall of 1915, when the increasing demand and diminished available supply forced prices upward, the company having enjoyed its full share of the benefits accruing. We have had a remarkably successful year; our values have been conserved and enhanced, our sales and profits were the largest in our history, our business position in the oil industry of the State is decidedly satisfactory, and our present current financial position is the strongest we have known, giving us a substantial credit reserve available as occasion demands.

AND FINE OUTLOOK.

"The outlook for the year 1917 is very promising, the existing prosperity of the oil business in this State being assured, we believe, for some time to come, and the fulfillment of the plans your board have in mind will fully safeguard our business, and the requirements of our natural growth."

Further facts stated in the report are as follows:

The production of the company last year showed an increase of 1,379,896 barrels, or 26 per cent., over 1915. This production with regular purchases and agency deliveries approximates 19,600,000 net barrels, or a control of 22 per cent. of the 90,000,000 net barrels of marketable oil produced in the State. The production of the State was slightly larger than in the previous year but wholly insufficient to meet the unprecedented demand for petroleum.

Sales of the Union Oil Company for the year amounted to $27,745,009, an increase of $8496,866, or 44 per cent., over 1915. The value of the fuel business increased 36 per cent. and refined and lubricating business, 57 per cent., the export trade showing a remarkable growth. Better prices for the refined products of the company prevailed during the year and are steadily increasing as the consumption continues to exceed output.

KEEPS STOCKS UP.

Deliveries of fuel oil have been large and the State's stocks were depleted by about 12,300,000 barrels, but the Union's production and purchases have enabled the company to enter 1917 with more crude oil in storage than was carried at the commencement of 1916

The controlled companies' profits combined show a marked increase over 1915 and prior years. Following are the companies and the percentages of net profit after deducting depreciation to the respective issued capital stocks: Producers' Transportation Company, 27½ per cent.; Lake View Oil Company, 1 per cent.; Claremont Oil Company, 52 1-4 per cent.; Newlove Oil Company, 1 1-4 per cent.; Union Tool Company, 52 per cent.; Southern California Iron and Steel Company, 52 1-4 per cent.; and percentage of loss to issued capital stock of California Coast Oil Company, 12 per cent., and Outer Harbor Dock and Wharf Company, 6 per cent. The percentage of profit indicated for the Newlove Oil Company and loss for the California Coast Oil Company is after deducting heavy provisions for exhaustion of territory.

NIGHT SCHOOLS TO GIVE NEW COURSES.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTION FOR FOREIGNERS.

American History, English and Civics will be Offered to Aliens and Others Wishing to Qualify for Citizenship Tests Before the Federal Courts.

Special courses in English, civics and American history are offered by the Los Angeles night schools to foreigners and others who wish to qualify for the citizenship tests before the Federal courts. The new term opens this month. The Board of Education, Supt. Shiels, the women's clubs and the paent-teacher associations are making special efforts to interest as many as possible.

Many large business firms of the city are inserting notices in the pay envelopes of their employees telling them of the course, the opportunities offered and the location of the schools. Among these are the Black Diamond Coal Company, the Southern Pacific shops and the Cudahy Packing Company.

Diplomas stating that the applicant has passed the course in citizenship are accepted in the courts in lieu of an examination.

Federal and State immigration authorities are interested in the outcome of the night school plan. Following are the schools offering night work:

Alpine, Centennial street; Amelia, Jackson street; Ann, Magdalena avenue; Belvidere, First and Rowan streets; Bridge, Echandia street; Castelar, College street; Cornwall, Sheridan street; First street, near Saratoga street; Fourteenth street, near Naomi and Ivy streets; Grand, Eighth street; Los Angeles High School, North Hill and Fort Moore streets; Macy, Avalon street; McKinley avenue, between Vernon and Forty-fifth streets; Olive, between Fourth and Fifth streets; Rosemont, Temple street; Utah, Kearney street.

A Shameful Chapter.

THEIR PRIDE TRAMPLED IN THE DIRT, PERSHING'S MEN RETURN.

The Humiliation Forced Upon the So-called "Punitive Expedition" Forms an Extraordinary Chapter of American History—A President who Got "Fighting Mad" but was Not Mad Enough to Fight—Army will Never Forget Insults.

BY HARRY CARR.

THE soldiers of Pershing's punitive expedition must have felt like bowing their heads in shame as they came back across the line.

Behind them in Mexico they left the most extraordinary chapter of the military history of the United States.

Except in the senile days of various empires that were about to break up, nothing like this astonishing military foray ever happened in the history of any great nation.

The pedigree of this remarkable event must be traced back to Vera Cruz, the whole history of which has never been told, and probably never will be told.

Francisco I. Madero, who replaced Porfirio Diaz as President of Mexico, was a tool in the hands of certain Mexican and American interests. He was a sentimentalist, with undeniable symptoms of a clouded mind. Those who had interviews of state with him say that he would often jump up in the middle of the conference and run over into a corner of his office to talk to the spirits. At other times he would run around and around the room like an agitated chicken.

A STRONG MAN.

He was killed, and Victoriano Huerta took his place. Gen. Huerta was a soldier with Indian blood in his veins. He was a strong, determined character. Gossips said he had the Indian's fondness for fire-water.

One of the agents sent by this government to investigate Mexican conditions reported to the White House that Gen. Huerta, in the morning hours, was a sage, judicious, capable statesman and soldier. In the afternoons, he was a tipsy Indian with the Indian's vagaries.

President Wilson assigned various reasons for his refusal to recognize Gen. Huerta as head of the Mexican government. A woman's tears probably had a lot to do with the momentous decision.

Shortly after the assassination of Madero, the widow went to Washington and secured an interview with President Wilson. She told him the story of the murder of her husband, and, in the midst of the recital fainted at his feet. In a flood of pity, Mr. Wilson impulsively made the decision that resulted in an searing chapter of history.

This is one of the curious traits of the character of Mr. Wilson. He looks to be always as cool as a pickle. But his record has been a series of passionate decisions, made out of a hot heart; then a subsequent series of squirming out of his own words and threats. He leaps up; then he climbs laboriously and timidly down.

It was not "feasible" to announce to the world that the United States government refused to allow Gen. Huerta to be President of Mexico because Mrs. Madero cried.

Mr. Wilson is an opportunist, and he did not have to wait long for an opportunity. An affront was offered to a boat's crew landed from one of our warships in Mexican waters. Mr. Wilson promptly demanded reparation and a salute to the flag. Gen. Huerta disavowed the action of the offending Mexican army officers concerned, but he refused to salute the American flag unless the American warships would fire an answering salute to the Mexican flag.

A LITTLE WAR.

Out of this incident developed the little war that ended in the capture of Vera Cruz by an American expeditionary force. At least this is what the President told the United States Senate when he asked for authority to invade the soil of a friendly nation. It afterward developed that the President's real purpose was to prevent the landing of German ammunition for the Huerta forces. The mystery of the Vera Cruz incident has never been completely cleared up.

Unable to resist the strength of the United States government, Gen. Huerta had to go. With him went all order, all discipline and practically all national government.

Then the drama of tragic absurdity began. At first, as partners; then as rivals, the government of Mexico—what little of government there was—fell into the hands of Carranza and Villa.

Carranza was a small-bore politician and country lawyer from one of the provinces of Northern Mexico. Villa was as bloodthirsty a bandit as ever slit a throat or raped a woman.

A great deal of rubbish has been written about Villa. The truth is, Villa is an extraordinarily forceful character, of untempered violence and some natural ability. The stories about his Napoleonic military genius are mostly moonshine manufactured by yellow journalists. Villa is an Indian; there have been many other Indians of greater ability. Villa lacks the military genius of Geronimo and the fine qualities of character that earned respect for Quanah Parker, the great Comanche.

Mr. Wilson swallowed the hero talk about Villa; virtually recognized him, and then found that he had given the support of this government to a blood-glutton, who killed men as he did grasshoppers; who ravished women and tortured helpless citizens for their money; who kept an officer on his staff—the monstrous Maj. Ferro—who killed men just for fun, who stood a row of men up against a wall and killed them, one by one, until his extended arm became so tired he could no longer hold a revolver.

THE COLUMBUS AFFAIR.

Then with a sudden caprice, and without warning, the President turned against Villa and gave permission to Carranza to ship a body of troops through the United States, secretly reinforcing a garrison that Villa was about to attack. This was at Agua Prieta—Villa's Waterloo.

Defeated, as he believed, by the treachery of the United States government, Villa burned for revenge. On the night of the 9th of last March he stole up through a gulch at the head of a small army of guerrilla fighters and attacked the little town of Columbus, slaughtering sixteen men, women and children.

There is a chapter of inside history told in connection with this raid. Shortly before the Columbus raid, an enterprising reporter at El Paso managed to get word to Villa that he would like to interview him. He promised a great article that would present Pancho's wrongs to the American people and to the world. Pancho is as fond of seeing his name in the papers as a hound pup is fond of liver. So he sent word back that he accepted the appointment. It was agreed between them that Pancho and the reporter should come to Columbus as a neutral meeting place.

While he was on the way to the tryst, some unfortunate Mexicans were burned to death in the jail at El Paso. Pancho heard of this, and his hatred of the Gringo simply boiled over.

The attack on Columbus was cruel and ferocious. Peaceful citizens were shot and beaten to death as they rushed to their doors to see what caused the tumult in the night. The town was garrisoned by a detachment of the Thirteenth Cavalry, in command of Col. H. J. Slocum. In some manner, never completely accounted for as far as the public is concerned, the soldiers were taken completely by surprise. But they rallied in the darkness and fought a good fight.

Villa's roster was found some time thereafter. It showed that he went into Columbus with 583 men and retreated with 293.

Out of the wave of rage that swept over the country came the Pershing expedition. It was a punitive invasion. Pershing received the somewhat melodramatic instructions from the White House to "Get Villa, dead or alive."

THE PUNITIVE EXPEDITION.

In the opinion of many well-posted army men, it would have been possible to have taken Villa had the authorities in Washington rushed troops over from Fort Bliss. They could have been on the trail in ten or twelve hours.

At a subsequent raid at one of the little border towns this plan was followed. Two troops of cavalry, in command of Maj. (now Lieut.-Col.) Langhorne, went tearing across the line in red-hot pursuit. When the horses began to give out, Maj. Langhorne selected a detachment from the horses that seemed to be strongest. They went on until these gave out. There were four or five automobiles with the expedition. Maj. Langhorne abandoned all the horses, took these motor cars, and rushed on. One by one the motor cars gave out. At the end of the raid, Maj. Langhorne was standing in the tonneau of a wrecked automobile shooting with an automatic revolver at the fleeing bandits. Meanwhile he had recaptured the prisoners whom the bandits had carried away.

Mr. Wilson's Secretary of War waited, however, to organize a somewhat formidable expedition. Six days after the night raid at Columbus the Thirteenth Cavalry, with the color guard at the head, trotted across the international line, raising a great cloud of dust and the germs of considerable very queer history. In the trail of the Thirteenth came sundry infantry, artillery and cavalry regiments, in all some 5000 men.

THE FLYING COLUMN.

This was the punitive expedition as the public was supposed to see it. Meanwhile a flying column, in command of Col. Dodd, had dashed secretly across the line at Hachita, N. M. This column consisted mainly of the Sixth and Tenth Cavalry regiments, the latter being colored soldiers.

Gen. Pershing started out with the main expedition in order to throw the public and Villa off the scent; then in the night he made a mad automobile ride across country, joined the Hachita flying column and took personal command. It was a wild ride, seldom equaled in the whole history of cavalry.

In the first twenty-two hours that flying column marched 110 miles, which is a record destined to stand in the traditions of our army.

Our cavalrymen were mounted on big, fine troop horses, used to high feeding and careful tending. The bandits of whom they were in pursuit were mounted on desert bronchos—wild little creatures, used to scrambling for a living. It was remarkable to see how well the cavalry horses stood the test.

The Mexican government had given sullen consent to the expedition and agreed to help in the hunt. But there is strong evidence that, if the Carranza soldiers did not actually help Villa to escape, they at least showed a fatal lack of curiosity as to Villa's whereabouts. Carranza's method of joining the chase was to withdraw his soldiers to Juarez and give the escaping bandit full swing.

VILLA'S TRAIL.

Gen. Gavirno even intimated to Gen. Pershing that if he entered Casas Grandes it would mean a fight between the Carranzistas and the American troops.

Villa was reported at San Miguel, sixty miles southeast, and Pershing split up his flying column into three bodies, and took the trail. Owing to poor guides and the misfortune of a railroad accident they missed catching him by twenty-three hours.

Villa divided his forces also, and one of these, which he commanded in person, collided with an American column, in command of Col. Dodd, which had been rushed down toward Namiquipa to prevent the bandit getting back into Chihuahua. A fight took place at Guerrero, in which Villa was badly wounded. With a few trusted men to carry his stretcher, the bandit made his escape, leaving his army to check the American troops if they could, or run if they had to. They ran, but Villa got away.

There is no very well-authenticated account of his wanderings. Mexican soldiers afterward came to El Paso claiming to have been of the party. One said that Villa was delirious part of the time and badly frightened. He kept begging his men not to let the gringos get him.

From the fastnesses of the mountains he sent some of them back for medicines, keeping only three or four men with him. When the detachment returned with the medicine Villa was nowhere to be found. Months elapsed before he was seen again.

After Guerrero Villa started southeast. Four columns of the Pershing expedition followed him. Flanking these four columns came two columns three days behind.

When the flying column first started from Hachita there were 1500 horsemen. At least one-half had dropped out by this time. The terrible strain was telling on the horses.

FIGHT AT PARRAL.

Maj. Frank Thompkins, who was leading the chase, went into the dangerous Parral country with only 114 men. On account of his obvious peril a fifth column was started out in his trail to bear a hand if he got into trouble. Well, he got into trouble.

Near the little village of Parral the Seventh Cavalry made a bivouac. A party consisting of forty troopers went into the town to purchase supplies. The inhabitants of the town opened fire on them, killing two soldiers. A number of Mexicans were also killed.

For a time it looked as though Maj. Thompkins had a fine chance of suffering the fate of Custer; but several other detachments joined him in a few hours.

Everywhere the gringo hatred was smoldering. The Carranzistas, who had been at first outwardly cordial, began to be menacing. Gen. Herrera finally sent two columns out from Chihuahua. One column of 750 men stood across Pershing's path and ordered him not to come any farther south.

The truth was, Villa was lost. Gen. Pershing established field headquarters as far south as El Valle, and from these field bases sent out scouting parties, each consisting of one or two troops of cavalry to hunt the bandit.

Meanwhile, Carranza was making repeated protests to the United States, demanding the removal of the American troops from Mexican soil.

In answer to the most peremptory of these demands, Mr. Wilson sat down and indicted one of his justly-celebrated notes. It was 6000 words in length, and scolded Carranza very severely.

THE BATTLE OF CARRIZAL.

Carranza's answer was the massacre of Carrizal. This is one of the bitterest chapters of American history.

Troops H and K of the Tenth Cavalry had been sent out on a scout. At the little village of Carrizal, northwest of Chihuahua, they met a force of Mexican cavalry in command of Gen. Maximo Gomez.

Col. Rivas, a staff officer, rode out, met Capt. Charles T. Boyd of the Tenth, who was in command of the parleying party, and ordered him to turn back. Capt. Boyd replied that he was under orders to find a deserter in the town and he intended to look for him.

Col. Rivas withdrew, and almost without warning the fight began. The Mexican force in charge of Gen. Maximo Gomez was much larger than the Americans supposed. The colored troopers dismounted and were making a gallant fight when a fresh body of Mexican cavalry charged their flank and the black soldiers had to "run for it."

In bunches of threes and fours they fought their way through the line and a few escaped. One of those who got away was Capt. Lewis B. Morey, who walked seventeen miles without food or water to a place of safety. Capt. Boyd and Lieut. Henry R. Adair were killed.

Fifteen soldiers were killed in the fight. The Mexicans stripped them of everything worth taking, even down to their boots, and threw them into an open grave like so much garbage. When these graves were afterward opened the soldiers were found dumped in with their feet in each other's faces.

Twenty-three negro troopers were taken prisoner and sent to Chihuahua to prison. On the way they were subjected to the most shameful indignities. They were beaten, stripped of their clothing and spat upon by the crowds.

"FIGHTING MAD."

The President issued a statement in which he said he was "fighting mad." The enemy suddenly cheered up. At Fort Bliss the sergeant began going over the horses and counting cartridges. The patrols along the Rio Grande began measuring the range across the river to the Mexican pickets, who were to be seen riding up and down the banks on the Mexican side.

The stain of shame, they thought, was at last to be wiped out.

Down in the prison in Chihuahua the negro troopers thought so, too. When asked afterward if they were not frightened, they said: "Oh, no, we knew the cavalry would come to our rescue."

They knew in the old days that no one could fire upon the American uniform with impunity. They didn't know that Uncle Sam, represented in the person of Woodrow Wilson, was to swallow the dose and announce that Carrizal was "an isolated incident."

Gen. Trevino, commandant at Chihuahua, announced openly that if the American soldiers marched in any direction except back toward the American border, they would be treated again as they were at Carrizal. It looked as though the honor of the army was at last about to be vindicated. Then a shameful thing happened.

Under orders from Washington, presumably, Gen. Pershing ceased to march "in any direction except toward the American border." Mr. Wilson was fighting mad, but not mad enough to fight.

Finally Carranza contemptuously consented to free the negro troopers and they came home under guard, not like soldiers from a friendly soil, but under guard like convicts. They were stripped of their clothes. Two or three wore only undershirts with towels wrapped around their middles.

No soldiers were sent to take them. As a reward for their gallant fight they had to suffer the humiliation of men caught picking pockets. Carranza shot them to pieces, flung them out of Mexico, and went unpunished.

THE DEAD RETURN.

Upon the humble petition of the American government, American undertakers were permitted to go into Mexico after the dead.

The return of these dead bodies was an insult that would have been an act of war between countries whose honor had not already been trampled in the dirt.

No military guard of honor brought the bodies of the dead troopers to the border line. At Juarez, the coffins were stuck in a dirty old box car. A switch engine gave it a shove and the coupling was cut. The bodies of the Carrizal dead came bumping across the line, all alone, like so much carrion. No announcement was even made. The sentries were left to discover that their dead had been sent back.

As soon as possible a regiment of cavalry was turned out and escorted the bodies to their resting place; but the troopers who guarded the caskets down the paved streets of El Paso burned to be across the river to wipe out this contemptuous insult to their dead.

The return of the dead from Carrizal is an affront that will never be forgiven by the army.

Months of inactivity followed for the American troops. Villa came to life again, and again menaced the Carranza government. But the American troops who were under orders to "get Villa, dead or alive," stood still, by Wilsonian edict, and did nothing. There hasn't been a minute for the past six months when Villa could not have been defeated and probably taken prisoner by the American troops; but for some unaccountable reason, they were ordered to stand fast.

It doesn't seem possible that any government could have put upon its soldiers so bitter a humiliation. To be attacked by ambuscade; to pursue; to be attacked by its supposed allies; to see its dead treated like offal, and to stand with bowed head and swallow the insult.

That is the story of the Pershing expedition.

"GREENLAND'S ICY" AN ISSUE IN COURT.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The famous hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," was the subject of official discussion this week in the Prize Court. The witness on the stand was Jen Dangaard Imsen, Governor of Greenland, who was supporting the Danish government's claim to a cargo of fish seized by the British government as a prize of war.

The presiding judge asked the witness: "Are the physical characteristics of your island truly described in the hymn?"

The witness replied that he had never heard of the hymn in question, whereupon one of the learned counsel interposed: "I believe it was written by John Wesley."

"No," said the judge, "It was written by an East Indian bishop."

The Governor of Greenland remarked that he was very much interested and would like to see a copy of the hymn. At this point, the court adjourned, and the Governor and the Chief Attorney for the British government went off arm in arm to search for a hymn book.

and all Rectal Diseases

WITHOUT AN OPERATION

For twenty-five years I have been curing diseases of the rectum and lower bowel During that time my experience as hospital and railroad surgeon, as college lecturer and professor, has enabled me to develop a method that is superior to others. I cure without surgery and my patients are not confined in bed and seldom lose a moment's time from their business.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment" but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic conditions in my office.

I solicit old, severe and obstinate cases of fistula, prolapsus, fissure and ulceration that have heretofore resisted all treatments employed. If you are a sufferer from rectal trouble I invite you to investigate my method thoroughly by talking or writing to any of my cured patients. If you will call at my office I will be pleased to give you the names and addresses of many well-known Los Angeles people I have cured, whom you may interview in regard to my treatment.

Read what a few well-known Southern California people have to say of my method. Many similar letters are on file in my office.

GERMANS ATTIRED IN WHITE SHEETS.

ATTACK BRITISH TRENCHES IN KU KLUX GARB.

Disguise Used to Render Them Invisible in the Snow and Give Affair a Ghostly Aspect—Soldiers Give Oncomers a Warm Reception at the Salient.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Feb. 3 (from a staff corespondent.)—The German raiders who made two attacks yesterday against the British trenches south of the Ypres salient looked for all the world like famous Ku Klux Klan, the crusaders of reconstruction days in the Southern States of America. They were clad in white sheets fashioned into a sort of smock, wore white hoods and masks and sought thus to cross the snow-covered No Man's Land without detection. The raiders came over in two waves, only to be hurled back with heavy losses in killed and wounded. They swept into a perfect storm of machine gun fire and there were crimson splashes in the snow wherever one of the strange white figures fell. There was a ghostly aspect to this affair throughout. It was attempted at the most likely hour when the late moonlight faded into the dawn. After an all-night vigil in the front trenches the soldiers' nerves are apt to be jumpy as morning approaches. On this occasion there had been the usual preliminary German bombardment and something was expected, but not the ghostly apparitions which eventually greeted the gaze of the sentries as they peered in the chilly half light into the barren stretch of white separating their trenches. Regardless of whether they were ghosts or Germans, the sentries knew that they were expected to shoot and there came a crackle of rifles all along the line. Then the machine guns chimed in and the first wave of the attackers was breaking when the second came over. Two Germans managed to plunge into a British trench, but they got out so quickly that they left behind them unused a can of dynamite, many grenades and a rifle. One of the two died in the British wire entanglements as he was attempting to retreat.

GRAND DUKE BORIS VISITS URUMIA.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PETROGRAD, Jan. 20.—The Grand Duke Boris has just made a visit to Urumia in Persian Armenia, it being the first time in history that this ancient city had welcomed a member of the Russian royal family. By order of the authorities, every shop in the bazaars was decorated, and all the streets and squares were adorned with fine Persian rugs and other decorations dear to the oriental heart. Several arches were erected and all the way from the landing place at the lake to the city, a distance of twelve miles, the Grand Duke found crowds lining both sides of the road. The masses were expecting his entry to be after the manner of a Persian prince. They were all ready to make their bows to the ground and many had prepared to kill a sacrificial offering to him as he passed. To their disappointment, the Grand Duke passed them in most unpretentious fashion, many failing to recognize him as his automobile proceeded along the designated route.

The royal visitor remained three days. On one morning he reviewed the cavalry regiments, drawn up in the greatest military parade that Urumia has ever seen.

MEMPHIS PLANNING BRIDGE PAGEANT.

[A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

MEMPHIS, Jan. 25.—Financial arrangements have been completed for a pageant here May 22-24, celebrating the opening of the Harahan bridge, the southernmost structure across the Mississippi and joining Tennessee and Arkansas.

The pageant will depict the history of Memphis and the Mississippi River from the time DeSoto, the Spanish explorer, pitched his tent on the high bluffs at this point and discovered the great waterway.

Approximately 4000 performers will take part while seating arrangements will be provided for 40,000.

The bridge is the only double-tracked railroad and free wagon way across the Mississippi south of St. Louis and was opened to railroad traffic on July 15, 1916. It was named for the late J. T. Harahan, president of the Illinois Central and is owned by three large lines—the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern (Iron Mountain,) the St. Louis and Southwestern (Cotton Belt) and the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific (Rock Island.)

With its approaches the bridge is three miles in length, and cost approximately $6,000,000.

Inside Story of Lady Cornwallis-West Scandal; Exposure That Upset England

Bombshell.

HOW HANDSOME YOUNG SOLDIER SHOOK BRITISH HIGH SOCIETY.

But Solemn Military Court Decides in Favor of Officer and Incidentally Denounces Activities of Noted Beauty.

[For the first time in America the details of the extraordinary scandal involving Lady Cornwallis-West with young Lieut. Barrett are published today. The news dispatches told of the English military court of inquiry that scathingly rebuked the great social leader and beauty for her extraordinary interest in Lieut. Barrett and for the personal influence she used with great military leaders, first, to advance young Barrett in rank, and, later, when he repulsed her attentions, to degrade him. Now it is possible to print today the full statements of all sides of the controversy, together with the letters in the case.]

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 20.—A solemn English military court of inquiry, sitting for the space of two whole months at the Westminster Guild Hall, has given its verdict on a remarkable episode in social military life. It involves these people:

Mrs. Cornwallis-West, mother of a duchess and a princess, a considerable social figure, with leanings toward eccentricity; Mrs. Richard Birch, wife of the former agent to the Cornwallis-West estates, and Second Lieutenant P. Barrett, a young man of moral worth and great military virtue, risen from the ranks.

In the beginning we have young Barrett, friendless and alone in the world, enlisting in the British army. When the war broke out his regiment, part of the British expeditionary force, was moved to Mons, and he campaigned through the whole of that terrible retreat.

He came out of Mons and the rest unscathed, and fought in the awful first battle of Ypres, when the thin British line—cooks, sutlers, mechanics indiscriminately—hung on by its very eyebrows. And again no harm befell him.

Festubert broke the spell. The shrapnel bit deeply into him, and he was invalided home, and with his passage to England the first phase of his strange adventure was ended.

In a charming Old World-style house with a rustic porch, by name Bryn Celyn, which, being translated, means Holly Hill, live Mr. and Mrs. Richard Birch, and here often came from Ruthin Castle, twelve miles away, Mrs. Cornwallis-West, wife of the Lord Lieutenant of Denbighshire, for whose land Mr. Birch was agent.

When the wounded from France overflowed the ordinary hospitals and a network of improvised hospitals was springing up to ease the strain, Mrs. Birch converted her cottage into a miniature sanatorium, whither in due course, along with other soldier invalids, they brought Sergt. Barrett, who was very ill and stood in need of careful nursing.

The lady of Ruthin Castle, impulsive, willful to the point of eccentricity, accustomed to be humored and obeyed, had a gracious care for wounded British soldiers, and the patients at Bryn Celyn, hard by her home, called, so it seemed to her, for a part of her kindly patronage.

Imagine, then, the once redoubtable society beauty, still pleasant to look upon despite her 63 years, entering this cosy menage.

A HANDSOME "NON-COM."

Second Lieutenant Barrett, then only sergeant, is 27 years of age, and is by way of being good looking, having good, straight features, an open countenance and the build of the ranker of pre-war days. But perhaps it was because he was less shy than the others, that the lady of Ruthin Castle found it more easy to talk to him and regard him as the most deserving of interest.

Followed an invitation to Ruthin Castle. It was a fleeting visit, limited to one day's stay, but renewed, for an afternoon, later.

The young hero of Mons had done good work, and had even been recommended for the D.C.M.; his promotion to a commission was almost automatically bound to follow, as, indeed, proved to be the case. But believing that mischance might interfere with his well-earned reward, Mrs. Cornwallis-West among others of his newly distinguished friends, interceded in his behalf. The action was kindly meant, but unnecessary, and it might have seemed to the chatelaine of Ruthin Castle that the commission when it came arose out of her intiative and that Second Lieutenant Barrett, to his new rank, was in her debt.

And now what should have been the beginning of wisdom was the beginning of trouble. Mrs. Cornwallis-West's interest was sustained beyond a point when it ceased to be kindly and became embarrassing.

CRITICISM OF COURT.

The Court of Inquiry's findings give in this language its sense of the affair: "Mrs. West began to take a more than ordinary interest in Mr. Barrett, to which he consistently failed to respond, and eventually he wrote her in February last, a letter of remonstrance, which she placed in the hands of his commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. Delme-Radcliffe." At the same time Mrs. Cornwallis-West preferred a very serious complaint against the young officer, whom she had come to regard as her protege.

Without full opportunity of justifying his conduct, the young officer was censured by his superior, and before any investigation steps were taken to transfer him from the depot to the Third Battalion Royal Welsh Fusiliers.

"Lieut.-Col. Delme-Radcliffe showed a want of consideration and [illegible] in ordering Second Lieutenant Barrett to proceed forthwith to [illegible]," says the Court of Inquiry, "at a time when he had reason to know that the officer in question was so ill that he could not be moved."

The young officer's health was seriously affected, and at times his condition gave rise to most serious alarm.

And now someone else took a hand—Mrs. Birch, under whose roof, as a sergeant, the young man had been brought back to health.

It happened that a friend of the Birches was the late Sir Arthur Markham, M. P., who during his life spoke the truth fearlessly and had no respect for social or misplaced influence. He was communicated with, and the facts placed before him. Sir Arthur was satisfied that a palpable case for inquiry existed. In his turn he communicated with Mr. Lloyd George, then Minister for War.

A COSTLY CHAMPIONSHIP.

The championship of Mr. Barrett, who beyond his officer's pay was without means, involved his kindly host and hostess in serious pecuniary loss. First it was impossible any longer for Mr. Birch to remain land agent for Mrs. Cornwallis-West, and at the same time that he resigned this office he terminated similar duties for her daughter, the Duchess of Westminster.

Anyone passing the Westminster Guildhall while the inquiry was being held might have caught sight of two women of striking appearance entering the building.

The one, white-haired and in deep mourning, was Mrs. Cornwallis-West, bereaved by the death of her mother, Lady Olivia Fitzpatrick; the other, handsome and distinguished, as the portrait shown in the royal acadamy two years ago, revealed, Mrs. Birch, the fairy godmother of the young officer.

But Mr. Barrett was too ill to come up to London, and his evidence had to be taken at Bryncelyn, where he is still. And in the end it was found that there had been nothing in his conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, and that any censure which had been passed upon him had been wholly undeserved.

As for Mrs. Cornwallis-West, her conduct was characterized as highly discreditable, both in her behavior toward him before his letter of February 14, and in her vindictive attempts to injure him afterwards, and in the untruthful evidence she gave before the inquiry.

SOME RACY EVIDENCE.

The evidence upon which the court based its findings has not been made public, but some of the astonishing letters which passed between the lady and the lieutenant have come to light.

While Barrett was still at the convalescent home at Bryncelyn, presided over by Mrs. Birch, he was taken by that lady to tea at Ruthin Castle, the home of Lady Cornwallis-West. On that occasion Mrs. West took him upstairs and had a conversation with him, to which she made allusion in the following letter, written to him under the date of February 9:

"RUTHIN CASTLE, North Wales.

"Dear Mr. Barrett—If by chance you are writing to that dear boy you were talking about, will you give him my love, and tell him I often think of him? But I can't write to him until I see you on Saturday, and get his address for certain.

"Yours most sincerely,

"MARY CORNWALLIS-WEST.

"Please don't tell anyone about the boy. It is just my secret."

PLEASE, I WANT YOU ALONE.

Three days later, on February 12, Mrs. West came to stay at Bryncelyn for two days, and while there she wrote and gave to the young officer three letters, which were as follows:

"Boy, dear—I am just thinking of you and your happiness. I see you are chafing against the tight hand over you.

"Now you are beginning to feel yourself again, and the man in you is speaking. Yet you feel she has nursed you.

"She has just told me you told her you did not want to go with me to Lady T—'s.

"Boy, I can quite understand it, dear, if you don't. I was only thinking of you. But, personally, I would so love just to have you quite to myself at R— and will arrange either for this Saturday or for next. This S— she proposes to come, too; but please I want you alone, so I will, I think, make it the following Saturday.

"God bless you, darling. I hate to see your poor, tired, worried face this morning, and so want you to have peace. I commenced this before going to church. D— B— has just said something to me. Boy, I trust you so; believe every word you say; feel you could not tell me a lie; and yet? Well, dear, I must have a few words somehow alone today.

"Boy—she has said some cruel, hard things to me today. I think, dear, I shall go tomorrow morning—she has been very rude—but I would tell you all. When we can sit at peace in my flower boudoir I will teach you to love really beautiful poetry. Write to me often, often. I am so weary of life sometimes. Can't you post your letters at B—, not in the bag here? It's not safe. Just write as you feel; express it—spell it—as you like; I shall understand. PATSY.

"Boy, dear—I may be wrong, but I don't think I am; Mrs. B— does not, I feel sure, want you to come to me next Saturday, and will stop it somehow by saying that you are not strong enough, or writing to Maj. —, or something. But I want you so much to come, dear.

"Don't mind how I treat you today; you will know the real Patsy all the time and understand."

BARRETT'S LETTER.

To these letters Mr. Barrett, after much anxious thought, replied on February 14 in a letter touching in its manly simplicity—the letter of an officer and a true gentleman:

"My dear Mrs. West—I expect this letter will surprise you very much. I have been awake most of the night thinking over all you have said and wrote to me.

"I must speak my mind on paper, which I don't seem able to do when I am with you; so I must tell you I don't like the way you have wrote about Mrs. Birch. I came to Bryncelyn a very sick man, and she nursed me back to life, and she and Mr. Birch gave me a home life, for which I had always prayed.

"She does not have a tight rein on me, and I don't know what you mean about the man speaking in me. It will be a great sorrow when I have to leave the only home I ever had, and her wonderful motherly care for me.

"I respect her for all the good work she is doing, and I don't like the way you speak about my letter not being safe in the postbag at Bryncelyn. She is an honest woman, and would scorn having anything to do with other people's letters, and considering how very nicely she always speaks of you to me, it hurt me very much. My heart is in my work, and I want to get on and make a name for myself, and show you and all those that have been kind to me how I value their help.

"I don't think I could look Col. West in the face because you kissed me; he was very good to me. I don't want to understand poetry (sic.) I only want to live a good life and serve my God and King.

"I don't understand why you called me darling, when Mrs. Delme-Radcliffe, Mrs. Donald, Mrs. Leach, Mrs. Davies Cooke, Miss Bibby or Mrs. Birch never does, and they do not want to teach me poetry.

"I honor and respect you very much, and some day I hope to do something for you. Your notes frighten me very much; you see, my religion, as you know, compels me to go to confession, and it is the first time in my life I shall not be able to confess properly.

"Will you please make some excuse for not asking me to Ruthin or Bryncelyn. If you do not do this I shall tell them I intend to work all Sundays for my promotion.

That was the last that Mr. Barrett had to do with Mrs. Cornwallis-West. But she soon, in a letter to Gen. Sir Henry Mackinnon, complained to the effect that Barrett had pursued her, had broken into her bedroom, and that she was frightened of him.

The part played by Mrs. Birch in this amazing story was related by her husband, Mr. Richard Birch. In addition to acting until recently as agent for Col. Cornwallis-West's estate, Mr. Birch is agent for the estates of several wealthy land owners in Wales.

"First of all," said Mr. Birch, "I should like to say how very much my wife and myself would welcome the publication of all the evidence in thic case, because we feel quite confident that the public would indorse every one of the findings of the secret tribunal.

"We believe that it would be realized that we had no other alternative to taking the action we did, and that if we had stood by and made no attempt to save the honor of this young officer we should not have been worthy of the respect in which we believe we are held by our friends and neighbors.

"It should be understood that we had no ax to grind in this case, but rather it has meant much personal expense and the loss of considerable income.

"TO SEE JUSTICE DONE."

"But the circumstances were such that my wife and myself were the only people who could see that justice was done. Fate placed the young man's future in our hands and we had to see the whole thing through.

"Otherwise I am confident that this young man would not have been alive today, so greatly had the affair preyed on his mind.

"The story of this most unfortunate business really begins with the arrival home from the front of a Sergt. Barrett of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers. He had been shot through the liver and the lung, and he was brought to the depot and Wrexham and from thence to my house at St. Asaph, which my wife had converted into a convalescent home at our own expense.

"About this time we had about five men in the house—all Tommies. There was another sergeant besides Barrett.

"He was in very delicate health, brought about by his trying experiences at the front, where he has been off and on ever since the retreat from Mons, and the serious nature of his wounds.

"He was a nervous, shy youth, who talked very little and seemed anxious not to put himself forward in any way.

"This was in February, 1915. For two or three months he was too ill to go out, but he slowly recovered under the care of my wife.

"It was some time afterward that Mrs. West made his acquaintance.

"She came on a visit to see the wounded men in my place, as she often did in the course of her visits to the hospitals in the neighborhood.

"On this first occasion there was certainly nothing to indicate that she was more interested in this sergeant than in the other sergeant or in other men there.

"She came again, but for some months there was nothing unusual in her manner; but later she came more frequently and it was obvious that she had become greatly interested in him.

"She began to send him presents and she wrote many letters.

"On only two occasions did he go to Ruthin Castle. The first time was when Mrs. West had been staying

Mrs. Cornwallis-West.

Severe censure for Mrs. Cornwallis-West, wife of Col. George Cornwallis-West, is contained in the report of a special court of inquiry made public in London. The report describes an army scandal involving the exercise of influence over high officers by a woman of the highest social standing in England. Mrs. Cornwallis-West is the mother of the Princess of Pless and of the Duchess of Westminster. Her son, George Frederick Myddleton Cornwallis-West, was at one time husband of Lady Randolph Churchill, mother of Winston Churchill, but was divorced by her, whereupon he married Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the actress.

Laugh When People Step On Your Feet

Try this yourself then pass it along to others. It works!

Ouch! ! ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn stops soreness at once, and soon the corn dries up and lifts right out without pain.

He says freezone is an ether compound which dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding tissue or skin. A quarter of an ounce of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels.

ACCUSES HEALERS.

Nearly Blind Woman Comes to This City from Missouri to Testify in Government Case Based on Alleged Frauds by "Divine" Pair.

Among witnesses to testify against the alleged divine healers, August Schroeder and Francis Schlatter, whose trial on a charge of using the mails to defraud, will begin before Judge Trippet and a jury in the United States District Court, Thursday, is Mrs. Cora Duncan of Corder, Mo., who reached the city yesterday.

Mrs. Duncan, who is almost blind, invested large sums of money, according to her statement, in the "Blessed Handkerchief" and monthly treatments by the defendants without any appreciable result. About a dozen other alleged victims are expected to arrive from different States before the trial begins.

The office of the United States District Attorney is besieged by people who say they invested money in the enterprise, but only those are available who had communication with Schroeder or Schlatter, or both, by mail.

ENOUGH MEAT FOR ARMY, SAYS CUDAHY

CHICAGO PACKER ASSERTS WE ARE PREPARED.

Should War Emergency Arise There Would be no Difficulty in Provisioning Largest Force the United States Can Raise, He Declares.

"The United States has plenty of meat to meet the demands of a war emergency that might arise out of the present situation," E. A. Cudahy, president of the Cudahy Packing Company of Chicago, declared last evening at the Huntington in Pasadena. "There would be no difficulty in provisioning the largest army that could be raised in the United States."

Mr. Cudahy said that the American meat market is in better condition than it has been for several years with prices and supply and demand about normal. The high prices of meat prevailing in recent years have stimulated the cattle-raising industry with the result that more cattle and hogs are available at present than for some years past.

"The threatened submarine blockade of England by Germany has caused a decline of 50 cents on the hundred on export meat," Mr. Cudahy continued. "Most of the export meat goes to England and Canada. These countries are at present heavy buyers.

"If Germany should succeed in blockading England successfully that, of course, would cut off our principal market for export meat, but, on the other hand, a successful blockade probably would end the war and that would open up the market in the Central Powers. Germany formerly bought more of our packing-house products than England. Germany was an especially heavy buyer of lard and other fats.

"Since Germany is buying no meat from America at present a war between that country and our own would not affect the meat situation. We would have nothing to lose from Germany in the way of trade since it is all gone now."

Mr. and Mrs. Cudahy and their daughter, Miss Alice Cudahy, arrived yesterday morning from Chicago. They are at Pasadena for the winter season.

SCORN NEW DINERS.

Restaurants Refuse to Bid for Supplying Meals to One Hundred Employees of the Aqueduct Power Bureau, as They are Too Busy.

Prosperity in such big chunks has struck the restaurant keepers of Newhall that they scorn to bid on feeding 100 of the employees who are putting up the transmission line of the aqueduct power bureau.

This state of affairs was set forth at Friday's meeting of the Public Service Commission, when there were no bidders for furnishing meals, and a readvertisement was ordered. The commission wants to contract for feeding 100 men for a month...

The restaurant people say that such a contract would take more space and service than they have available, and it wouldn't pay to enlarge for such a short time; that they have about all the business they can handle, anyway. The result is that the men are scattered around to be fed wherever they can get in, and take their lunches along to the work. The power bureau may have to establish its own dining-room if there are no bids under the readvertisement ordered yesterday.

CHARGED WITH THREAT.

Charged with threatening the life of Gus Agndimos, East Fourth-street florist, H. Dan, alias C. Danis was arrested yesterday and locked in the County Jail pending his hearing tomorrow. The prisoner at one time was employed by the florist. They quarreled and then Dan is alleged to have made the dire threat.

with us; my wife offered to take her home and Mrs. West invited her and Barrett to tea. They stayed about three hours and then returned home.

FATEFUL VISIT TO RUTHIN.

"They went to Ruthin in my motor car and Barrett was carried into the house on a stretcher. It was while they were there that the trouble began which brought about the unfortunate situation which ended in Sir Arthur Markham taking up the case.

"A week later I remember Lieut. Barrett coming home to us in a pitiable state of depression after he had seen his colonel and had been confronted with the letter which he felt obliged to write to Mrs. Cornwallis-West. He was in a practically comatose condition for a fortnight.

"Three days after he came home an order came directing him to Litherland to join the Third Battalion, but he was too ill to understand.

"It is not for me to go into the accusations that were made against him and against my wife. They were all threshed out at the inquiry, and, as the public knows, Lieut. Barrett was exonerated together with my wife and myself.

"No one could regret more than myself these unpleasant developments, which have brought to an end the long and happy association of my family with Col. Cornwallis-West and his wife.

"With regard to Lieut. Barrett's presence in my home, I have nothing but the most charming memories of his conduct.

"He has said that he practically owed his life to the care taken of him by Mrs. Birch.

CRUEL ORDEAL DESCRIBED.

"He is an upright, clean-living man who has been passing through a most cruel ordeal, and I am afraid it will take him a long time to recover from its effects.

"There is one striking circumstance about his career in the army which I think is a pretty good indication of his character.

"The colonel of his old battalion told me that he was so impressed with his character and the splendid example he set the other men that when he had a number of rather rough characters join up he put Barrett into their company because he had such a reforming influence.

"It was in December, 1915, that he read that he had been gazetted. Exactly a year later he read the statement in the House of Commons by Mr. Macpherson that his honor had been vindicated at this inquiry."

FROM CORNWALLIS-WEST.

In behalf of Mrs. Cornwallis-West, her husband, Col. Cornwallis-West, has made a statement in the course of an interview. He says:

"In the circumstances, we should have much preferred an inquiry in a court of justice, so that the public, through the press, might have known what were the charges made against my wife.

"I consider that Mr. Lloyd George and Sir Arthur Markham were 'taken in,' and, in fact, I have very good reason for believing that Sir Arthur, shortly before his death, was on the point of withdrawing from the case.

"The circumstances are of a most extraordinary character.

HOW THEY MET.

"The whole gravamen of the charge against my wife is that she was very much in love with this young man, Lieut. Barrett.

"I should explain that Mr. Birch was my estate agent and so was his father.

"We showed nothing but kindness and consideration to Mr. and Mrs. Birch, putting various opportunities of social and pecuniary advantages in their way and helping them at every turn. Mrs. Birch is a woman under 40, of considerable personal attractions, and it was she who first brought Lieut. Barrett to my wife's notice.

"Mr. and Mrs. Birch had turned their house into a hospital, and Lieut. Barrett, then a ranker, was one of the patients at their place. He was a strange young fellow with an interesting sort of 'mystery' in his life. We understood that he was an orphan, never having known either his father or his mother.

"We never discovered what he did before joining the army as a private.

FRIENDLY, GENTLE WAYS.

"He had been to the front before we met him, and he was a sergeant home on sick leave at the time the Birches introduced him.

"He was always sickly and ailing and the doctor said his heart was wrong. He was anemic and miserable, but he had friendly, gentle ways which seemed to attract women to him. Mrs. Birch took him up enthusiastically and often spoke to my wife about him.

"She suggested that Mrs. West should take him up and 'bring him out' among the county people—our acquaintances in Denbighshire. It would do him a world of good and get him among the right set.

"My wife is Irish to the very marrow—Irish, enthusiastic and emotional. Emotion and compassion, particularly compassion, are apt to carry her away to the point perhaps of indiscretion sometimes. She will herself admit that in the case of young Barrett she may have been indiscreet, but it was indiscretion entirely born of her good heart and her solicitude.

"She was a mother to him—nothing more. Her sympathies were aroused by his loneliness, and her maternal instinct was moved by his bad health. She went to see him constantly and she found him generally in tears. Before leaving him for the last time she went up to his room and found him again in tears.

"He said he thought he was dying, and she kissed him on the forehead and said, 'It's all right, Pat. Don't be afraid!' and so she left him. That was a motherly action, surely, from a sympathetic woman of 62 to a nice boy! I believe it is not a very uncommon thing for a nurse to kiss the forehead of a soldier who is dying.

"When she was away she wrote to him a number of letters which she now admits were perhaps indiscreet. Every letter implored him to buck up and try to be a man and pull through.

"Her letters, like her ministrations, were motherly and kind. But they were impulsive, emotional, and —like herself—Irish.

"It was at this time that Mrs. Birch's attitude to us entirely changed. She accused my wife of wrongfully influencing Barrett.

"The whole matter then came to a head and the case was laid before Sir Arthur Markham to act as mediator, and unfortunately Sir Arthur died in the middle of it.

MOTHERLY AFFECTION.

"Can it be believed that a woman of 62 could be capable of any other affection for this young man than one of motherly solicitude?

"It is incredible and monstrous that my wife should be found guilty of telling untruths.

"It is monstrous that a man like Sir John Cowans should be so

Prominent Civic Worker Looking for Someone to Design Orchard Heater Which will be Improvement Over Ones in Present Use.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Feb. 3.—C. N. Burton, prominent civic worker and owner of a ten-acre citrus grove at Narod, has deposited $50 in the First National Bank and designated it as the nucleus for a fund which he says the people of this community ought to be willing to subscribe and devote to assisting worthy people in experimenting with fuels and designing a type of orchard heater which will develop a maximum of heat and throw off a minimum of carbon dioxide gas.

He says that, as a matter of fact, it has been thoroughly demonstrated that it is heat and not smoke that saves the citrus fruit on a cold night. The growers admit that they want heat and are willing to abolish the smoke nuisance at the first opportunity. It is quite generally admitted that the smoke from orchard heaters is a disagreeable thing to contend with. Mr. Burton argues that little is being done to develop an improved type of orchard heater, so he suggests that the community finance a good set of brains for such a purpose instead of hanging up a community bonus to bring factories to this city.

FOURTH SON OF A LORD CUTS THROAT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EL CENTRO, Feb. 3.—Harry Llewellyn Perkins, who claimed to be the fourth son of Lord Perkins of Marjoribanks, Eng., attempted suicide today when officers approached to arrest him on a bad check charge. Shouting "they will never take me alive, mother," he drew a razor and slashed his throat. He was rushed to the St. Thomas Hospital. Physicians stated that he has little chance for life.

Perkins came here six weeks ago from New York, and worked as laborer on the George Long ranch. He showed documents which seemed to support his claim that he was a son of an English lord, here on remittance. He was decidedly popular among the young women of the district, and was lionized at valley functions in El Centro and other cities. The charge issued against him alleged that he passed a check for $50 on a haberdashery.

NEW HIGHWAY BUILT IN DESERT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEEDLES, Feb. 3.—The new highway from this city to Searchlight, Nev., was dedicated with a booster trip to that city, in which thirty automobiles with 150 Needles people participated.

The new highway was built by San Bernardino county from a point on the Old Trails road, a mile west of Ibis, to the Nevada State line, from which point the Clark county commissioners will soon begin the improvement of the highway all the way to Searchlight and Las Vegas. The San Bernardino county portion of the road is like a boulevard, being the highest type of desert road construction.

HAPPILY MARRIED.

Azusa Couple Celebrates Their Sixtieth Wedding Anniversary in the Town They Have Lived Nearly Thirty Years. Was First Mayor.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AZUSA, Feb. 3.—Today the grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Williams of Azusa are feteing them in anniversary of their sixtieth wedding day, for during a heavy blizzard on February 6, 1857, the elderly couple were married at Stockbridge, Wis.

The sixty-year groom is 91 years old and his wife 82. Both had been previously married, but had no children. Today they are surrounded by ten descendants, representing three generations.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams came to California in 1886, settling in Santa Ana, removing to Azusa two years later, where they have operated a grocery store ever since.

Each day for the past twenty-nine years Mr. Williams has been active in his business, although today the bulk of the burden is shifted to his grandchildren.

When Azusa first assumed the title of a village Mr. Williams became its first Mayor. Later he was chairman of the School Board, which erected the first school in the Azusa Valley, still standing and in use.

Always active in the politics of his section, he has voted the Democratic ticket for seventy years. During the last Presidential campaign he was firm in his belief that no party could upset the Democratic administration.

REORGANIZE AZUSA COMMERCE CHAMBER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AZUSA, Feb. 3.—Two score business men of Azusa met at the City Hall and reorganized the Chamber of Commerce.

Enthusiasm ran riot and pledges of active support were freely given.

C. A. Griffith, one of the most prominent younger men of the San Gabriel Valley, was elected president.

Membership and industrial committees at once began their campaign, with the result that nearly 100 members are pledged.

The Moreland truck proposition is still foremost in the endeavors of the citizens, and through an important revision of their proposal to that concern the prospect of its being brought to Azusa is greatly increased.

RANCHERS OBJECT TO TREES ON HIGHWAY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OXNARD, Feb. 3.—The "beautification," so-called, of highways is having hard sledding in this county as well as in Los Angeles county.

Scott Saviers, prominent rancher and recently appointed road overseer of this district, is circulating a petition to the Supervisors asking for the abolishment of the office of county forester.

The petition is being liberally signed by ranchers and others. The idea in abolishing the office is to spend the money, about $15,000, now being spent in planting trees along the highway in improving the county roads.

Many of the trees so planted, it is said, will soon become a nuisance and will have to be removed.

SIGHT SEEING IN THE VALLEY

Hundreds of Excursionists in Imperial Region.

They will go to Mexicali and See the Sights.

Being Entertained by Chamber of Commerce.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALEXICO, Feb. 3.—"Seeing Imperial Valley," one of the greatest outdoor sports delighting visitors to Southern California, will occupy the attention of several hundred excursionists tomorrow.

On account of a delay at El Casco for nine hours early this morning, the first trainload of the visitors did not arrive until too late this afternoon to be shown the attractions of this section of the valley. Excursionists on the first train expressed themselves as being delighted with the scenery at El Casco for the first five minutes; after that it was irksome, and they were indeed glad to get here and scramble with the latecomers for accommodations at the hotels, which are in the bad habit of turning away prospective guests every night.

Tomorrow will be the big day. Two score automobiles will take the excursionists to the big producing sections and over the line into Mexicali. The members of the Chamber of Commerce will try to take care of three trainloads of eager visitors who want to see the famous Imperial Valley. Some of the visitors who are fresh from the frigid East, say that the fame of the valley has spread to every section of the United States where men gather to discuss agricultural development.

L. M. Jones and W. T. Aitken of the Chamber of Commerce will have charge of the squad of farm-going automobiles which will show the excursionists where the twenty-five million dollars' worth of crops were produced last year, at least that portion of the valley that can be reached in an hour's time. Business men and ranchers who have donated automobiles for the good work are: A. M. Shenk, H. H. Griswold, J. R. Hoffman, R. G. Goree, A. S. Carr, J. G. Scott, D. A. Leonard, Edward Dool, J. T. Mayer, William Guntermann, Don Davenport, C. W. Brockman, John Singer, S. E. Beech, Albert Pedrin, J. F. Steindorf, C. M. Wardlaw, Fritz Kloke, Sidney McHarg, J. C. Allison, Fernando Villasenor, and C. F. Turner.

No special itinerary will be followed by the generous owner-chauffeurs.

Among the points of interest which will probably be visited are the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company's ranch, the Fuller Bros. ranch, Willoughby's hog ranch, the gins and compress, the oil mill, and Mexicali. At the compress the visitors will have an opportunity to feast their eyes on a million and a quarter dollars' worth of cotton—one-fifth of this year's crop, lying in the compress yards.

ORANGES GIVE RANCHER BIG PROFIT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Feb. 3.—That orange growing in Tulare county is a source of profit is proven by the returns from the property of S. G. Winch, situated in the Worth district just south of the city limits, which has paid more than 25 per cent. net, on the investment for the past four years.

According to careful records which have been kept of the property, which contains thirty-six acres, and for which Winch paid $50,000 four years ago, the crop this year finished paying for the entire purchase, or at the rate of $12,500 per year, net, for the period.

Winch has recently refused $2000 per acre for the property, and declares it is not for sale for less than $125,000.

The mean minimum temperature for the month was 33.74 deg., against an average for the last ten-year period of 39 deg.

There was no rain during the month, although the rainfall to date, 8.75 inches, is well above normal for this season of the year.

WATCH HOODOO IN A ROMANCE.

Transfer of Timepiece Brings Grief to the New Owner.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OXNARD, Feb. 3.—A hoodoo watch has made its appearance in connection with the annulment proceedings in the marriage of Bedelia Murr, Syrian belle, and Ramon Lopez. The watch is a handsome one, bought by Lopez as a wedding gift for his bride. When she was taken in custody by her parents, and the annulment proceedings started, Lopez sold the watch to L. Ayala. Shortly after buying it, Ayala was taken ill and was operated on for a tumor in his neck. He lost the watch, and accused M. Ponce of stealing it. Ponce was released after the watch was returned in the mails, and in tracing its history the officers discovered its trail of ill happenings.

Certified copies of the record of Bedelia Murr's birth have been received from the State Board of Health. These, it is said, show Bedelia's age as only 13 at the time of her marriage.

CORONER'S JURY CHARGES MURDER.

STORY OF THE DEATH OF MRS. RUSSELL REHEARSED.

Daughter Tells of the Constant Fear Her Mother had for a Tramp Who had Bothered for Seven Years—No Clue and Even Weapon Used Cannot be Found.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AZUSA, Feb. 3.—A Coroner's jury sitting on the case of the murder on Wednesday of Mrs. Adeline R. Russell in Azusa today returned a verdict of murder, at the hands of an unknown person or persons.

The mystery of the cause of the death of the aged woman is still as great as ever and representatives of the Sheriff's office admit they have nothing new to work on.

The testimony of Mrs. Mary Reynolds, daughter of the aged woman, took up most of the hearing, during which she retold in detail the story she had previously given the officers of the continued visits of a tramp to her mother's home. For seven years this man, it is claimed, had bothered the lonely woman, asking for food and money. At one time, the daughter claims, he choked her mother into insensibility and stole a small sum from her purse. Asked why the man's attentions were not reported to the police of Azusa, Mrs. Reynolds said her mother feared the tramp would murder her, if she complained.

"Mother lived in fear of this man daily," she said, "and would not let me report his visits. Only a few weeks ago my little daughter heard him tell another man he intended to murder two old women around here and get their money."

The witness's testimony gave the impression of a well-rehearsed history of the past few years, the woman interrupting her story to interpose a 'forgotten part. Officers called to the stand related the finding of the dead woman and the failure to find any weapon with which the deed could have been committed.

The dragnet has been extended all over Southern California to locate the tramp, who now seems to be the only clew to the mystery.

MEXICAN LANDS IN JAIL FOR MURDER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Feb. 3.—Believing that time had made it safe for him to return, Jacinto Garcia came back from Mexico. That is why he is now in jail. Today he was ordered held to answer for the brutal murder of Reyes Molino, a California Spaniard, in 1909. Molino, weak from a stay in a hospital, was attacked, his head beaten to a pulp with a rock, and his body left on the Santa Fe Railroad tracks. He and Garcia had had a dispute over a matter of little consequence.

Recently Garcia returned, thinking he would not be prosecuted. He was mistaken. Witnesses at the preliminary examination had vivid memories of the occasion. Ferd Prince came upon Garcia and Molino as Molino was huddled on the tracks with the death rattle in his throat. Garcia dashed at Prince with a club and drove him away. In the moonlight Prince recognized Garcia.

WIDOW GETS BIG CHECK FOR DAMAGES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Feb. 3.—Mrs. Sarah Bergen has just received a check for $15,136.10 as payment of a judgment against the Tulare County Power Company, defunct, received as the result of a damage suit brought by her for the death of her husband, J. C. Bergen, who was killed by accidental contact with a power wire of the defendant corporation. The original judgment was for $12,500, handed down in the Superior Court nearly three years ago, the additions representing interest and costs.

TROOPS FOR CALEXICO.

Several Companies of Regulars will be Sent to Mexican Border in Imperial Valley to Take Place of National Guard. Permanent Station.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALEXICO, Feb. 3.—Col. W. E. Wilder, commanding officer of the United States forces in Calexico, has received word that as soon as all of Pershing's expeditionary force crosses the border at Columbus, several companies of regular troops will be sent to Calexico, to take the places of the Oregon and Washington militiamen, who are daily expecting orders or entrain for home.

More than 600 regulars and militiamen have been encamped at Camp John H. Beacon and this number would be reduced by more than half by the departure of the militiamen. People of this city were unaware that it was the intention of the Secretary of War to keep up the full quota of troops until the information received by Col. Wilder was made public.

Although there is not the least danger from any trouble with Col. Cantu's soldiers across the line, as the relations between the Americans and Mexicans are most amicable, Calexico has grown to think that the soldiers are a part of the city, and would regret to see the numbers diminished.

Neighbors Plow up Field of Retired Minister and Help Him to Make His Planting for Coming Season—Women Furnish Good Meal.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EL MONTE, Feb. 3.—One of those practical surprises was participated in by the old and new neighbors of Rev. J. D. Croan, who recently moved to the Tague place, one mile south of El Monte. These neighbors came on last Tuesday morning with their teams and plows and harrows, went to work with a will and plowed and harrowed all of Rev. Mr. Croan's ten and a half acres, preparing it for the flowers he is to sow.

The ladies also came to help Mrs. Croan with the dinner and to enjoy the occasion together. Some of the ladies went out during the afternoon and drove the teams back and forth, plowing and harrowing, and proved that they could be helpers in the field as well as in the kitchen.

Spring has come, and so has our new stock of boys' and juvenile wash suits. Certainly a most interesting collection of styles, fabrics, and models, with a wide variety in make-up and trimming. We are more than positive that no other store could equal our stock in these essential points, added to which is our splendid standard of value giving, and the fact that whatever you buy here, has the reputation of this old well established house behind it. Our suggestion is that it is wise to make your selections now while there is a complete line of sizes, and every style that you may admire. Annual Outing Expected to Attract More than Twenty-five Thousand Persons to Eastlake Park—Programme being Arranged.

More than 25,000 Iowans are expected by the officers of the Iowa Association of Southern California to attend the annual basket picnic and reunion at Eastlake Park the 22nd inst. Preparations for an appropriate programme are being forwarded by the committee in charge.

There will be the usual county and college registers, which have proved very popular at picnics in the past. This year the veterans of the Civil War will have special registers for themselves, and they will also be apportioned a choice site in the park where they may conduct their picnic.

The annual gathering is not so much one picnic as it is a communal picnic of former residents of all the counties of Iowa. Superior Judge Willis will preside at the central meeting and there will be a programme of Iowa oratory and Iowa songs. The members of the association in charge of the event are Judges Willis, Taft and Wilbur, County Assessor Hopkins and C. H. Parsons, secretary.

Dangerous Situation War-torn Mexico National

THE formation of a war board will probably be one of the first steps to be taken locally in the event of an open outbreak of hostilities between this country and Germany. This plan was proposed and approved yesterday by National Guardsmen and civilians who believe that the vulnerable position of Southern California, contiguous to seething Mexico, demands, in the event of war, prompt and vigorous action.

A similar plan was proposed about two years ago and had the indorsement of the Chamber of Commerce and prominent citizens generally. It is suggested that there would be available for such a board retired army officers of ability and experience and that a board composed of the best men available in Los Angeles and vicinity could do much to take care of the local interests.

While expressing the hope that actual hostilities may yet be averted, men who have studied the situation did not hesitate yesterday to emphasize possible dangerous situations arising from the proximity of war-stirred Mexico. As a basis for hostile operations by a nation at war with us, Mexico, it is pointed out, must be closely watched and guarded against.

The rich and prosperous Southwest is regarded as the vulnerable point of attack, at the outset of war, at least. Whatever the opinions of strategists elsewhere, local sentiment will undoubtedly demand a campaign of preparation that will include a mobile army of defense in addition to speedy rehabilitation and equipment of National Guard forces.

It seems certain that whether or not the war cloud results in war itself, the campaign to recruit the National Guard will at once receive a powerful impetus.

The eight companies of artillery stationed here have been conducting a successful campaign for some time and during the past few days have been substantially strengthened. PLAN A WAR BOARD HERE TO GUARD SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Dangerous Situation Anticipated Through Proximity to War-torn Mexico in Event of German Hostilities. National Guard's Plans Hastened.

THE formation of a war board will probably be one of the first steps to be taken locally in the event of an open outbreak of hostilities between this country and Germany. This plan was proposed and approved yesterday by National Guardsmen and civilians who believe that the vulnerable position of Southern California, contiguous to seething Mexico, demands in the event of war, prompt and vigorous action.

A similar plan was proposed about two years ago and had the indorsement of the Chamber of Commerce and prominent citizens generally. It is suggested that there would be available for such a board retired army officers of ability and experience and that a board composed of the best men available in Los Angeles and vicinity could do much to take care of the local interests.

While expressing the hope that actual hostilities may yet be averted, men who have studied the situation did not hesitate yesterday to emphasize possible dangerous situations arising from the proximity of war-stirred Mexico. As a basis for hostile operations by a nation at war with us, Mexico, it is pointed out, must be closely watched and guarded against.

The rich and prosperous Southwest is regarded as the vulnerable point of attack, at the outset of war, at least. Whatever the opinions of strategists elsewhere, local sentiment will undoubtedly demand a campaign of preparation that will include a mobile army of defense in addition to speedy rehabilitation and equipment of National Guard forces.

RUSH RECRUITING.

It seems certain that whether or not the war cloud results in war itself, the campaign to recruit the National Guard will at once receive a powerful impetus.

The eight companies of artillery stationed here have been conducting a successful campaign for some time and during the past few days have been substantially strengthened. Three companies, it is believed, can be placed on a war footing in a few days. Whatever these companies lack in the way of equipment will be promptly asked for.

Many of the companies in the Seventh Regiment are on a very low footing, two or three of them being almost non-existent. Of the twelve companies of the regiment, four are stationed in Los Angeles. These constitute one battalion. Another battalion is composed of companies in Pasadena, Long Beach, Santa Monica and Pomona. A third battalion is made up of four companies in Southern California cities outside of Los Angeles county.

Before the rupture of relations with Germany a well studied plan to concentrate the entire Seventh Regiment in Los Angeles and to create in outside cities an additional regiment to be known as the Eighth had been announced.

Some of the younger officers of the Guard yesterday said they believed this plan can now be carried out with far greater rapidity than under ordinary conditions. A feeling of confidence was noticeable that the entire Seventh Regiment can be promptly recruited in this city alone, provided the emergency becomes acute. The machine gun company is already in good condition, most of its members having served a long time and being familiar with military drill and the handling of their guns.

The confidence of National Guard officers in the ability of the department to secure recruits was voiced yesterday afternoon by Maj. Charles F. Hutchins, senior major of the Seventh Regiment. Maj. Hutchins believes that in the event of a real war emergency it would only require a day or two to secure enough recruits in Los Angeles to bring the Seventh Regiment to full standard and not much longer to get men enough to create another regiment.

In his opinion the rapidity with which the regiments would be recruited would only be limited by the ability of medical officers to make the examinations.

The big task, in Maj. Hutchins's opinion, will be to drill the men and get them in shape to comply with the requirements of the War Department. He believes that officers will have to give up all other duties and work constantly as drillmasters, and he is certain that not one will shirk that responsibility.

These and other measures which it is proposed to take here will supplement the advantage against a hostile movement from the direction of Mexico provided by the presence of a considerable portion of the United States Army at or near the border.

That these precautions cannot be too vigorously nor effectively taken is the consensus of opinion, for Mexico committing bandit depredations and fighting, faction against faction, is not the same as Mexico provided with skilled army officers and up-to-date equipment.

Even though most Angelenos yesterday were hopeful that no actual war steps will become necessary, it was evident that the city is alert and prepared to act as promptly and effectively as the means at hand make possible.

The cadets of the Los Angeles High School will probably become a part of the reorganized National Guard, under the terms of the National Defense Act. Maj. A. J. Copp, Jr., Judge-Advocate of the Guard, and Capt. James Irvine, Company A, are furthering the movement.

The boys will be asked to become a division of the National Guard and will be thus given an opportunity to study the various branches of warfare and after three or four years, take examinations, which will enable them to become lieutenants, captains or majors on the Officers Reserve Corps.

"If the boys take this step," said Maj. Copp yesterday, "they will be doing themselves a great deal of good and if they study and pass the examinations, which will be held each year, they will be of great service to their country in case of war. At present there is any amount of material for soldiers, but very few officers. The boys would be of greater value as officers than merely as privates.

"These young men who have already had some military training are more adaptable to the demands of an officer's position than those who lack this advantage. They could, with some study, enter the regular army with the rank of lieutenant. A further advantage is that if the boys go to the University of California or to Stanford University, and take military training there, the government will pay them $9 per month, for rations, which will aid them in their expense at school. The military training offered for young men under the new act will be a great advantage to every man who takes advantage of it."

Undivided Loyalty.

LOS ANGELES, A UNIT, BACKS UP PRESIDENT.

"Stand by the Flag!" Single Motto of Our Great Organizations.

THAT Los Angeles will stand squarely back of the President in this tremendous hour in the country's history is the declaration of the city officials, business leaders, heads of great organizations, churches and pastors. The Mayor yesterday thoroughly indorsed the attitude of The Times that all Americans, native-born or hyphenated, Republicans, Democrats, or whatever party—will sustain the administration in standing for the honor of the United States and for upholding its flag, whatever may be the cost in life or treasure.

Mayor Woodman said: "As American citizens we will all stand squarely back of the President in this crisis. At such a time as this it does not matter what our politics is, we are all Americans first. No matter whether we disagree with the President or agree with him on his domestic policy we are all one in upholding him in guarding the country's honor. He knows things that we do not. He is far better aware of the actual conditions than we are. Therefore we place our implicit trust in him and will stand solidly together as Americans in upholding his every act and deed in defense of the sacred rights of the United States. This is not a time for any person to criticise the President, but it is the time to use every effort in supporting him, and that we will do."

FROM THE PULPITS.

From practically every pulpit in the Los Angeles churches today the ministers or leading laymen will discuss the grave situation that has arisen between this nation and Germany, and in some cases the coast, located only a comparativel few miles from Mexico, and it seething cauldron of trouble, will be touched upon. The fact will be pointed out, by some speakers, that Germany's influence in Mexican affairs is a far-reaching one, and that it is possible that trouble for the United States, and for Los Angeles and Southern California, may come through that source, aggravated by German influences.

Many of the churches will be asked to adopt resolutions of support and loyalty to the President of the United States in this critical hour. Practical advice will be given as to avoiding the assemblying of large crowds for discussion of the situation in such a manner as might be provocative of riots, and appeals will be made for an increased loyalty that will freshly pledge every man and woman to the support of the United States—their country, whether by birth or by adoption.

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, in his sermon in Temple Auditorium tonight on "The Eyes of the World," will take occasion to dwell on some of the phases outlined above, and will make a strong plea for loyalty to President Wilson in this stressful time. He will urge that all hyphenated Americanism be submerged into the true citizen of the United States, and that great care be taken in each individual's daily doings that no embroiling discussions be indulged in, or other acts that might tend to arouse antagonism between citizens of this country, no matter what may have been their natal place.

Dr. Charles Edward Locke, in connection with his lecture tonight on "Birthday Reminiscences of Two Great Americans, McKinley and Lee," will discuss the present situation and advocate without qualification that every American stand by the President. Dr. Locke will urge that calmness of speech and vision accompany patriotism and loyalty, but that it is the duty of every one to uphold Mr. Wilson's hands in the hour of crisis.

BIG MORAL EFFECT.

W. W. Mines, president of the Los Angeles Realty Board: I am a Republican, always have been and I presume always will be. I believe that now is the time we, as citizens of this country, should stand back of President Wilson. Undoubtedly he is in a position to know a great deal more of this terrible affair than we do, and has acted according to his best judgment. Personally I don't believe we are any nearer war than we were, but I believe the President has added strength to the nation by taking this stand. It has been felt that we lacked nerve and I believe it will have a big moral effect on all the

WILL ALLOW NO FRANZ BOPPS TO HATCH THEIR PLOTS HERE.

STEPS were taken by Chief of Police Butler and Sheriff Cline yesterday afternoon to throw special safeguards around and throughout the city in order that there may be no overt act on the part of erratic or overzealous supporters of the German cause, or acts of sedition, by the Franz Bopps, of Los Angeles, street haranguers or pamphleteers, who always crop up in the face of such crises as the present.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the captains of police were called into the Chief's office and the entire local situation was discussed. Orders were given that every patrolman shall be cautioned to closely observe any condition on his beat that might give any semblance of trouble, and that the utmost promptitude must be taken to suppress any riotous talking or speechmaking, or any assemblage of persons engaged in inflammable discussions.

The officers of the various public utilities were requested to increase their diligence, and so maintain the guard that has been placed on their properties that there can be no danger of the commission of any acts that might cripple these means for public service. The co-operation of these utility concerns was promptly given, and extra guards were placed on duty at points where there might be temptation on the part of some rabid person to create mischief that would inconvenience the entire city.

Extra guards were also placed on the wharves at the Harbor District, and special patrols were put on duty at the municipal wharves and buildings at both Wilmington and San Pedro.

While Chief Butler is unable at this time to provide more officers, he has arranged to bring in a number of men from outside districts and concentrate them today, and probably longer, in the more condensed portions of the city. The meetings of agitators on the streets and other public places will be closely watched, and any attempts to incite the hearers to unlawful or mischievous and malicious acts will be promptly suppressed.

Because of the volatile nature of Mexican gatherings, the regular Sunday crowds at the Plaza and vicinity will be under special surveillance. Fear has been expressed from various sources that attempts would be made by radical pro-Germans to stir up feeling, against Americans, through the use of agitators in the Mexican colonies. The various men and women who have long indulged their propensity for addressing street crowds are all known to the police, and their actions will be most closely scrutinized during these critical days.

Federal officers in this city were in close communication with Washington all yesterday. United States District Attorney Schoonover stated that he had been in touch with the heads of his department, but that nothing of special importance had come out.

Inspector of Immigration Connell stated that he had received a number of telegrams of instruction, but that they were all of a confidential nature. None of the other officials would give out anything for publication. It was stated that it would be the policy of the administration to take the public into confidence on all matters touching the welfare of the nation, but that at present the situation is in such a chaotic condition and so unsettled that nothing is to be given out except from Washington direct.

AGITATOR WANTED.

Bench Warrant Out for Mexican Who Talked About the Revolt Against Cantu, It is Charged, and Who Jumped His Bail Deposited.

A bench warrant for the arrest of Fortunato Tenorio, who jumped his bond of $2500 after being charged with violation of the neutrality laws, was issued yesterday by Judge Trippet, at the request of Assistant United States District Attorney Palmer.

Beyond the fact that Tenorio is "somewhere in Mexico" there is no information here as to his whereabouts. And his movements there would have to be confined to territory outside of Lower California that is under the jurisdiction of Gov. Estaban Cantu, who is also looking for Tenorio.

Tenorio is an educated Mexican, has a strong following in Lower California and is alleged to have tried to incite revolt and organize a force against Gov. Cantu.

The Truth.

WHAT WE CAN AND CANNOT DO IF WE GO TO WAR TOMORROW.

Facts Show it to be Nothing from a Military and Naval Point of View—Outbreak in Mexico would Follow Sending Troops Away.

BY HARRY CARR.

LET us suppose that tomorrow night the telegraph clicks off the news that a German submarine has torpedoed and sunk an American passenger liner and that all on board have been lost.

Well, that means war.

And with what are we going to war?

The actual strength of the United States Army on October 31, 1916, was as follows:

Cavalry—537 officers, 17,905 enlisted men.

Field artillery—188 officers and 6907 men.

Coast artillery—508 officers and 18,278 men.

Infantry—1134 officers and 39,558 men.

Engineer corps—252 officers and 2036 men.

Unassigned recruits, detached officers, etc., bring the total up to 4795 officers and 106,327 men.

In view of the present disturbed conditions on the Mexican border it would be impossible to detach any of the cavalry for service in Europe. We haven't half enough even to guard the border. The same is true of the infantry.

Our artillery was adjudged to be absurdly insufficient for an invasion of Mexico, so we couldn't spare field artillery. The coast artillery, as is well known, is not strong enough numerically to come anywhere near manning our forts. So no coast artillery could go, even were there anything for them to do in Europe.

We have eighty-eight army dentists, thirty-eight Indian scouts who are out of a job since the return of Pershing from Mexico, and 217 guards at the disciplinary barracks.

Perhaps, we could spare half of the dentists, all the Indian scouts and four or five of the guards at the disciplinary barracks.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

But of course we have other resources besides the regulars. Last fall we had approximately 110,000 National Guardsmen on the border. None of them got enough training to make them really available for service against foreign troops; still, they had some training. If they were at hand, with four or five months' additional experience it might be possible to put them into the field. But they are not at hand. Since the return from the border the entire National Guard has been destroyed.

But let us be optimistic and assume that all these discharged militiamen will come back into the service at the call of war, and that they will register at the highest point of efficiency they attained at the border.

Even so, it would be a grave peril to send them across the ocean. At the moment of their departure there is every reason to believe that the Mexican situation would flare up. Germany is in a position of paramount influence in Mexico. In the event of a war with Germany there is a fair ground for supposition that Mexico will, at the same minute, require our military attention.

The best authorities estimate that it would require 500,000 men to reduce Mexico. Counting our entire regular army plus our National Guard, we would be short 278,878 soldiers for the conquest of Mexico. Not counting small details like a war with Germany, we lack the military resources to attend to the troubles that would be likely to start at home.

Mr. Bryan, however, assures us that 1,000,000 men would spring to arms before sunset of the first day of the war.

It is not clear where Mr. Bryan is going to get the million arms for them to spring to; but assume that he has some kind of Aladdin's wand whereby he can make rifles and equipment with a wave.

Very well, the million men have sprung. Now what are we going to do with them? Let us stop kidding ourselves and look at this situation in terms of sanity.

IT TAKES TIME.

Foreign armies were, before the war, designed to be training schools. Young men were taught the trade of soldiering and turned back to civil life. The period of service adopted was the shortest possible time in which experience showed that a man could thoroughly master the job under the guidance of highly-trained professional officers as teachers.

In Austria-Hungary, this period was set at three years for horse artillery and cavalry and at two years each for infantry, field artillery and engineers.

In France all branches of the service had three years training.

In Germany the period was the same as in Austria.

Italy trained all branches of the service for two years.

Japan trains her soldiers of all branches for two years.

In Russia, the horse artillery, cavalry and Cossacks had four years' training. Infantry and field artillery had three years. Engineers four years.

During the period of this war, all the governments at war have sent men to the front with less training than this. The German government has sent infantry to battle with as little as fourteen weeks' training; but this instruction was given by highly-trained officers and the recruits were, in every instance, sent to join experienced war-hardened troops, Germans from childhood, see so much of soldiers that they become trained more quickly than men of other nations and they are half soldiers before they join the colors.

It is certain that the British government, during the pressing days of 1915, sent men to the front at the earliest possible minute and with as little training as they could possibly do duty with.

Let us see what this earliest minute was.

Generally speaking, the training of Canadian troops has been about three to four months in Canada, thereafter four to eight months in England and about two months in France.

The first Canadian expedition contained the bulk of the militia, which had received partial training before being called to the colors. Before embarking it was trained two months in Canada, about four and one-half months in England and about two months in France, or a total of about eight months before being put in the trenches.

Princess Pat's regiment, which consisted mainly of old soldiers, was trained for about six months in Canada before being sent across. Even then, it was trained for two additional months in France before going into the trenches.

WORDS OF CAUTION.

Col. Glenn, chief-of-staff under Gen. Wood, gave the following testimony before the United States Senate Committee on Military Affairs in refutation of the assertion that six months would be enough training to enable American soldiers to go to the front.

"I have been informed," he said, "that certain evidence has been given before your committee going to show that reliable and trustworthy soldiers can be created in six months and in support of this statement that the volunteer regiments we sent to the Philippine Islands were entirely reliable. I caution you not to place much reliance upon this class of evidence for the following reasons: First, these volunteers never encountered a civilized enemy; on the contrary, the enemy was insufficiently officered, very poorly trained and actually disappeared on the first indication of a charge on the part of United States troops that appeared before them. Second, these Federal volunteers were raised under exceptional circumstances. As a matter of fact they were, as to the commissioned personnel, and largely as to the enlisted personnel, the pick of some 250,000 volunteers (Spanish-American) who had had about a year's training in the field in addition to their previous militia experience."

So, if Col. Bryan's million men spring up as he predicts and, if the colonel knows where there is equipment for a million men somewhere, it seems clear that they must be trained at least eight months before they go to the front.

It would be October at least before an American soldier would smell powder. Of course, we have no such supplies of ammunition or arms at hand, so, as a matter of fact, it would be a year before an American army could be sent in large numbers to the front.

THE NAVY.

Let us look at the navy:

Testifying before the Senate, Capt. McKean of the Bureau of Naval Operations, who is probably the best-posted man in this country on the strength of our navy in comparison to our need for navy strength, gave the following figures:

	Our ships, built, building and authorised.	What we should have to meet probable enemies.
Dreadnaughts	17	42
Pre-dreadnaughts	25	25
Armored cruisers	10	10
Battle cruisers	..	24
Large scout cruisers	..	18
First-class cruisers	5	5
Second-class cruisers	4	4
Third-class cruisers	15	15
Gunboats	30	30
Destroyers	74	162
Torpedo boats	21	21
Coast submarines	72	153
Fleet submarines	3	30
Monitors	9	9

It might be possible for us to send a few ships into the North Sea, where the British already have more warships than they know what to do with and no one to fight against. But what good would they do after they got there?

All of these are hard, unpleasant facts to face, but the truth remains that the United States is in the humiliating position of having no adequate forces should we get into war.

The only consolation we have is that the war probably will be ended before we could get soldiers to the front.

The most tragic phase of the situation is that we will present the most humiliating exhibition of weakness ever seen in a modern war.

Patriotism.

WE'RE AMERICANS FIRST, DECLARE LOCAL GERMANS.

Would Fight for this Country Against Any Other Nation, if Need be, but not with Entente Allies on European Battlefields—Head of Alliance Urges Calmness in Face of Difficult Situation.

"WE ARE Americans first. With practically every person of German birth or German ancestry, I am willing to challenge anyone to find greater patriotism than you will find among us towards the land of our adoption, the United States," said Max Socha, president of the German-American Alliance, an organization representing the best interests and the majority of the 75,000 persons of German extraction in Southern California. He is also editor of "Germania," leading local German daily.

"To a man we will fight Germany or any other nation that might attempt to attack the territory or the integrity of the United States.

"When it comes to joining with the Allies on the battlefields of Europe, we may assume another view. It would be a fearful thing to think of killing our own relatives in an unjustifiable warfare abroad and I feel that many of our German-Americans would assume a passive attitude, hoping and praying that such warfare should stop immediately.

TO FIGHT FOR COUNTRY.

"If fight we must, let us fight our own battles, not as Allies of the Entente, but as Americans fighting for the rights of this country against any and all nations that violate them.

"Germany is not looking for new nations to enter the league against her. She and her allies have enemies enough at the present time. She undoubtedly will go a long, long way to avert such a calamity as war with the country, the first step of which has possibly been taken by the severance of diplomatic relations.

"In 1914, President Wilson declared against the loans of vast sums of money to any of the fighting nations. In the following year, he changed his attitude and $500,000,000 was allowed to go to the Entente Allies. Today the total of loans to these nations by the great financial powers of this nation aggregate $2,333,000,000 or more than what it cost to finance the Civil War.

"The blockade of England, France and Russia just declared by Germany is in no sense different than the blockade declared by these nations against Germany and her allies at the beginning of the war. When the Entente mocked at the peace terms which she offered and when Lloyd George and his associates declared for war to the bitter and relentless end, Germany agreed and for that reason announced her intention of doing nothing more than the Allies had already done to her, attempt the starving of the common people.

"Fearing for their investments and the continuation of business with the Allies, the great financial interests have brought terrific power to bear on the President and other government officials. The result has been the present situation.

PREDICT GREATER HORRORS.

"Consideration of the United States as the greatest neutral has held the belligerents on both sides back so far. This consideration will evanesce if this country enters the struggle. The war from now on will be waged with greater ruthlessness and destruction on both sides. The world will probably be horrified at the happenings of the next few months. It is too horrible to contemplate and yet this country appears to be rushing into the inferno as blindly and recklessly as did Italy or Rumania.

"I believe that at least 90 per cent. of the American people stand today for peace and against the entrance of this nation into the fearful quarrel. I believe that their influence will be sufficient to prevent an actual clash of arms and hope that it will not even permit the entrance of this nation into a bitter controversy.

"If we do become involved, our quarrel should be strictly with Germany and should have nothing to do with the questions of the other Allied nations. Our warfare will probably not reach a greater participation than that of Japan, which is passive."

In an editorial directed to the many German-speaking persons of Southern California in their mother tongue, Mr. Socha counsels peacefulness in all their actions and their remarks. His suggestion is headed with the caption, "Calm blood; closed mouths; hopefulness to the end."

Briefly he calls attention to the matters which have come to pass during the eventful week. "German-Americans are placed in a very strained position. There will be no lack of verbal attack and criticism against them on the part of many unthinking persons. The things to remember above all and to stick to at all times are calmness and refusal to rise in passion; a temperate and careful tongue and hopefulness to the end that the present situation will terminate happily.

"Even this chalice of sorrow will pass over us and the rising sun of a newer and better time will break through the clouds. Let us hope and pray that a declaration of war will not come. If it does, it will not be the will or wish of the great majority of peace-loving citizens, no matter what their ancestry. Should war be declared, we must work with our adopted country to help bring it to the speediest termination possible. In the end, we must do everything we possibly can to bring about peace and better feeling with the Central Allies."

LET THE STARS AND STRIPES FLY FROM EVERY HOUSE TOP.

FLY the American flag from every housetop in Los Angeles and from every business house let the Stars and Stripes stream.

That is the suggestion made by prominent professional and business men and Mayor Woodman will be asked on Monday to issue a proclamation calling upon every business man to show the national colors and upon every householder to display the flag to show that President Wilson is upheld by a united Los Angeles in the steps he is taking to preserve the honor of America.

A few minutes after word was received from Washington yesterday of the momentous action taken by the President the flag was displayed proudly upon some of the lofty buildings on Broadway and Spring street. The Chamber of Commerce officials lost no time in sending the flag to the masthead on its building on Broadway, between First and Second streets, and the owners of other buildings quickly followed suit.

J. S. Mitchell, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, said: "In spite of strained relations and extreme official actions, I still hope a complete break with Germany may be averted. I deeply sympathize with our German-born American citizens whose parents or other relatives are still in the Fatherland, and whose love for the old home will be shocked beyond expression by the very thought of war between two nations between whom there should be only friendliness and co-operation. They are, however, American citizens, and I am convinced our cause will inspire their loyalty. We are now depending upon the President of the United States, our President, and to a man we will rally to his support as patriots and soldiers."

warring nations. I don't think this country will go to war, but that the effect of his stand will ward off war.

E. G. Judah, president of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association: The manufacturers will do their part, if war comes. In this crisis the resources of this great country will be available and the great industries can be whipped into shape for military duty and in a little while war materials can be produced on a titanic scale so that this country will become the greatest producer of war materials in the universe. It will take a little time, of course, to get the country into shape, but nothing is lacking to that end. I believe, however, that Germany will be willing to listen to the voice of reason. She values the friendship of the United States, but she is under a terrific strain.

Mrs. Josiah E. Cowles, president of the National Federation of Woman's Clubs, said: The Federated Woman's Clubs of the United States, representing a membership of approximately 3,000,000 women, will stand behind the President as a unit. We are all good Americans first, and come what may, peace or war, we stand by the flag."

Paul Shoup, president Pacific Electric Railway Company: The voice of the President is the voice of the nation. Under the Constitution we lay upon the President and Congress heavy responsibilities in this crisis; and the obligation is upon us as citizens to stand solidly back of them in their decision, whatever it may be and wherever it may lead. Opinions now are only worth while if constructive and helpful; upon the knowledge and judgment of our national administration we must rest in confidence, and give it support, wholehearted, with loyal word and loyal deed.

Our Own Trouble.

WE'LL NOT JOIN ALLIES, SAYS FINANCIER, HERE.

"OUR quarrel will be a quarrel entirely with Germany and does not for a moment mean that we are to become a part of the Allies or to assist and aid them in any way," said J. Howard Ardrey, vice-president and commercial manager of the National Bank of Commerce, the second largest financial institution in America, located in New York City. With his wife, he is at the Alexandria.

"I am not on the inside of governmental affairs and cannot speak with any kind of authority on matters pertaining to the present crisis," said the financier. "However, I do know that moneyed interests are not at all worried about the situation and it is not expected to create any kind of a serious disturbance.

"Call money continues cheap, holding yesterday at 2 cents. After the first shock of the news, the stock market rallied from a momentary decline and closed very strong. The country is flooded with gold. Banks in the great farming and manufacturing districts are so crowded with cash that they cannot dispose of even a portion of it because nearly everyone has more than enough capital to operate on.

"The fact that we are breaking off diplomatic relations is by no means a sign that we are to become partners of England, France, Russia and the other Allies. I believe that our diplomats are entirely too sane to ever admit of such entanglements. Even if we should declare a war, it would be our own war and have nothing to do with the fight of other nations against Germany and her allies.

"Food prices as well as prices on a number of other commodities might drop considerably as a result of the present situation owing to the impossibility of further exports if Germany can carry out her intentions and threats. That remains to be seen. Some stocks may fall off decidedly in value for the same reason. The great bulk of American industries are so overcrowded with orders at present that it will take the majority of them a year to catch up with their American demands. There is little possibility of a slump in business from such an angle."

We're sure this is by far the very best offering of its kind we have ever made in this store. Imported materials—every inch of them.

Gold, silver and iridescent metallic effects that flash the brilliance of a thousand vari-colored lamps. And there must be at least twenty distinctly different designs worked in this way.

Gold and silver laces and bands—only a bolt or two of these, but just as beautiful as can be.

Exquisite designs worked in cotton threads on fine wash nets, among which are a few very beautiful pieces on web-like diamond-mesh nets.

Widths vary from 12, 18, 24, 27 to 36 inches. Many pieces are duplicated in pattern in two or more widths.

$1.00, $1.25, $2.00 Yard

These prices were never meant for such wonderful trimmings. They are far, far too low, and in many instances the plain net itself would be worth as much or more than the embroidered piece.

MODEST ANGELENOS.

Of twenty-seven men and eight women who, through the columns of yesterday's Times, answered the question, "What would you do if you were President?" no man and only one woman asserted that "it would be preposterous to imagine myself in such a place."

"Modesty," says the proverb, "is a quality which highly adorns a woman, but is utterly ruinous to a man."

Huh!

STRIPPING THE GOOSE.

The maxim of Colbert was that the perfection of taxation consists in so plucking the goose—i.e., the people—as to procure the greatest amount of feathers with the least possible amount of squawking. Our legislators, both at Washington and Sacramento, seem utterly indifferent to the noise the goose is making. They are stripping him of his feathers from the down on his breast to the plumes on his wings without mercy and without remorse.

STARVE OR STUFF.

Of all the fool methods ever devised by men or women to compel people who do not know or care for them to do something that they do not want to do, a hunger strike is the most thoroughly and efficiently asinine.

The Times does not approve of forcibly feeding hunger strikers. It would place nutritious and inviting food in the cell of the lady, and leave her to starve or stuff as her inclinations and her intestines might dictate.

PIOUS ARIZONA.

The Arizona Legislature is setting an example to the world of liberality. With Mrs. O'Neill of Maricopa county in the Speaker's chair, the House gave $5000 to the Northern Arizona fair; it increased teachers' pensions; it permitted the producers of potatoes to market their products without insisting that they divide the cash results on a 50-50 basis with market officials, and finally, in a burst of religious enthusiasm, enacted a law permitting reading of the Bible in public schools.

The Times congratulates the children now being educated in Arizona on the pious starter that the Cactus State is giving them. In its mind's eye—all in its eye—it beholds them when they shall be "grown-ups" kneeling at their daily orisons.

A TEXAS TANGLE.

Under the Constitution of Texas a foreigner who has taken out his first naturalization papers, viz., a declaration of his intention to become an American citizen, is privileged to vote at all elections.

As a result, many Mexicans have been ungrateful enough to vote the Republican ticket. In order to put an end to this nefarious abuse of the franchise the statesmen of the Lone Star State propose to amend their Constitution.

The Times commends their action, but not for the reason assigned. There seems to be no good reason why a youth of 16 years who was born in Texas and has lived there sixteen years should be denied the privilege of executing a freeman's will, while a Mexican who has lived in Texas not more than one year should be made a voter.

FIFTY YEARS A GRAFTER.

At the banquet given to Sam Gompers last Monday on his sixty-seventh birthday he said that while he could leave his children no fortune, he would leave better labor conditions under which they would not find it so hard to live as he had found it when he first entered the industrial field. Is it possible that Sam does not consider his Chicago blocks a fortune? or that he means to bequeath them elsewhere than to his children?

Sam said that this was not only the sixty-seventh anniversary of his birth, it was also of his fifty years of service in the cause of union labor and his golden wedding anniversary. He married when he was 17 years of age and has been promoting strikes and exacting tribute from strikers ever since.

President Wilson sent Sam a letter of congratulation and expressed his regret that his imperative duty of watching Congress would prevent his attendance at the banquet.

ON FIT.

The classical saying, "Poet nascitur, orator non fit," found illustration at a political meeting in Tokio, Japan, last week.

The favorite stump speaker, the Billy [illegible] of Japan, Yukin Ozaki, formerly Minister of Justice, was addressing a great mass meeting. He denounced his opponent, Count Terauchi, as a liar, a horse thief and a democrat. Thereupon two friends of Terauchi, armed with short swords, sprang on the platform and tried to stab Ozaki. The orator "non fit," but his friends rallied to his support and overpowered and arrested the miscreant. Two other Terauchiites then went with their fists at the orator, who again "non fit," but the audience rallied to the aid of the speaker and the assailants received stern punishment that compelled them for several days to take their meals standing.

The incident reminds The Times of the last Democratic State convention held in Sacramento before the Civil War, when five earthen spittoons were hurled at the chairman, because he overruled a point of order made by a delegate from the camp of Hell's Delight in old Tuolumne.

THE CRISIS.

The imperative duty of the hour for the people of the United States is moral, mental and military preparedness, on land and sea.

The determination announced by the Kaiser—unless promptly, unequivocally, distinctly and authoritatively disclaimed as to American ships, American citizens and neutral American freight—to torpedo and sink at sight all ships, armed or unarmed, that sail the seas within the zone he has prescribed, whether they fly belligerent or neutral flags, and to murder without mercy their human freight, may not immediately and necessarily result in war, unless the German Kaiser makes good his threat, but the hope for peace is not bright.

We should stand behind the government of the United States, cease prating about being a "pacificist," and without delay arm—and keep on arming. The exigency may require the speedy building of hundreds of submarines and battleships: well, we have the shipyards and the skilled artisans. It may require the expenditure of hundreds or even thousands of millions of dollars: well, our treasure vaults, national, State and private, are bursting with gold. It may require—sorest sacrifice of all—that tens of thousands of our brave men shall climb the red path to immortality. Even so, as when, in days long gone, trembling fingers wrote the checks that Capital gave to Country, and men of manhood bared their breasts to the iron hail, and womanhood, with eyes dimmed with tears, guided the needle through garments that were being fashioned for the absent husband and father and brother and sweetheart: in the marts of trade, amid the hum of spindles and the clank of hammers; in the hospitals of sorrow; by the midnight watch fire; wherever the bannered stars gleam from the masts of ships, and amid the roar of battle on land, there will the bayonets and the swords of Americans gleam and their dauntless hearts throb for their country.

We are today the richest and most powerful nation in the world. Within our confines lives the world's last hope of a free government on earth. Shall we be buffeted and insulted and assaulted with impunity? Never!

There is also an imperative duty to be performed by the tens of millions who will abide at home. It is to place a strangle clutch around the throat of treason and to smite into silence the tricky, seditious lips of those who would betray their native or adopted country.

Let political divisions be forgotten and political sins forgiven. Let divided sections, sects and segments be welded into one patriotic whole—into one single fighting nation. Let us strengthen and uphold the government in all its branches—Congress, the Executive and the Judiciary, and above all, "the Army and the Navy forever." It is the government for whose salvation, preservation and perpetuity patriotic soldiers and sailors have shed blood, and patriotic citizens have stood fast, suffered and endured.

Our country calls! Let us respond ungrudgingly to the call! These measures, taken promptly and with unwavering determination by a free and unified nation, will do more than all else to stay the hand of the Kaiser and his kind, even at this imminent hour, when it may yet be not too late.

The right is with us, God is with the right and Victory with God!

THE FLOOD CONTROL PROPOSITION. IT DOESN'T LOOK GOOD.

This is not a time to draw a sight draft on the bank of folly. It is rather a time for wise conservatism. Consequently, there are many to commend and few to criticise the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce and kindred bodies to secure the naming of a board of experts to pass on the plans of Engineer J. W. Reagan of the county flood-control district.

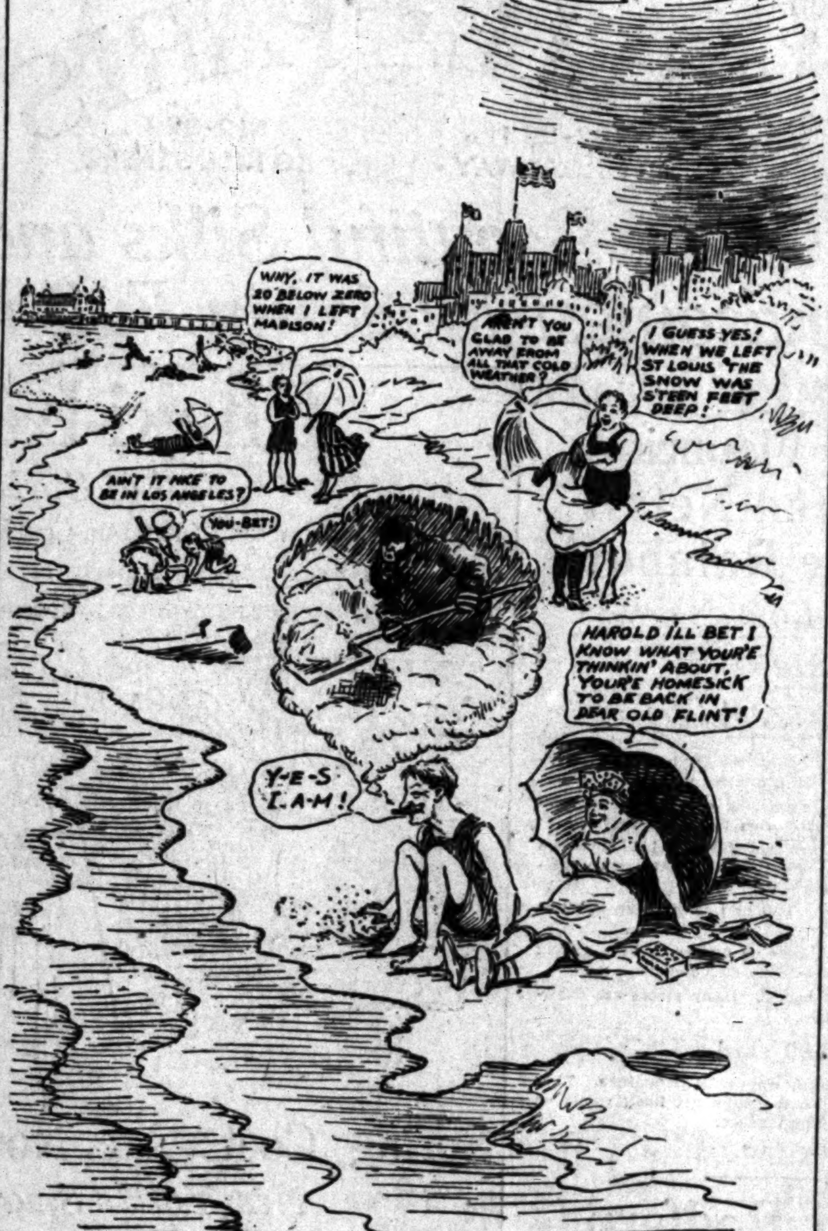
In Friday's issue of The Times there was published a letter from Supervisor F. E. Woodley, chairman of the division of finance, Board of Supervisors, apropos of the intended submission of a $4,450,000 flood-bond issue to the voters the 20th inst. In this he brought a series of indictments against the control scheme, chief among which is that it is a plan founded on a basis of special privileges. Nowhere in this letter does he mention the fact that the county now faces a deficit from operations of approximately $1,000,000 for the current year. Probably, as chairman of the Supervisors' division of finance, it is an old, old story with him; possibly it was an oversight on his part.

But with the public, the taxpayers, it is different; a deficit of $1,000,000 for the year will mean either an increase in taxes or a bond issue, and all forward-looking men are against both in these days when butter is selling at 50 cents a pound. The truth is that our saturnalia of ill-considered bond issues has left us with a bad taste in the mouth, and the kind of headache that has or should make for wisdom. Consequently, we forecast defeat for the flood-bond initiative, irrespective of any merit or lack of merit that Engineer Reagan's plans may have.

But getting down to the main issue. The mere hint that certain civic organizations favor the naming of a board of experts to pass on Engineer Reagan's plans has brought a most emphatic protest from the Los Angeles County Flood Control Association, the parent of the plan. In this protest the association voices the belief that the real motive back of the board of experts' plan is to create a division of opinion among engineers and so pave the way for the defeat of the bonds.

Such a division of opinion, by the by, really preceded the entire flood-bond proposition, for, as ex-Supervisor Woodley points out, it was the minority member of the old Board of Engineers, Flood Control, who was named by the solid supervisory three to carry into effect the majority recommendations. How well Mr. Reagan has put them into effect, or how far he has deviated from the fundamentals of control as laid down by the majority, is certainly a subject that interests the taxpayer. Nor do we believe that Mr. Reagan, whose ability as an engineer has never been questioned, is disinclined to have his control plans put under the engineering microscope. Incidentally, it will be but repeating aqueduct history if they are.

Where Peace Reigns.



WHY, IT WAS 20 BELOW ZERO WHEN I LEFT MADISON!
AREN'T YOU GLAD TO BE AWAY FROM ALL THAT COLD WEATHER?
I GUESS YES! WHEN WE LEFT ST LOUIS THE SNOW WAS 'STEEN FEET DEEP!
AIN'T IT NICE TO BE IN LOS ANGELES?
YOU-BET!
HAROLD I'LL BET I KNOW WHAT YOUR'E THINKIN' ABOUT, YOUR'E HOMESICK TO BE BACK IN DEAR OLD FLINT!
Y-E-S I-A-M!

But, considering more particularly Mr. Woodley's implied indictment that the whole control scheme is founded on a parcel of special privileges, is the blanket-bonding plan to be commended for its equity? Indeed no! It is not, for, as Mr. Woodley points out, 80 per cent. of the cost of the work under the issue will be borne by municipal taxpayers, while the persons specifically benefited will escape with a tittle of cost, they being the owners of the land, now marked worthless or near worthless for tax-assessing purposes, which will be reclaimed to fruitfulness through the flood-control plans.

What, it seems to many, would be the equitable way of handling the matter would be to make the benefited bear the major cost. But the rejoinder to this is that this presupposes a nicety of judgment in imposing assessments that is rarely met with. However, it surely might be attempted in the face of Mr. Woodley's disconcerting statement: "I consider the protection work to be done under the bond issue has been distributed with the view of getting votes."

Further along in his letter Mr. Woodley says: "I do not consider the work as laid out under the bond issue will give the protection it is proposed to give;" and: "This bond issue of $4,450,000 is only the opening wedge for subsequent and larger bond issues which will be needed if the work started is to be made effective."

Surely, it is anything other than a tempting morsel that the people of this county are invited to swallow, even omitting more than a casual reference to what some have described as a joker or a graft in the enabling measure under which the work will be done. This is the lack of any civil service provision. In other words, the hinges are to be knocked off the county's vault and the spoils distributed among the chosen.

OUR GERMAN-AMERICAN RESIDENTS

In this trying emergency, when coolness and a careful weighing of all the pressing considerations are required of everybody, The Times ventures to make a few suggestions to residents of California of German origin and German sympathies.

Men and women, it is a time for you to be calm, thoughtful and deliberate. It is a time for you to weigh well every word you say and to ponder well every action you take. Your conduct will be scrutinized and your utterances will be open to criticism, naturally. You cannot reasonably expect less. Feeling has arisen to a high degree of intensity, and things which in other days might pass unnoticed may now give rise to reprisals. Men and women of German origin, you are now in the United States of America, the land of your adoption, the land which has sheltered and befriended, the land in which you have prospered, to which you owe your allegiance, and of which allegiance so many among you have given the highest proof. Be careful that you do not by one syllable or one deed stimulate latent bitterness or offend lofty patriotism, now freshly aroused. You cannot be too cautious; your painstaking cannot be too extreme. All may yet be well if restraint and prudence hold sway.

You can, if you will—you citizens of Teutonic extraction—give to Los Angeles the proud and coveted name of having acted, in this dire crisis, more sanely, more wisely and justly than any American city of like size and similar cosmopolitan population, representing every nationality on earth.

These remarks and this advice come from a journal which has not consciously been unjust or unfair to Germany or the German people, either at home or abroad, throughout the fierce and bloody conflict which still devastates Europe.

HOME LAXITY.

The report of the California State Board of Prison Directors reveals an unpleasant increase in the number of prisoners sent to Folsom and San Quentin during the last year. One of the most distressing features of this report is the still more startling increase in the number of convicts between the ages of 18 and 22.

This tendency among young girls and boys "to go wrong" the report attributes to too much laxity in the home training. We live in times when the cult of personal freedom and independence from all ties and obligations is fast becoming a dangerous fetich. We are losing the old-fashioned belief in discipline. "It should be made the imperative legal, as well as moral, duty of parents to rear children properly" is the recommendation of the State board.

If the children are not taught the value of discipline at home, we can hardly expect them in after years to recognize their obligations to society at large. Since her future citizenship depends on her present children, America can ill afford to countenance any breakdown of home influence. To sow the storm of child neglect is to reap the whirlwind of criminality.

At present only a fraction of one per cent. of our children come into the delinquency courts. But one in a thousand is one too many. Yet, unless all parents everywhere take their home duties as a religion; unless they can be strict even when it goes against the grain, and firm at the risk of creating "a scene;" unless they know more than some fathers and mothers do of how and where the growing boys and girls spend hours that modern independence no longer demands they should give an account of, the number of youthful delinquents will not diminish, and the citizenship of the next generation will be markedly inferior to that which made America what it is today.

Of all the wise proverbs of the world's wisest men, none contained more wisdom than this: "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it."

OUR GROWTH.

In 1880, California with a population of 864,694 ranked as the twenty-fourth State in the nation. With a population nearly three times as great, in 1910, California was the twelfth State in the number of her people. The census bureau in its 1916 estimate gives us the ninth place among the States of our country. Between April 15, 1910, and July 1, 1916, only the two great States of Pennsylvania and New York gained more in population than California.

In 1880 Los Angeles held no place among the larger cities of the country—she was not even mentioned. The census of 1910 ranked her as the thirty-fourth city in size in the United States. Ten years later, 1910, there were but sixteen cities ahead of her. The Census Bureau's estimate for 1916 makes Los Angeles the tenth city in point of population in this country. During the interval between July, 1910, and July, 1916, the metropolitan cities of New York and Chicago are the only ones that show a greater growth than our town.

The estimates of the Census Bureau for the years 1910-1916 are based on the rate of growth for the years 1900-1910. Since the beginning of the European war, the great industrial cities of Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, Detroit and Pittsburgh, owing to the war boom, have probably gained population faster than the estimate of the census bureau indicates and faster than Los Angeles. Nevertheless, Los Angeles is sure of ranking with the greatest cities of the country.

THE CASE OF BOPP— SHAMEFUL EXHIBITION.

[The Argonaut:] It would be easy to take too seriously the demonstration at German House, in San Francisco, on Friday evening of last week, with the concurrent expression on the part of the new German Consul-General as to the future career of the late Consul-General. In charity allowance, perhaps, should be made on the scores of personal sympathy and of an overwrought emotionalism. But no stretch of leniency can go far enough to justify the "ovation" given a man under conviction for a crime against the peace and dignity of the United States, or the boast of his successor to the effect that the convicted felon would be royally rewarded by presentment to a higher official rank. By the judgment of a United States court Mr. Bopp stands convicted of gross abuse (1) of official privilege, (2) of conspiracy in crimes of atrocity and cruelty. There can be no condonement of these offenses upon the plea that they were patriotically inspired. They are of a sort to shock both propriety and humanity; and the plea made in behalf of the criminal serves only to recall the famous definition of patriotism as the "last refuge of a scoundrel."

If Mr. Bopp were a man of civilized sensibilities he would not under the circumstances have attended Friday night's celebration. If those who made up the membership of the meeting had felt and heeded the common instincts of delicacy—to name no more serious motive—they would not have "cheered to the echo" a man declared by the courts of the land so far forgetful of his obligations as to have forfeited his diplomatic privilege, and so far insensible to humane ideas as to have conspired for the destruction of noncombatants. And if the new Consul-General had comprehended the proprieties of his own position he would not from an American platform have boasted that his country would reward by new dignities a man whose title to consideration rests upon crimes so gross as to merit the stigma and the punishment involved in felonious conviction.

The incident, we repeat, may easily be taken too seriously; none the less it has a serious side. It gives color and credence to the reproach of a type of citizenship which cherishes sentiments of devotion to another country and to anti-American ideals superior to those felt for the laws and the dignities of this country. It is not pleasant to say, yet it must be said, that whoever is capable of approving and applauding the offenses of which Mr. Bopp stands convicted, with its implied censure of our laws and courts, has no right to American citizenship.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

GRIEF UNIVERSAL.

It seems the cost of living is not a local ill; all round the world it's giving poor purchasers a chill. Beside the broad Nyanzas the people kick and roar, as buyers do in Kansas when at the corner store. Where knobby alligators infest the stagnant Nile, it takes, to buy some taters, the poor consumer's pile. By many an ancient river, by many a storied lake, men pay as much for liver as they should pay for steak. Where sweet and spicy breezes blow soft o'er Ceylon's isle, the purchaser of cheeses forgets to sing and smile. Among the hills of Sweden, mid Greenland's snow and ice, the people's hearts are bleedin' when they behold the price. Along the dark Mackenzie and by the languid Po, consumers, in a frenzy, are lifting wails of woe. The Eskimo, when buying his tenderloin of whale, the Hottentot who's trying to eat a hemlock rail, all swell the angry chorus, all weep and tear the robe; the grief we see before us extends around the globe. WALT MASON.

Fortune Saved by a Snore.

[New York Mail:] When burglars broke into the office of Szabo & Beer, refiners of precious metals, they removed a safe containing $15,000 worth of gold and platinum from the front to the rear of the office, laid it on its face, ripped off the back and began to drill through a layer of concrete.

Just then Adolph Welander, tailor, who had worked late and dropped to sleep in the adjoining suite, began to snore.

He ripped off a few notes in the cadence of a buzzsaw, dreamed he was a motor truck, turned over on his side and honked for a right of way.

The burglars were within about an inch of the $15,000 haul, but their nerves were not attuned to the Welander snore and honk. They promptly broke for cover, making such a noise in their departure that the tailor wakened and called for the police.

In their hasty escape the burglars left a brace and bit, a sectional jimmy, gloves, electric torch and other tools. They left also a badly-damaged safe, all but ripped apart, but with its precious contents undisturbed.

Welander had worked so late that for the first time in his life he had decided to sleep in his shop.

Two Husbands Disposed of.

[Indianapolis News:] They were seatmates in a traction car headed for the port of Terre Haute. The seats are rather narrow and, of course, there had to be apologies based on sitting snugly.

"Narrow seats," he said.

"I'll say they are," she said.

That started them toward more intimate conversation. And before the car reached Coatesville she had confessed that she was a widow—twice.

"Had two husbands?" he queried.

"Yep, two of 'em," she confessed. "Sodded one of 'em and the court took the other one."

Wasted Time.

[Boston Transcript:] Doctor: I have just returned from a week's hunting in Maine.

Druggist: Kill anything?

Doctor: Not a blamed thing.

Druggist: Huh! You could have done better than that by staying at home and attending to your regular business.

NOW IS THE TIME.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

The Shortness Thereof.

It's not so easy to be merry,
Within the span of February,
Although a fellow thinks he'd orter,
The time is short—and he is shorter.

A Ground Hog Case.

As a prophet the ground hog has been honored, even in his own country. Although he makes no more noise than an eel, men have bought overcoats and coal on the strength of the woodchuck's weather tips. Here, where the little beasties are scarce, the gopher is apt to be used as a ringer. By this method we figure on about thirty weeks of hard sledding and not much green goods for St. Patrick's Day.

Famous February.

The other day we asked ten men in succession whom they considered the three greatest Americans of history. Nine of the ten gave Washington and Lincoln in the order named and the other gave both on his list, but placed Jefferson as second. Both Washington and Lincoln were born in February, so that the month, short as it is, has been mighty good to the American people. Two others classed among the greatest were Alexander Hamilton and Benjamin Franklin, both of whom came under the wire in January, but narrowly escaped being February celebrities. The old Roman calendar had neither January nor February. If that had not been remodeled, where would America have been? Slaves of the British in a land all grown up with cherry trees.

My Valentine.

Another February anniversary of renown is that of the 14th, which, according to various chronicles, is the name's day of two martyr saints of the same name, who died on the same day and both of whom were buried in Rome. But why that should be a warrant for a latter-day flooding of the mails with highly-inflamed caricatures or lace-trimmed love lyrics doth not satisfactorily appear. It just grew. Of late the valentine habit has been waning and today it is not a material factor in the extravagant price of existence. The wise guy now sends his sweetheart a bunch of violets and a ticket to the movies. It seems to make more of a hit than a three-story box of embossed heart and cupids.

Some Baby.

The wise men of the East who went to Bethlehem, Pa., found a famous war baby. Bethlehem Steel, on a capitalization of $15,000,000, shows a surplus of $70,000,000. As an indication of good spirits the company pays a quarterly cash dividend of 10 per cent. and also gives its shareholders a stock dividend of 200 per cent. It started off the new year with orders for $200,000,000 of its output and very little of this is conditional upon the war at that. Charlie Schwab says that any man can live pleasantly on $1000 a month, but out Bethlehem way they don't have to do it.

To be Sung Slowly.

The age-old quest for gilden treasure,
Is not the wise man's greatest pleasure.
He finds the sweetest joy in living
Is not the getting, but the giving.

Hawkeyes and Suckers.

The month of February is interesting to a big bunch of the newer citizenship in that it marks the days designated briefly as the Iowa and Illinois picnics. These are a pair of the most massive outdoor gatherings known to Southern California. Were it not for Iowa and Illinois the State would be comparatively lonesome. When a Hawkeye or a Sucker gets money enough to get him over his State line he begins to think about California, and when he does make the riffle the thought of having an open-air carnival in the usually icy little month of February so appeals to him that he rushes to it with enthusiasm. We have in our midst about one hundred thousand retired residents of these two States, and when they get together it is some party. At the old home a February outing would be a sleigh ride or an ice-cutting tournament, and the regalia would include mittens and earmuffs, but here they drink cooling beverages to the memory of Lincoln and Washington in palmy parks or by the shores of the silvery sea and wear straw hats if they want to.

The Voting Habit.

In this progressive State no February would be complete without an election or two. So far as now known there is only one election this month, but there is another one the first thing in March for those who suffer through long absence from the polls. People who have the franchise in California can depend on having something to occupy their time. They are either going to the booth or coming away. One man who takes his citizenship seriously was dining in his favorite grill the other day. He absent-mindedly, but laboriously, rubber-stamped the menu card and then asked the waiter for another ballot as he noticed he had voted twice for Charlotte Russe. He says he has now got so he can mark a ballot in his sleep. This is when a whole lot of people seem to do their voting.

At least it looks that way.

Sightseers in Washington.

[Woman's Home Companion:] "Nobody who is anybody goes sightseeing in Washington," said Mrs. Tweedale; "they leave that to bridal couples and personally-conducted parties and school teachers. No, when you go to Washington you'll make calls. Everybody in Washington has a day at home. It's Wednesday in the northwest, and Monday on the Hill, and Friday in the center of town—or at least those were the days when I lived there. And you'll have to keep a regular system of book-keeping to remember that Mrs. Smith has Wednesdays in January, and Mrs. Jones Fridays in February, and Mrs. Green two Mondays in March, and when you've called on Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Green and Mrs. Smith you'll find that, after all, you aren't really in society; you are only on the ragged edge."

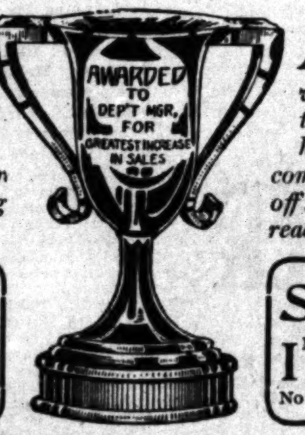
CLUB SALE

The Greatest February Event in Los Angeles

Ten Clubs Compete—Nine Cups Given Away

THIS is not only the greatest February event in Los Angeles, but is now recognized as one of the most important selling events of the entire year. And to be mentioned, too, is it that this is the only sale of its kind in the city as well. Ten clubs, each representing one or several departments, plan and manage the sales throughout the entire two weeks of the sale, each having a particular day and each offering a cup on their day to the department making the greatest sales gain over a year ago. It will be a lively scrap.



Publicity Club Takes Charge Monday

AND from the wonderful values they have coralled it is easy to see that they have set the value pace for the two weeks in which the Clubs will solely have charge. The Dept. who wins the beautiful silver cup that this Club offers Monday will certainly have competition at every hand, for distinctly an honor is it to become the proud possessor of the Publicity Cup. So Monday they're off. And values that this city has not known in many months are ready. Just read them!

Remaking History.

FAMED MOLLIE PITCHER CALLED MILLIONAIRESS.

Enormous Fortune Claimed by Local Heirs of Ragged Heroine.

ONE hot summer day in 1778 a barber's wife, cothed in rags and sublime courage, snatched victory from British troops at the Battle of Monmouth. Yesterday, through action taken by a Los Angeles man for recovery of a share of a fortune of $60,000,000, it was revealed that this Revolutionary heroine, Mollie Pitcher, was probably America's wealthiest citizen that day she turned artillerist and fought beside her dying husband.

The episode is a school-book bromide, but a new romance of American history is to be written, if Samuel Sloan of Terminal, near Los Angeles Harbor, a descendant of the redoubtable Mollie, establishes his claim to a great pile of gold lying in the vaults of the Bank of Essex, England.

Mollie Pitcher, herself, lived and died in poverty. After the Revolution her chief income was her officer's half-pay, granted by an admiring Congress, and her chief reward a monument to her courage erected on the field of Monmouth. Although it seems she was richer in fact than the whole Continental government, that historic battle-day, she never knew of it and her country remembers her as the woman who washed soldiers' clothes, till she was made a sergeant for bravery in action.

The gold is said to be another monument to Mollie Pitcher, evidence of the love of Capt. Charles Pitcher, rough old sea dog, who gave her a father's affection, his name and his enormous wealth. And the fortunes of war, that made her immortal, apparently also left her always ignorant of the fact that she was America's foremost plutocrat.

A LUCKY ORPHAN.

The romance of Mollie Pitcher's story dates back to pre-Revolutionary days, when Mary Ludwig, generally called Mollie, was born to poor parents and was soon left an orphan. Capt. Pitcher, who had become very wealthy as a shipowner, saw the black-eyed little girl one day on a street at Carlisle, Pa., and her strange adventures began.

Tradition says her courage, which was more than feminine, attracted the old sea dog; Mollie had befriended a homeless pup that some boys were abusing; the urchins in revenge began to stone Mollie, who instead of retreating in the face of superior numbers, armed herself with a cudgel and put to flight the whole crew of assailants. Capt. Pitcher, who had witnessed the little girl's defense of the under dog, called her to him to bandage a wound on her head where a rock had hit her.

"Nay," said the small Amazon scornfully. "What's a cut? I've given them five for that one; it's well paid for."

Capt. Pitcher became the staunch friend and protector of the orphan girl, and sent her to school, but she ran away and went to work as a house servant.

"Books do not suit me, sir," she naively told her friend. "I like work better."

It was shortly after this that she took the name of Pitcher. There was no formal adoption but the old skipper regarded her as a daughter and she looked upon him as a father.

MARRIES A BARBER.

When she married a barber by the name of John Hayes the foster father was inclined to be displeased as he had selected for his ward a mate much higher in station.

"Do not scold me," she wrote to him when announcing her marriage. "If I could not wed one of thy family, I at least promise thee I will give my children thy name, as it has been mine."

And she made good her promise; when a boy baby came she named it John Hayes Pitcher, and scoldings of her husband could not alter her decision.

Shortly before the War of the Revolution broke out, Capt. Pitcher was in England and became very ill. Knowing death was a matter of a few days at most, he made a will, it is declared, leaving everything to Mollie Pitcher and her heirs — a fortune of 12,000,000 pounds, which he left at the Bank of Essex.

He sent a letter to his namesake telling her of the bequest, but soon after his death the war came and neither his letter nor the one written to Mollie by his attorney reached its destination, and it has been only within the last few years that the matter came to light from dusty archives and the heirs of the estate set about gaining their reputed inheritance.

The later story of Mollie Pitcher is well known. Her husband joined the army as an artillerist, and Mollie, refusing to be left behind, went with him. This was not an uncommon thing at the time; the women followed the army to care for the soldiers and do the laundry work.

At the battle of Monmouth, with the mercury at 92 deg. in the shade, Mollie worked with her husband, bringing water from the well in a pitcher to swab out the cannon and also to give drink to the wounded and dying soldiers.

As John Hayes was holding the swab after a shot had been fired he suddenly crumpled into a heap. An enemy bullet had done its work. The men looked at each other in dismay. The cannon commanded an important position and there was not one among them who was competent to handle the heavy gun.

Gen. Greene, who was in command, saw the gunner fall and sent an orderly to command the withdrawal of the gun. Mollie had fallen on her knees by her wounded husband and was trying to call him back to life when the orderly came with the message. The black-eyed girl sprang to her feet.

"Stop!" she cried. "The gun shall not be moved. I am here, I, Mollie Pitcher!"

And, catching up the swab, she rammed it into the muzzle of the cannon and again the iron mouth was spitting death into the ranks of the oncoming British.

"Mollie! Mollie Pitcher!" cried the men.

And the ragged troops, inspired, poured down the slope with such impetus that the enemy slowly gave way, wavered and broke ranks.

Half an hour later Gen. Greene rode up the hill where the girl warrior still held her post, blackened with powder and smoke, her hands bleeding, but eyes undimmed even by the sorrow of her husband's mortal wound.

"What is your name?" asked the general, as the girl greeted him with a salute.

"Mollie Hayes, called by some Mollie Pitcher," she replied.

"Mollie Pitcher," returned the general, "you are a brave soldier."

"No, sir," Mollie replied, "just a weak woman." And she fell in a faint on her husband's body.

The next day Gen. Greene presented the girl, still in her soiled garments of battle, to Gen. Washington. The great man looked at the slight girl before him and gravely saluted her.

"I am glad to thank you for your service, Sergt. Pitcher," he said.

A REAL SOLDIER.

So Mollie was made a sergeant and remained with the army eight years. She had the honor of firing the last shot at Fort Clinton, which was captured by the British. The gunner who was in charge saw the enemy coming up the hill with bayonets fixed; although the gun was loaded he was seized with a panic, and, dropping the lighted match, he fled.

"Coward!" cried Mollie Pitcher, and, taking up the match, she fired the cannon, crying out to the advancing troops: "The last word belongs to a woman, gentlemen."

After the war she was placed on the roll of half-pay officers. She married one George McCauley, but to history she will always be known by the name she loved, Mollie Pitcher.

On the field of Monmouth the monument erected to her memory bears the inscription: "Mollie McCauley, renowned in history as Mollie Pitcher, heroine of Monmouth."

She died at the age of 79 years.

In the present proceedings to establish claim to the $60,000,000 Pitcher fortune Mr. Sloan is represented by Attorney David G. Hatheway, who has offices in the American Bank Building. It is a coincidence that the attorney is a grandnephew of James Scott Pitcher, who was a grandson of Maj.-Gen. Charles Pitcher.

Even though the legal claim of the heirs, who number twenty, can be established, the British government, at grips in war, is expected to resist the taking of so much money from the country. It is probable, therefore, that Mollie Pitcher's descendants will soon be engaged in a new battle, less spectacular, but perhaps as earnest, against the representatives of another King George of England.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them, 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

5,000,000 Corns Lifted Right Off!

Try 2 Drops of Magic "Gets-It."

There's a wonderful difference between getting rid of a corn now and the way they used to try to get rid of it only four or five years ago. "Gets-It" has revolutionized corn history. It's the only corn remedy today that acts on the new principle, not only of shriveling up the corn, but of loosening the corn off—so loose that you can lift it right off with your fingers. Put two drops of "Gets-It" on that corn or callus tonight. That's all. The corn is doomed sure as sunrise. No pain or trouble or soreness. You do away once and for all with toe-bundling bandages, toe-eating salves and irresponsible what-nots. Try it—get surprised and lose a corn.

"See? Just 2 Drops of 'Gets-It.' Now Tomorrow I'll Just Peel That Corn Right Off—and It's Gone!"

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

little blonde girl, confessed that she had since she left Minnesota seven years ago, when she was a child, was determined to skate as fast as she could. The result was she would get up so much steam while sliding along the length of the rink that when she reached the turn all she could do was to keep on going, invariably ending on the neck of some good-looking young man. Then, after a hasty apology, she would turn around, and, apparently picking out another young man at the other end of the hall, get under way for another sprint.

But she miscalculated once and picked out a dapper young man with a budding mustache. This youth admitted later that he had been born and raised in Redlands. The result of the impact was so great that the untrained male skater went down. The young woman couldn't stop, and went gaily sliding on, but not on her feet.

Many of the skaters appear to have the idea that the proper way to skate is on their instep. Others spend most of their time brushing off their clothes. One young man, apparently a good performer, stopped many skaters by persistently endeavoring to cut a figure eight, until he tripped and hurt his dignity. And there were at least a dozen young women on the ice who couldn't understand why so many people got in their way as they slid helplessly along.

As before mentioned, the crowd is undeniably cosmopolitan. It is because of this that some of them have decided to have their own private skating rink. A special addition has been erected and will be opened tomorrow. This new rink, smaller than the main one, will be rented to various exclusive skating clubs now forming. They will have their own band and will have dainty little tearooms scattered about, so that one may skate between refreshments.

Speaking of the band. This adjunct could easily be done away with in the interest of safety and rhythm. For when it starts up the majority of the skaters try to dance. Perhaps it is because its rhythm is uncertain, perhaps not; but at any rate, whenever the music starts, sixteen instructors swarm out on the ice ready to pick up the music lovers who can't keep their feet still, forgetting they are perilously perched on slippery runners.

ENDS LIFE IN TAXI.

Driver Thinks Tire is Blown Out but Finds His Passenger Dead with Revolver Clutched in His Hand — Friends Blame Ill Health.

When Louis Kunz, a taxi driver, stopped his car at Sunset boulevard and Benton way Friday evening to investigate what he thought had been a tire blowing out, he discovered his passenger, Robert H. Johnson, 38 years old, of No. 1315 North Virgil avenue, dead with a revolver clutched in his right hand.

Mr. Johnson, who was the manager of the Hollywood Hardware Company, in Hollywood, was placed in Kunz's automobile by friends, according to the driver's story, and he was instructed to take him home. The driver said his passenger had been drinking. When the shooting took place the driver told the police who investigated the case he thought one of his tires had given away and did not discover the body until he had investigated all his tires and found them whole.

ALTERATION SALE WE MUST MAKE ROOM

50 MORE PIANOS MUST BE SOLD THIS WEEK

The artisans have been at work in our warerooms commencing extensive alterations and remodeling of our salesrooms, which have become necessary to accommodate our increasing volume of business.

The carpenter foreman has notified us that he cannot complete our alteration plans until we make more room for the workmen, consequently, rather than place our Pianos in the warehouse, we have decided to give the piano purchasing public the benefit of this embarrassing position into which we have been placed by reducing prices on all pianos and player pianos to just a fraction of their real value—for immediate delivery.

E. B. Harris and petitions signed by 25,000 citizens.

Mr. Harris had charge of the work of securing the signatures, in favor of an initiative ordinance t the sale of all electric power the city will generate from its aqueduct. Less than 13,000 si needed to make the petition mandatory, but almost twice this number was secured in ten d work. The documents are ready for filing with the City Clerk tomorrow.

With 25,000 Signatures.

POWER-MARKETING INITIATIVE PETITIONS READY FOR FIL

MORE than 25,000 signatures of Los Angeles citizens are attached to the great bulk of petitions for the proposed initiative ordinance instructing the Board of Public Service Commissioners to provide for the sale of all electric power that shall be generated by the city from its aqueduct.

Preparation of this mammoth petition for filing with the City Clerk tomorrow was completed yesterday afternoon in the office of E. B. Harris, No. 312 Bumiller Building, who has had charge of the work of securing signatures. Late in the afternoon the immense bundle of petitions for the ordinance, closely bound together, was placed in a safety vault for security until they are presented to the City Clerk.

These petitions represent about ten days' actual work, although they were first put into circulation during the recent heavy storm. Because of inclement weather the work was stopped for a while, and then resumed with vigor. Mr. Harris states that in all parts of the city he found interested property-owners and taxpayers who were glad to volunteer their services in obtaining signatures, and that each circulator used especial care to secure only such names as would qualify in the checking by the City Clerk.

EXPECTS HIGH AVERAGE.

He stated yesterday he is confident the petitions will check up 87 per cent. qualified voters, and that this will probably set a new record in the quality of names on initiative petitions.

A little less than 13,000 qualified signatures are necessary to make the petition mandatory. In addition to the more than 25,000 names put in shape yesterday for presentation, Mr. Harris during the afternoon received petitions comprising about 1500 names, that can be used on a supplemental petition, if desired.

The City Clerk has ten days within which to check the petitions after they are filed, and he must then submit the result to the Council. That body, if the signatures are adequate, must then either adopt the proposed ordinance on its own motion, or must provide for submitting the question at an election within thirty days from the time the petitions are verified.

TEXT OF MEASURE.

The text of the initiative ordinance reads:

An ordinance instructing the Board of Public Service Commissioners of the city of Los Angeles to provide for the sale of all electric power which shall be generated by the city from its aqueduct.

The Mayor and Council of the city of Los Angeles do ordain as follows:

—From Boyhood to the Majority Age of Manhood

Our 21st Birthday

—The Broadway will be 21 years young this February.

—In the four periods of growth, since its birth in 1896 to its present manly age of 21, this business has enjoyed a "General Partnership" with the Los Angeles public.

—During all this time the early dreams of the founder, the inspirations of one man have been swiftly shaping into the realization of his ideals.

—Ideals that began with principles of betterment in store keeping—principles of fair dealing—high ideals in advance of the times, the placing of the Foundation stones—Truth, Courtesy, Liberality and Value.

—It is not so surprising that The Broadway Department Store has grown to its present splendid proportions,—not so surprising since in all its 21 years the high standards of this one man have been cemented into the very stone and steel and mortar of the structure.

—Early in its growth this business undertook the giving of advantages to its patrons,—establishing a close partnership with the General Public.

—Building surely and steadily that public confidence that today is held dearer to the heart of the founder and his organization than the splendid building that now houses the business.

—It is fitting therefore that on this occasion of our

Twenty-First Birthday We Celebrate

—This spacious new building (almost a city under one roof)—with all it contains in material convenience and comfort for you and for us, a monument to your co-operation with the ideals of the founder.

—This new building forms a proper setting to a celebration that takes on the nature of

—On this 21st Birthday we've linked with Fashion in decorating the store that invites you to come and welcomes you to enjoy the beauty of the decorations with us and partake of the generous opportunities that have been provided and the many store conveniences that await you on every hand.

Los Angeles Times

Supremacy as an Advertising Medium Again Emphasized

Positive, demonstrable knowledge that THE TIMES gets its advertising patrons far better traceable results than any other Los Angeles newspaper impels successful business builders—shrewd, experienced advertisers—to concentrate their advertising in this newspaper.

The unfailing regularity with which THE TIMES leads all other local newspapers in the volume of advertising, and in the number of separate announcements, printed, is due to the well known fact that the use of THE TIMES advertising columns is a dividend paying investment and is in no sense a speculation.

The following tabulation shows the number of lines of advertising printed and paid for during the month of January, 1917, in all Los Angeles newspapers, as well as the superb lead of The Times over all its competitors:

	Lines.
THE TIMES	*1,157,898
Second morning newspaper	823,256
Third morning newspaper	651,560
First evening newspaper	655,242
Second evening newspaper	582,540
Third evening newspaper	265,216

*—The Times is the only local newspaper passing the million mark.

In view of the fact that the acid test of the popularity of newspapers is the number of separate classified advertisements printed, the following tabulation is not only instructive, but is additional evidence of the surpassing superiority of The Times as an advertising medium:

THE TIMES	64,275
Second morning newspaper	45,339
Third morning newspaper	14,709
First evening newspaper	10,782
Second evening newspaper	9,391
Third evening newspaper	2,039

The excellent returns from advertising in The Times are due to its reliable, far-reaching, home-delivered circulation. The tabulation which follows indicates The Times substantial gain in net paid circulation for the past three years:

The net paid daily average number of copies circulated in 1914 was	57,118
The net paid Sunday average number of copies circulated in 1914 was	88,587
The net paid daily average number of copies circulated in 1915 was	58,952
The net paid Sunday average number of copies circulated in 1915 was	98,456
The net paid daily average number of copies circulated in 1916 was	61,800
The net paid Sunday average number of copies circulated in 1916 was	102,808

And so it grows—surely and steadily in the increasing favor of the intelligent newspaper readers of the great Southwest.

The Root of Evil.

PARENTS TO BLAME FOR RUIN OF THEIR GIRLS.

Rush of Cases Moves Small Magdalens' Judge to Indict Our Homes.

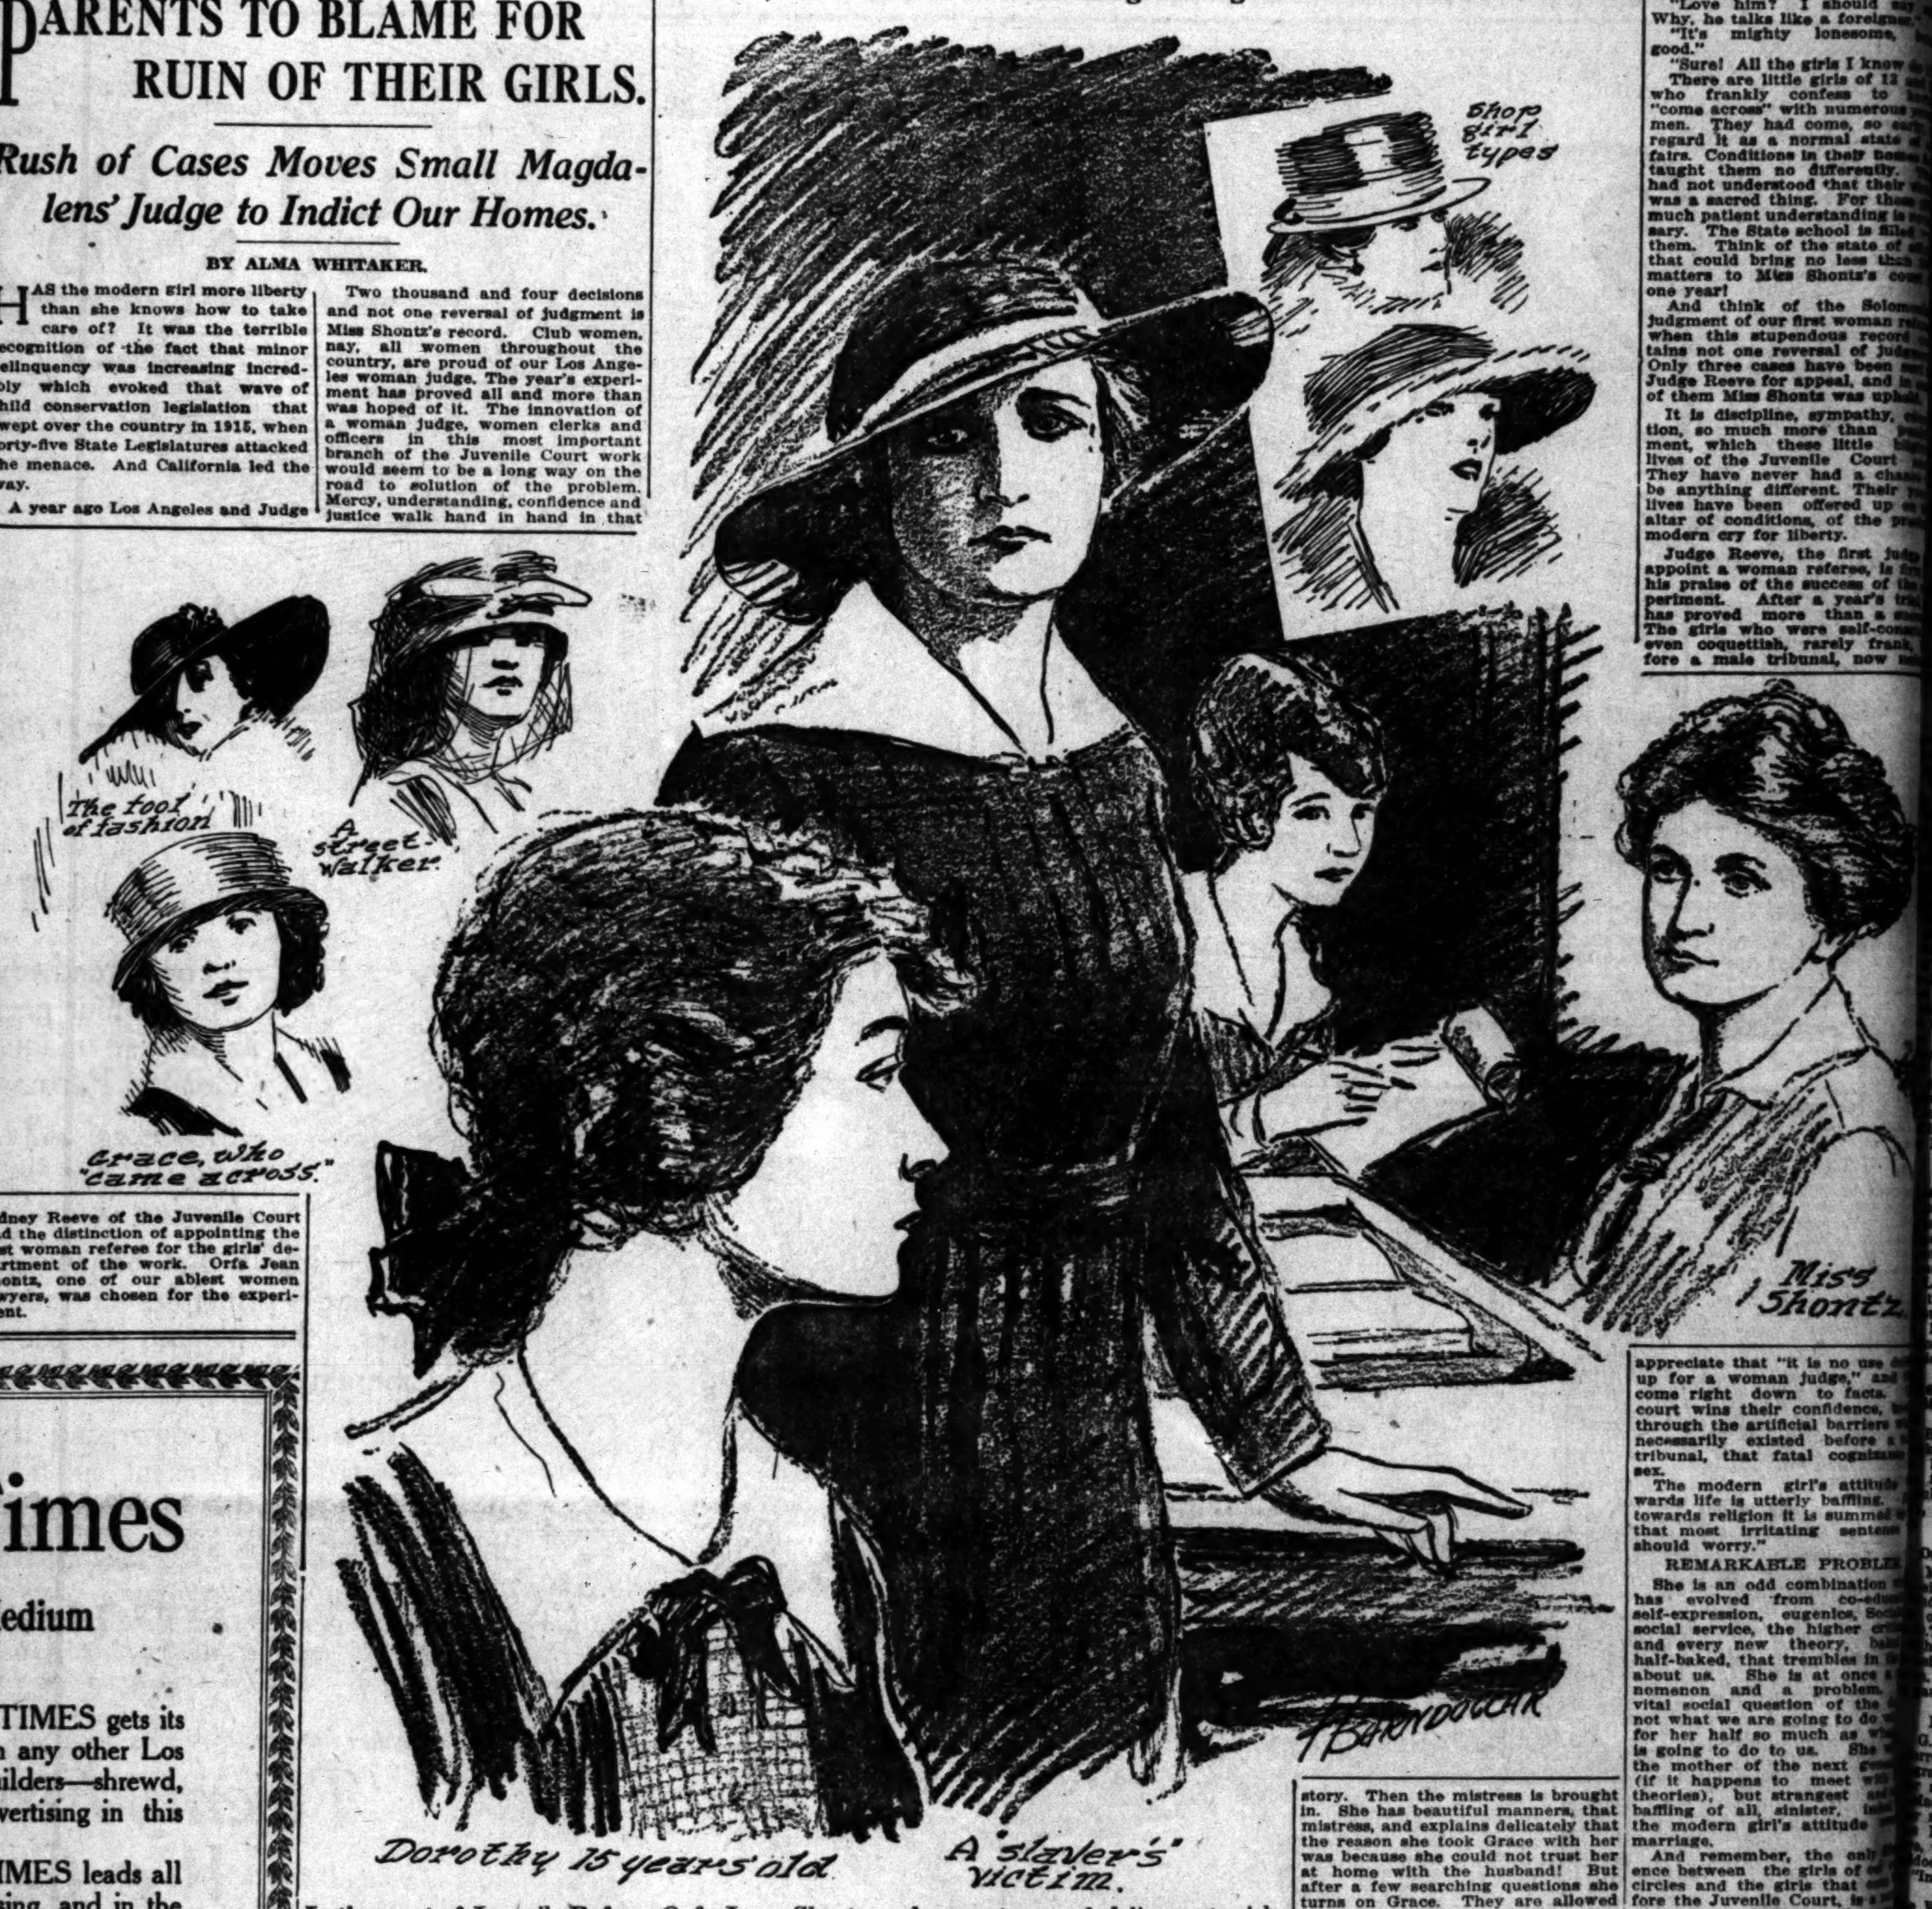
BY ALMA WHITAKER.

HAS the modern girl more liberty than she knows how to take care of? It was the terrible recognition of the fact that minor delinquency was increasing incredibly which evoked that wave of child conservation legislation that swept over the country in 1915, when forty-five State Legislatures attacked the menace. And California led the way.

A year ago Los Angeles and Judge Sidney Reeve of the Juvenile Court had the distinction of appointing the first woman referee for the girls' department of the work. Orfa Jean Shontz, one of our ablest women lawyers, was chosen for the experiment.

Two thousand and four decisions and not one reversal of judgment is Miss Shontz's record. Club women, nay, all women throughout the country, are proud of our Los Angeles woman judge. The year's experiment has proved all and more than was hoped of it. The innovation of a woman judge, women clerks and officers in this most important branch of the Juvenile Court work would seem to be a long way on the road to solution of the problem. Mercy, understanding, confidence and justice walk hand in hand in that little courtroom. No longer does the little girl, handicapped by the wrong sort of home, beset by the unspeakable laxity of vigilance, the modern lack of home life, the modern dangerous freedom, tell her pitiful, sordid little story before an embarrassing tribunal of men, who, with the best intentions in the world, cannot and do not understand and appreciate the many and various unfortunate influences, the childlike, immature mind of the erring maiden.

End of the Road Whose Beginning is a "Modern" Home.



In the court of Juvenile Referee Orfa Jean Shontz and some types of delinquent girls.

And no longer do reporters of the newspapers attend the court to exploit the details of the sordid romances. This is a gentleman's agreement in which the newspapers gladly participate.

Let us see how far Los Angeles has advanced in its methods of dealing with these baffling cases.

OF TENDER AGE.

The vast majority of the cases which come before Referee Shontz are of little girls under 18 years of age. And if there is one court in all the world where the male offender against young maidenhood feels a contemptible worm it is in that court where Miss Shontz asks her quiet, direct questions, invites the little girl and her traducer to tell their story in their own simple language.

Not the least disquieting thing about the situation is the number of these poor little delinquents that come from homes that are well above the middle class. It is a popular idea that the "bad girl" is necessarily of comparatively low origin, poor family, inferior education, vulgar tastes, etc. The truth, could it be told in all its ugly detail, would effectually dispose of this comfortable misapprehension.

One's heart aches to the breaking point to hear how easy a thing it is for a little girl to lose her most precious heritage, her virtue. The kindly, understanding judge wins her confidence, makes her feel that she is talking to a friend, that the judge, the clerk, the probation officers are all her friends, there to aid her, not to condemn her in her unspeakable wretchedness.

"Tell me all about it, Ella. Tell us everything and we will help you."

And presently the little girl tells her whole pitiful story. She is encouraged to be frank and her frankness is heartrending. And always, always the source of the trouble is traced to home conditions. Father and mother don't get along together. Or sometimes the father is dead or has deserted them, and mother goes out to work all day. Or perhaps there are no parents at all and some remote, indifferent relatives inadequately take their place. Or maybe the unhappy parent mistakes nagging for guidance, fury for righteousness, wrath for direction, perpetual admonition is substituted for sympathy and understanding. But the result is always the same, the little girl has taken the wrong road.

PARENTS TO BLAME.

"The parents, the parents, if only we could get at parents. Home conditions are the source of all our trouble," says Miss Shontz, as day after day she tries to set right the baffling outcome of these imperfect homes.

And, dear God, how cruel are the stories of these blighted young lives! There is a universal freedom today among young people that was unthought of twenty years ago, a keener sex feeling is all around us, so many barriers are down, and human nature has changed more than we realize. Liberty so easily becomes license—and the flower has wilted before it has bloomed.

Take the case of Dorothy, a refined, sweet little girl of 15. Mother and father never got along together and father, fiercely wretched, left home. And sometimes a certain gentleman came to visit mother, when Dorothy hated to remain at home. She was unhappy and confided her woes to an elderly "friend of the family," married, with children of his own. But Dorothy did not know that. It was so kind of him to let her stay at his house all night while his family was away, especially as he made love to her and promised to marry her. Over many weeks did he do her this "kindness." With frightened, miserable eyes, she tells her dreadful story. Shamefacedly and still more frightened the man tells his. Hurt and maddened with fury, the father tells his story. He had meant to be a decent father, but fate was against him. All the same he had left that home and those children, and while his divorce proceedings were pending, Dorothy's life was wrecked. The father wants to kill the traducer of his child. But, as the judge points out, he, the father, was not entirely guiltless.

In such cases, shall the man be sent to jail for two years as the law allows? Public indignation, in its first fury, thinks yes. But he, too, has a family, what of them? So Miss Shontz inquires searchingly into the man's resources. How much better to make him provide the wherewithal to send Dorothy to a good school until she is 21 years of age. Gladly he accepts the alternative. The woman referee rules that Dorothy be placed in a good boarding school, where she will be kept under the kindly surveillance of the court. She is admonished under no circumstances to divulge her story. Her father will visit her at frequent intervals, and during vacation time the court will see that she has some good home to visit that the other girls may never know her sorrow. Judge Reeve concedes probation on these terms, the offender hears the law read to him, listening fearfully, and knows well that if ever he is brought before that court again, the ultimate punishment will be meted out to him. He will never see Dorothy again, and Dorothy asks nothing better than to be spared him. Genuine constructive redemption, not punishment, but salvation.

PAYING THE PRICE.

Or take the case of Grace. Grace has a foster-father and a stepmother, not unkindly, but allowing her all to much liberty.

And "boys," confided Grace, "won't have nothing to do with you if you don't 'come across.' If they spends a dime on you they expects you to—come across. Lots of girls do it, I ain't no different from other girls. Yes, I'm strong and I like to work."

So Grace's foster-father had found her a situation. It seemed a good one—husband, wife and three children. But alas, the wife had long since taken the wrong road, too. She used to take Grace down to a certain smart hotel, taught her to drink, and the two of them "took up" with two men in the hostelry. They "lost the last car home" on one fatal night—a week after Grace had been ensconced in that situation. The husband, minding the babies at home, was duly 'phoned to—they were staying with a girl friend!

First Grace tells her miserable story. Then the mistress is brought in. She has beautiful manners, that mistress, and explains delicately that the reason she took Grace with her was because she could not trust her at home with the husband! But after a few searching questions she turns on Grace. They are allowed to verbally fight it out for a few minutes—wherein more illumination is thrown upon the scene than could have transpired through a year of cross-examination. And the dreadful fact becomes all to patent that the woman had been hiring young girls for just that purpose. What chance had 14-year-old Elsie to be a good girl? She is bitterly truthful and frank.

"Do you want to be a good girl, Grace?"

"Yes, ma'am, I do," says Grace from the bottom of her sad young heart. "Yes, ma'am, she does," asserts the foster-father. "She is a good worker and willing to work. Oh, if this wicked woman——"

So Grace is declared a ward of the court, and a really good situation is found for her by the kindly probation officers. There are many good women willing to give the Graces another straight chance.

And the woman? "Listen, while I read you a little law," says the woman referee. And she reads that stern clause appertaining to those who contribute to the delinquency of minors. The woman shivers. One-thousand-dollar fine or two years in jail.

"For the sake of your children, your husband and yourself, you will be admitted to probation this time. But you will be kept under surveillance. And the court orders that you employ no one in your service under 21 years of age. For your own sake I recommend you to employ a woman of 50. Now you understand, this is your last chance."

And a note is made to warn the hotel not to allow its tearoom to be made the headquarters for this sort of thing.

Mercy, tempered with justice, and possibly two lives saved.

The case of Edna, age 13, a strapping maid, who looks all of 16. The man of 40, her traducer, is before the court.

"Tell us how you feel about it," says the judge.

"Well, I thought she was older than 13," says the man in self-defense.

"Then if she had been older you would have been justified?"

"Oh, I guess so."

That is the sort of defense that breaks the heart. This is the attitude of so many males, that sex which tradition has cast for the amiable role of "protector."

WHAT THEY SAY.

Not all of the little girls are unhappy and contrite. Their home life and traditions, their unspeakable liberty, has given them monstrous ideas on life. These are the sorts of remarks the referee is called upon to hear at every session of the court:

"Poor old dad, he doesn't understand."

"Oh, I can't stand mother; she gets on my nerves."

"Well a girl must have some pleasure."

"No, I don't know any boys that will take me out if I don't across."

"Love him? I should say Why, he talks like a foreigner."

"It's mighty lonesome, good."

"Sure! All the girls I know

There are little girls of 13 who frankly confess to "come across" with numerous men. They had come, so early regard it as a normal state fairs. Conditions in their homes taught them no differently. had not understood that their was a sacred thing. For these much patient understanding is sary. The State school is filled them. Think of the state of that could bring no less than matters to Miss Shontz's court one year!

And think of the Solomon judgment of our first woman re when this stupendous record tains not one reversal of judg Only three cases have been Judge Reeve for appeal, and in of them Miss Shontz was upheld.

It is discipline, sympathy, tion, so much more than ment, which these little lives of the Juvenile Court They have never had a chance be anything different. Their lives have been offered up altar of conditions, of the modern cry for liberty.

Judge Reeve, the first judge appoint a woman referee, is his praise of the success of the periment. After a year's trial has proved more than a The girls who were self-cons even coquettish, rarely frank, fore a male tribunal, now appreciate that "it is no use up for a woman judge," and come right down to facts. court wins their confidence, through the artificial barriers necessarily existed before a tribunal, that fatal cognizance sex.

Miss Alice Merrill, president of the Los Angeles City Teachers' Club, spoke in behalf of legislation for the State elementary schools, which would make the attendance at whole day sessions under improved conditions possible to all the children. Mrs. Daisy Houck urged the approval of legislation prohibiting the sale in California of the prison-made goods of other States. Miss Electa Van Eman urged that women demand for equal service the same pay as men as an absolute necessity for the conservation of their health. The programme was interspersed with singing by Mrs. May R. Fitch and by Mrs. Maxine Stollsteiner of Denver, with Miss Georgia Summers as accompanist and by readings by Mrs. Ora Day.

President Irene M. Evans as toastmistress and Mrs. May R. Fitch, the commissioner of recreation and hospitality, were the recipients of many compliments.

Wednesday Morning Club.

The programme at the Wednesday Morning Club last Wednesday was given by the Angelus quartette, composed of Mrs. Hallie M. Swartz, Mrs. Gertrude F. Bailey, Mrs. M. Belle McKee and Mrs. Earl Johnson. These women are all members of the Shubert Club, and Mrs. Swartz and Mrs. Bailey are members of the Wednesday Morning Club.

The singers were dressed in Grecian dresses of delicate shades of pink, blue, yellow and lavender.

Mothers' Educational Center.

The directors of the Mothers' Educational Center, with headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce, unaminously indorsed the sending of the following letter to the club presidents of Los Angeles: The Department of Child Welfare desires to call your attention to the work and needs of the Mothers' Educational Center, in the Chamber of Commerce.

This center is now being used by more than 600 mothers. They are seeking knowledge which will enable them to raise their children to be strong, vigorous citizens. If the Center was properly equipped, it could care for from 500 to 600 mothers every month. This would about meet the present demand.

What would it mean to our city and to the State of California if such service could be rendered to 600 mothers every month? What effect will this service have on the Juvenile Court, hospitals, corrective institutions that owe their existance to one cause, the mistakes of ignorance? Is it not time that we as women assist mothers in intelegently working out these problems in the home.

It is obvious that these questions are the most vital problems confronting society today. From the fact that they are fundamental and in nowise spectacular, it will take the combined effort of us all to demonstrate that it is cheaper and vastly more humane, to provent, through education, than to cure and palliate through treatment and institutions.

We most earnestly ask you to familiarize yourself with this work. We ask your intelligent judgment. We ask your influence and your financial support, until such time that, through the actual services rendered, the taxpayers will see its necessity and demand that it be supported from public funds, untrameled by political issues and freed absolutely from any stigma of charity.

If the growth of this Center in the last four months is any criterion of its growth in the next four months, this result is inevitable. We shall be glad to have an expression from you.

WORK IS HIS LIFE.

Old Railroad Man Refuses to be Retired on a Pension.

When the first passenger trains were started between Portland and San Francisco, one of the men in charge of the passengers was E. H. Touhey. Today, he is still in the service, a man well past 70 years, but much less than that in appearance. He has one of the longest records for continued service of any man in the country and has several times refused to consider going on the pension list to which he was one of the first eligibles when it was established.

"I'd rather be working than to be shoved on the shelf," he said yesterday at the Rosslyn, where he and Mrs. Touhey are passing a few days while visiting friends here.

CHILD OF MUTE IS GRANTED SUPPORT.

FILM DIRECTOR ORDERED TO PAY, UNDER BOND.

Must Produce Thirty-five Hundred Dollars as Guarantee He will Give Fifteen a Month to Deaf and Dumb Girl Mother Who Accuses Him.

Scott Beal, motion picture director, was ordered yesterday by Superior Judge Craig to give Miss Elsie Thornton $60 for the support of her child and to produce a bond of $3500 to guarantee future monthly payments of $15. The complaining witness, who is an attractive and deaf and dumb girl, said Beal is the father of her baby and that he had refused to support it.

The director was accompanied to the courtroom by his wife, who was formerly Miss Wilhelmina Eichert and whom he married after his alleged relationship with Miss Thornton. The defendant was given until the 13th inst. to furnish the bond.

FORECLOSURE SUIT. HALTED BY ARSON CASE.

A suit to foreclose a mortgage on Pasadena property was partially tried before Judge Shenk yesterday and continued until next Friday, in view of the fact that F. H. Hamilton, one of the defendants, will face trial Tuesday on a charge of having set fire to the house located on this property. Hamilton is out on bail.

The action was brought by the Pasadena Trust and Savings Bank against Hamilton, Nettie E. Hamilton, the Title Guaranty and Trust Company, the Boston Insurance Company, German-American Insurance Company, Scottish Union and National Insurance Company, J. C. McCament and others. The insurance companies have paid $10,000 into court, and seek to be protected in regard to the application of the money on a note given to secure the mortgage of $20,000. Mr. McCament, who indorsed the note, is represented by Attorney Edward Hahn.

Thomson of Pasadena, who died at Brooklyn, December 5, 1916, directed in his will that the following sums be bequeathed: Fannie C. Melick and Mary J. Many, half-sisters, $5000 each; Jennie H. Stanton, a sister, $5000. The residue is bequeathed to the widow, Fannie M. Thomson, to use or dispose of it in any manner she may deem advisable "for her own best interests." The petition filed yesterday for the probate of the will gives the value of the estate as in excess of $10,000.

SEEKING TO "GET" EXPERT INSPECTOR.

FIGHT AGAINST M'CLELLAN IS STILL PROCEEDING.

Civil Service Commission has Refused Request of Board of Public Works for Conference and Calls Examination to be Held March First.

The fight which has been made "to get" F. T. McClellan, expert inspector in the engineering department, has reached the stage where the Civil Service Commission has been induced to call an examination for March 1. This has been done despite the fact that the Board of Public Works and members of the Council have requested delay as they do not consider that Inspector McClellan's work is finished.

The Board of Public Works recently asked the Civil Service Commission to confer on the subject, but the commission replied it could not see that anything could be accomplished by a conference and yesterday asked the board to give in detail the duties of the position and state the necessary qualifications. Inspector McClellan has applied to take the examination.

The Civil Service Commission takes the position that the office can no longer be considered a temporary one. It was willing not to have an examination if assured that the position would be abolished in ninety days, but this assurance not having been given, it has called the examination.

Rose Hill Danger.

Business Superintendent Jennings of the Board of Education yesterday filed with the City Clerk a request to the Council that a viaduct be built over or a subway under the Mission road at Pueblo or Rosemead avenues "in order to safeguard the lives of children who may be compelled to cross the roadway and encounter different kinds of traffic."

Twenty Cited.

Out of more than 450 jitney bus drivers, only twenty have failed to carry out the regulations of the Board of Public Utilities regarding having route letter and permit number painted on the windshields of the busses. These twenty have been cited to appear before the board Tuesday, but it is expected that before then they will have complied with the rules.

He Cannot Serve.

The City Council will tomorrow be asked to excuse City Engineer Hamlin from conferring with County Flood Control Engineer Reagan in regard to flood control matters. The City Engineer has reported to the Board of Works that the time between now and the bond election day, February 20, is not sufficient for him intelligently to pass upon the large questions involved. Moreover there are many city matters which require his attention. If time permitted he would be glad to give all the assistance possible, he states.

Sports Skirts

Bold and Daring!

—Beautiful and full of charm—colorful incarnations of the gayety of which they are destined to form a part!

—In the flannels, which are rather hard-twilled and firm, there is one model which has a deep, triple-pointed yoke cut so that the stripes of the material are on the bias, and from which are hung the deep side plaits. A pretty color combination is old pink, green and white stripes.

—Another is of wistaria, gray and white stripes; and a gorgeous, irresponsibly gay skirt is full-plaited of clover green and golden-rod yellow plaid, its huge pockets bearing pointed, button-trimmed laps of self material.

COMPOSITE EVENT.

NEW PLAY AND LEADING MAN; "EXPERIENCE" STAYS.

Theatergoers will have the chance to make the acquaintance of a new leading man, and see the first stock production of a new play, besides further enjoying the talents of a charming new leading lady, this afternoon. The matinee girl's Florida sundae has nothing on this event for the attractiveness of its component parts. The play to be staged is Willard Mack's "So Much for So Much;" the new leading man is Ramsey Wallace, and the leading woman, who has already captured local amusement fans in one play, is Bertha Mann.

Meanwhile a further opportunity will be afforded the public to appreciate "Experience." The big play is to have a special popular performance tonight and will continue its remarkably successful engagement another week.

The vaudeville houses offer exceptionally good bills, the keynote being "pep" and variety.

Mason.

Because of the unequalled demand for seats Manager Wyatt of the Mason announces that he has arranged with Elliott, Comstock and Gest for a second week's engagement of "Experience." Not only this, but there is to be a special performance this evening at popular prices. This excellent production, which is heartily commended by the clergy of Los Angeles as well as other cities, is told in captivating language and through the medium of delightful acting. George Hobart seems to have taken an old bottle and poured into it the exhilarating fluid of everyday happenings, bringing home with singular effectiveness the story of the adventures of the average young man of today.

Two of the most fascinating scenes in the play are the Primrose Path and the House of Last Resort, contrasting the supreme heights of wealth and the depth of poverty.

Morosco.

The first stock production of Willard Mack's "So Much for So Much," which received its premiere in New York a season ago, will be given this afternoon at the Morosco. The play will serve to introduce Ramsey Wallace, new leading man of the Morosco Theater. He will assume the role of the reporter, played by Willard Mack in the New York production, while Bertha Mann will have the feminine lead, originally taken by Marjorie Rambeau.

The story of "So Much for So Much" is said to rest on a chapter in the life of society in this country.

Besides the principals already mentioned, the cast for the play will include Richard Dix, Warner Baxter, Douglas McLean, Lillian Elliott, Lola May, James Corrigan and other Morosco favorites. The production will be staged under the ever finished direction of Fred J. Butler.

Burbank.

Hawaiian music, Hawaiian plays and Hawaiian girls seem to be the rage these days, so the Knickerbocker Amusement Company did not make a wild guess about the beat of the public pulse when they decided that the first musical comedy to be presented at the Burbank, beginning Sunday evening, February 11, should be "Hello Hawaii!" If it sounds as well from behind the footlights as it sounds in the announcement it will make a hit.

The production is to be staged by Director Alphin, and will feature Miss Mabel Saker, Ben T. Dillon and Maxie Mitchell. Twenty pretty chorus girlies will fill the old Burbank with song and radiant smiles.

Orpheum.

"A glittering galaxy of greatness" is the way the local Orpheum management epitomizes the bill beginning with the matinee tomorrow. The top places go to Muriel Worth and Clayton White. Miss Worth is a former Hollywood girl and Southern California may well be proud of her, for she has "made good" as one of the world's leading ballet artistes.

Clayton White is one of the veteran players of vaudeville. In "Peggy" he has an odd little drama, all the characters being men, the scene being an actor's dressing-room on Christmas Eve, usually a dismal season for stage folk. Other featured favorites of the bill are Pat Rooney and Marion Bent, who return with their celebrated "news stand" act, bringing new songs, music and dances. Stewart and Donohue appear "naturally," but there is a quality about their patter work said to be unique in its appeal to fun lovers.

Another good team is John and Winnie Hennings, "The Kill Kare Koupie," while Burdella Patterson will disclose a model form in a spotlight and some diaphanous pictures. The holdover acts are the clever Tobin Girls in "The Age of Reason," Mayo and Tally and the two Harrys.

Pantages.

From a military octette of Hussar instrumentalists to the movie serial, the Pantages bill for the next week will radiate "class" in its variety of harmony, comedy and trick work. The octette puts a speed and ginger into its number that would make it a great feature on any programme, it is said. Corelli and Gilette, both clever acrobats and sterling comedians, will offer a novelty act that promises to be "some" novelty.

For lovers of mystery there is Herbert Brooks, whose feats are ever the cause for much speculation. Then there are the Whott four, a quartette of pretty faces, voices and gowns, all in a bunch.

Bill and Bob Millard have a turn that includes everything from the old-time songs to the latest acrobatic stunts, while Wilbur Brown, king of the ukulele, and Prince and Deerie will complete the attractive programme. In addition there will be the fourteenth chapter of "The Lass of the Lumberlands."

Hippodrome.

The most exacting vaudeville fan is promised a pleasant hour at the Hippodrome any time during the week beginning tomorrow, for the feast of entertainment contains a variety of everything from soup to pie, figuratively speaking. Among the headliners are George Clancy and company, who will present a romantic sketch of early California days entitled "The Padre." Another big feature will be Stein, Hume and Thomas, who scored a success here last season as purveyors of melody and harmony.

The Heuman trio will offer a comedy cycling act, and the Gordon Highlanders have songs, dances and instrumental numbers said to be quite out of the ordinary run. Jack Lamey is said to have an unlimited fund of laugh material, while Powder and Capman offer a dancing act that is said to be "something different." Completing the programme are Gillis and company in a novel gymnastic performance, and the regular run of good photoplays.

INVITE CLERGY TO PICTURES.

The management of the Alhambra Theater has announced its desire to have ministers of Los Angeles, of all denominations and all creeds, as guests of the Alhambra Theater, any afternoon or evening of this week, to witness the presentation of "It May Be Your Daughter." There will be no formal invitations sent out, as the time is too short. The pastor's personal card will secure instant admittance for himself and family, it is stated. "It May Be Your Daughter" is a preachment against the ignorance which permits young girls to enter young womanhood without knowing how to shield themselves against the temptations of life in any large city.

THE COLOR OF THE CINEMA.

Intensity and Brightness at Universal City—Where the Made-up Man is in His Glory—The Music of the Movies.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

UNIVERSAL CITY has an effect upon the senses similar to a Futurist painting. The impression is kaleidescopic and intense. There is a French village, and alongside of it a New York tenement district, then a corner of a southern plantation, a ranch, a zoo, a church, conventional club and office buildings, and the great square glassed-in buildings that mean interior studios. This is all still life, however; the intense part of it is seen in the innumerable stages in the open air, with a play taking place on every one of them. It is all like a great big circus; not three, but 100-ringed, with a crimson moon and purple elephants.

The surprise of watching pictures in the making is that they give the impression of the legitimate, more than of the cinema, for the people are all there, and they talk and act just as they do on the speaking stage, only they are not quite so clean, and every now and then the director shouts at them and walks on to the stage for a conference. Conferences are quite frequent, for the cinema actor seems to give as much advice regarding the business of the piece as the director. The picture part of the scheme would not occur to the spectator were it not for the inevitable and omnipresent camera. Except for the camera and the grime, it is precisely like a dress rehearsal of the legitimate. I do not mean to imply that there is no grime on the speaking stage, but the particular brand of multicolored grime found in picture studios is like nothing else on earth except that of a circus. The noon sun blazing on a heterogeneous gathering of humans made up in a manner to recall the Cubists—with green eyelids, pallid cheeks, and lips so scarlet that they look like fresh wounds, with a grimy slathering of red under the chin and impossibly vivid hair, the star goes about her work of "creating." It is the grime of the rainbow—the rainbow gone into a daub with a hectic purposefulness that makes for the wonders of the screen—the world's latest miracle.

There is a novelty in the man of the moving pictures. He is like no other man on earth in that he is the first of his species to be colorful. Men have not, for the past several centuries at least, been anything but black and white, or at best, brown, and the man of the movies is all color; he makes up as much as the women, and he appears on the grounds in such a variety of color as to lend as much atmosphere as any of the women. How can woman ever expect to develop a love for form and color so long as men refuse to represent either? Or, is it the other way around, and will man supply the demand after we create it? This does not mean that the man of moving pictures is alluring in the studio; far from it, and women never will haunt the home of pictures as men haunt the stage entrance of the legitimate. But the choice of subjects, at the Universal Company's studios at least, is unending. There are priests and cowboys, highwaymen and artists, all saluting one another on the circus ground, and above all sitting together in perfect amicability at luncheon.

Luncheon at the cafeteria-restaurant at Universal is stupendous in its eccentricity. The really dramatic part of it is its unconscious quality. Every possible type of man and woman is there, and there is no acting; only hungry humanity seeking to satisfy its appetite, and sustain effort through the afternoon. The room sounds like Bedlam, but not because the people shout, they do not, they are too tired; simply because there are so many of them. Probably about 1500 in that little circus city. They go about, literally getting their food in the most systematic manner, with rather rapt expressions, and, by noon, utterly unspeakable faces. They are hard-working people, entirely absorbed in the business at hand.

There is nobody less dramatic than an actor when he is not working. He is the most primitive man alive. As soon as he leaves the stage or the reach of the camera, he drops his attitudes and becomes natural and human; and so at Universal we see him, not stalking, as he does when he works, but sauntering, or even slinking if he is sufficiently tired. Of course, a screen actor must be natural, if he is nothing else. An artificially posed picture would be as bad as a stiffly posed photograph, and their naturalness is the most extraordinary thing about the cinema stars.

The moving picture actor does not show the strain of the man on the speaking stage. There is a vast difference in the work, in that a mistake on the speaking stage is irreparable, while a picture may be taken over again, and does not reach the public until it is ready for approval. There is never any opening night of clammy terror for the picture star; for him there is only the dread of the director; he never runs the risk of a hiss from the public; he never reaches the public until the director is satisfied with his performance, and he has not the opportunity to commit ruin thereafter. Neither does he know the horrors of the traveling company; he has his home like ordinary mortals, and he is stationary.

Will composers take advantage of the opportunity afforded by motion pictures as actors and dramatists have done? I think not, because musicians seldom take advantage of anything. It is not in the musical sense to scent advantages. They almost invariably do the thing which will be of the least personal benefit. A dramatist is conscious of timeliness and action, and an actor always has his career in mind, but a musician is the least earthly of all the artistic host. He has no eye on what the public wants and besides it is sure to be something that he does not want.

The Universal uses small orchestras to stimulate the action of the players; music that is mournful or frivolous or martial as the case requires; especially with children is this desirable, and successful. But for the larger field of composing for the cinema, that has as yet many obstacles in its way, which, nevertheless, must be overcome for the sake of the [illegible]. Speaking of martial music, there is a strange thing taking place in Joan the Woman. When Joan's victory is made known to Charles and she crowns him king, the orchestra plays The Marseillaise! Now, of course, that is very stirring music, and very French, but composed as it was, for the sake of bringing a nation to arms against royalty some 300 years later, it is scarcely appropriate. If the Marseillaise does not express revolt it does not express anything. It is not a song of victory, but one of rebellion against absolutism. Music for the motion pictures is yet to be composed, although something has been done with it already. Vic-

Sunshine.

WESTWARD IS COURSE.

MANY FILM COMPANIES FIX LONGING EYES HERE.

By Grace Kingsley.

Westward the star of empire takes its way. So does the motion picture star and the motion picture business. Los Angeles has a little young Broadway all her own, which grows in proportion to the growth of her motion picture colony. So that Fannie Ward's aigrettes and jewels, Marie Doro's furs, and Dustin Farnum's smile are quite as well known on Los Angeles's Broadway as on New York's. And as for Charlie Chaplin's checked suit, Mabel Normand's red racer, Jackie Saunders's tam-o'-shanter, Fay Tincher's piquantly mannish hats, Wilfred Lucas's stalwart inches, and Lois Weber's big red car—they have long been landmarks in our midst, and very soon, it is reported, Mary Pickford's sunny curls and Maxine Elliott's classic beauty are to be features of the scenery.

Now, with the branching out and influx of big picture companies, it begins to look as if the whole of New York's Alarm Clock Alley would soon be transported to Hollywood. The climate is press-agented as the cause of the popularity of California with the picture companies, and doubtless this is one of the main reasons for the westward-ho movement. But the topography of the country has a great deal to do with this also. When scenery was being dealt, California helped herself to a sample of every suit.

A few days ago, for instance, Walter Edwards, an Ince director, sent out his scouts to find a bit of coast which looked like New England's rugged shoreline, and when, after a few days' search, said director went to look at the spot his embryo Columbuses had discovered, and they asked him whether the location looked like Cape Cod, he exclaimed: "Great Scott, yes! It looks more like Cape Cod than Cape Cod itself!"

Bear Valley is coming to have more traditions than the Alps, even if they are of the tenuous sort born of the story teller's imagination; Rome's seven hills were quiet compared to Inceville's, and the Mojave Desert is becoming a miniature Sahara, if the fervid fancy is taken into account; while the storied isles of Greece haven't anything on the sky-scraping stories of Catalina Island for romantic adventure. Then, too—and this is a very real factor—the actors themselves like California.

Recent important announcements of various big picture companies of the East are all to the effect that they are on the eve of migrating to California. Among the most important of the announcements is that of the Goldwyn company, received yesterday, which states that said company will shortly begin erection of a studio here. Hither are to be sent its principal stars, including Maxine Elliott, Jane Cowl, Madge Kennedy, Mae Marsh and others. It is likely that Margaret Mayo and Edgar Selwyn will arrive here, too, within a few months.

Through the efforts of Samuel Goldfish have been secured the film rights to the works of Robert W. Chambers, Margaret Mayo, Irvin S. Cobb, Roi Cooper Megrue, Edith Ellis, Edgar Selwyn, Porter Emerson Browne, Avery Hopwood, Louis K. Anspacher and Diana Hunekar, many of whose stories will be staged in the West.

The Vitagraph company, it is announced, is about to move its entire forces to Hollywood, where it already owns a large plant and several acres of land.

The Fox company is expanding its quarters week by week, until now it has one of the biggest studios in the West. The Lasky Famous Players Company has grown incredibly during the past year, both as to the physical area of its studio and improvements, and the number and importance of its companies. One by one the Famous Players stars are coming west. The Kalem company likewise is to move its entire producing plant west.

Balboa Growing.

Balboa is expanding by leaps and bounds. Last week the General Film Company ordered from Balboa a series of fifty-two feature photoplays, all of which will be produced at the Long Beach studios. To fulfill this order, four new companies will be formed and kept at work continuously, while the stages, both indoor and open-air, will be enlarged as well as the laboratories. The erection of a huge glass studio, to cost $50,000, has already been commenced.

The productions to be staged by Balboa will be known as the Knickerbocker Star Features, and one will be released on the General Film programme each week, beginning March 1. The plays will be taken from well-known stories that have appeared recently in Ainslee's, Popular and People's magazines. The screen adaptations will be made under the direction of Will M. Ritchey, head of the Balboa scenario staff, assisted by Capt. Leslie T. Peacocke, Dan F. Whitcomb and Douglas Bronston. The companies will be directed by Bertram Bracken, lately in charge of Theda Bara productions of the Fox forces, by Edgar Jones, formerly of the Metro company, and by Harry Harvey and William Bertram.

The productions promise to be of the highest dramatic quality. Some of the foremost screen players of the newer generation have been engaged to appear. Among the women are Kathleen Kirkman, Viola Vale, Winifred Greenwood, Louise Sothern, Margaret Landis, Gloria Payton, Ethel Ritchie, Mignon LeBrun and [illegible], and male leads will be played by Arthur Shirley, Clifford Gray, Melvin Mayo, Cullen Landis, R. Henry Grey, Lewis King and James Warner.

Steele to Support.

The Goldwyn company announces as Mae Marsh's leading man in the first feature in which she appears for that organization none other than the well-known English actor, Vernon Steele, who came to America first with Marie Tempest, and later was leading man with Billie Burke.

MUSICAL

FESTAL DAYS BEGIN.

FEBRUARY TO BE A NOTABLE MONTH IN LOCAL ART.

By Edwin Schallert.

Starting with the matinee by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra today, melody and her royal attendants in the domain of harmony will hold court before local music lovers during the next thirty days in a manner perhaps never before rivaled here. February may be a short month on the calendar, but it is a large one in the local musical world. Its coming has been heralded with promise of high estate to mark the coronation of the Muse this season, although this is not to be construed as meaning that there are not many brilliant happenings to follow in the spring months.

The advance guard of the procession of events brought a fullness of satisfaction at the two excellent concerts by the local Symphony Orchestra last week. Without the assistance of any outside talent the organization achieved one of the most splendid successes of the present season, upon which season fortune has already smiled quite encouragingly.

This afternoon Los Angeles will be favored with the opportunity of hearing for the first time one of the most able and finished orchestras of the Middle West. The Minneapolis Symphony has triumphed not only in the immediate vicinity of its own city, but throughout the East. It has fine financial backing which enables it to attain the best results, and in this respect its appearance may prove a valuable lesson in what this monetary plenitude may mean to an orchestra.

The Minneapolis Symphony is to give four concerts in this city—the one this afternoon, a "popular" event, at Clune's Auditorium, and the remaining three at Trinity tomorrow night and Tuesday afternoon and evening.

The present week is quite filled with interesting events. Several recitals are programmed at the local clubs which promise much attractiveness. That excellent Timmner-Lott combination, with assisting musicians, is to give the fourth of its series of recitals Thursday evening. Oskar Seiling will present a violin programme at Blanchard Hall Saturday evening.

Bernhardt of Song.

The premier sensation of the latter part of the week, however, will be the appearance of Yvette Guilbert, the famous interpreter of the chanson, Saturday afternoon at Trinity Auditorium. No artist of the present musical year has excited more interest than this lady of remarkable personality, whose name is known to all, who have been abroad during the past thirty years. Many have sought to tread the same path in art as Yvette Guilbert, but there is only one Yvette.

At her recent appearances San Francisco gave her its unstinted approval, and she has been termed the Bernhardt of song.

Celebrated Stars.

The conquering hero and heroine of the following musical week will be Lina Cavalieri and Lucien Muratore, whose glad songs and fascinating personalities (not to mention Lina's beauty) will thrill on the 15th inst. at Shrine Auditorium. This is their first visit to the Golden West, and it promises to be the more golden for their presence, even though they will make but one concert appearance.

The second recital of Yvette Guilbert will take place the 13th inst. The Symphony Orchestra will be heard in its seventh pair of concerts for the season next week with a very excellent programme. Karl Havlicek, violinist, will be a visiting artist for two recitals, and Gertrude Cohen, among the local musicians, will give a morning musicale at the Alexandria on the 17th.

Glories of Opera.

The crowning feature of the month will occupy the week of the 19th. The Boston National Opera Company will come to Clune's Auditorium with a cast of principals surpassing that of last year and a repertoire that will make the popular chord resound. Zenatello, Maggie Teyte, Luisa Villani, Riccardo Martin, Jose Mardones, George Baklanoff, Thomas Chalmers, Mabel Riegelmann and Tamaki Miura are just a few of the bright luminaries who grace the galaxy of this company, which had no difficulty in captivating the public at its last appearance here with a musically somewhat less bright constellation.

Among the other events which will help fill out the latter part of February or the first week of March are the programmes by the Flonzaley Quartette, Charles Wakefield Cadman and the Princess Tsianina, Louis Graveure, as well as the Symphony Orchestra, Brahms Quintette and Timmner-Lott organization.

Minneapolis Programmes.

Singularly fine are the programmes to be offered in this city by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. Even Walter Damrosch, on his occasional visits to the Coast, has given us nothing to surpass these in interest, particularly from the modern side. The very latest of Richard Strauss's orchestral compositions is included, in the "Alpine Symphony," to be presented Tuesday evening. The same composer's "Salome" finale in concert form also is to be given that evening, with Marcella Craft as the soloist. She also will sing an aria from Wagner's early and little-known "Die Feen."

The popular concert this afternoon will bring before the local public Max Reger's Ballet Suite, never before heard here. There are also several smaller novelties. Tschaikowsky's Symphony No. 4 in F minor, which our own orchestra gave at its concerts, will be the main selection. Several pretty and attractive solo features by the gifted artists of the orchestra are also listed.

Following are the programmes in detail, as announced:

Muratore and Cavalieri.

There is a certain peculiar similarity in the careers of Lucien Muratore and Lina Cavalieri, who are to sing in this city shortly. Aside from the fact that both have won marked success in Italian and French opera roles, it is interesting to note that both began their work, not in the operatic profession, but in arts related thereto. Cavalieri originally was a dancer, while Muratore began his stage life as an actor in leading roles with Rejane. Cavalieri forsook her dancing, terming it a doll's life, for music, studying at the St. Cecilia Conservatory of Music. Her experience with the sister art of music had much to do, however, with giving her that grace for which she is noted. In a similar way Muratore made use of the histrionic ability he had gained in his portrayals of operatic work. His interpretations have a recognizedly superior dramatic quality.

Cavalieri has triumphed remarkably in this country in roles like Thais in Massenet's opera of that name, Mimi in "La Boheme;"

Sterling Silver

STERLING SILVER—Table Silver in sets or separate pieces is alway appreciated by the housewife.

—For weddings, silverware is essential, nothing is more appropriate or more ap preciated. Next to the ring itself, it dominates all other gifts. It becomes th heirloom of the family.

—The Parmelee-Dohrmann Silverware Department is especially proud of i showing of Sterling, displaying several patterns in flatware and an unsurpassing stock of popular priced table articles.

Sterling Silver Flatware Patterns

THE CELLINI PATTERN — A Gorham Pattern of pleasing symmetry in outline, of good weight, and attractive detail. It successfully meets the growing popular demand for a pattern with sufficient ornamentation to distinguish it from severely plain designs. It will harmonize with the other furnishings in practically every dining-room.

PETER STUYVESANT—The increasing popularity of Hammered Silver Ware actuates us in presenting the Stuyvesant, a dignified and substantial specimen of that character, so strong and enduring in its qualities as to entitle it to bear the name of the resolute and inflexible old Dutch Governor of New Amsterdam—Petrus Stuyvesant.

Other patterns: Napoleon, Livingston, Putman, Florentine, Patrician and Quincy, Governor Bradford.

Creating the Proper Atmosphere in the Bedroom

BY EXERCISING proper care, taste and judgment in the selection and placing of the furnishings, one can create a beautiful bedroom without lavish expenditure.

This is especially simple of accomplishment when one relies on the co-operation of the experienced men who are here at the "California" at the service of patrons. One has the advantage here also of resourcefulness in selection. Only the unusual and the really beautiful is shown here.

And yet, by actual comparison, it costs no more to furnish the bedroom at the "California" than at the average furniture store where these advantages of superior selection and helpful service are not available to such a degree.

All the important periods are represented in our display of bedroom furniture, which occupies an entire floor.

You will be very welcome to compare values and to spend as much time as you wish seeing the display, without obligating yourself to buy.

In one of our windows this week are presented some very effective suggestions for the furnishing of the bedroom.

Majestic.

One of the most interesting characters in history is Joan of Arc. This is true not merely because, being "only a woman," she proved herself as intrepid in battle as the most seasoned warriors of the sterner sex, but owing also to the fact that connected in a mysterious manner with her power over the enemies of France there runs the story of a supernatural vision which inspired all her daring, and seems to have been the cause of all her triumph. Geraldine Farrar's interesting interpretation of "Joan, the Woman" will be continued at the Majestic Theater for another week. The remarkable photodrama, written by Jeanie McPherson and produced by Cecil B. de Mille of the Lasky company, is creating a world of comment among Los Angeles picture lovers.

The music for the production was written by William Furst, and the big symphony orchestra at the Majestic is under his personal direction.

Clune's Auditorium.

The sixth and final week of "The Eyes of the World" will open tomorrow at Clune's Auditorium. Although the big Clune production is still the magnet for great throngs of people, the coming of grand opera and of another big picture feature, as well as the booking of "The Eyes of the World" in San Francisco, prompted the adoption of this schedule. With the end of the fifth week the number of those who have seen the film version of Wright's famous story reached a total of 60,000, and the closing week is expected to be a banner one. W. H. Clune has already booked a series of big films from the East, definite announcement of which will be made soon. At present another company is playing "The Eyes of the World" through Arizona and New Mexico, duplicating the success recorded in Los Angeles.

Miller's.

Valeska Suratt, who wears gowns as only Valeska Suratt can wear them, and who acts as only Valeska Suratt can act, is to be the attraction at Miller's, beginning today, in a brand new spectacle entitled "The New York Peacock."

A drama of the white lights full of the life and color of New York night life, "The New York Peacock" promises to be a real sensation.

Supporting Miss Suratt is Harry Hilliard, as leading man, and a brilliant company, including Alice Gale and Claire Whitney.

The added attraction is to be a new Fox film comedy entitled "The Cloud-Puncher," featuring Hank Mann, the boy with the bashful eye.

Tally's Broadway.

To wax enthusiastic over the talents of E. H. Sothern would be as trite as to remark that each new day is ushered in with a sunrise. The critics who for years have been hailing the eminent actor as one of the greatest in the history of the drama find reason for their praise of him in each new play in which he appears.

At Tally's Broadway during the coming week Mr. Sothern will appear in "The Man of Mystery," considered by many to be his best screen production. In "The Man of Mystery" Mr. Sothern provides thrill after thrill, yet in a very pleasing way without so much as using a single round of ammunition or wasting his energy in "a solitary swoop of his strong right arm."

The second part of "American Game Trails" will be the added attraction.

Alhambra.

A play with a big moral lesson, produced under the auspices of the Moral Uplift Society of America, is "It May Be Your Daughter," which will be the attraction at the Alhambra Theater, beginning today. This photoplay has just closed a successful engagement in San Francisco, and its premiere presentation in Los Angeles will be today. "It May be Your Daughter," as its title indicates, is a morality play with a warning to the fathers and mothers of the land to look out for the welfare of the innocent womanhood intrusted to their care and protection.

It is not a Fox production, but is said to equal in vivid interest anything that the Fox people have produced.

In addition to the big feature, the bill includes a new Christie comedy, entitled "The Gay Deceiver," featuring sunny Billy Rhodes.

Garrick.

A brand-new Charlie Chaplin comedy entitled "Easy Street" is showing at the Garrick. This is the ninth of the famous Mutual-Chaplin made under the $670,000 contract. "Easy Street" is said to be "a highway to joyland and a thoroughfare to funville." Charlie, however, discovers "Easy Street" to be one of the most disorderly thoroughfares in all the world. Not even the cop on the beat can maintain order there—so Charlie undertakes to reform the neighborhood! 'Nuf said! The rest must be seen to be appreciated.

Aside from the famous hat, the funny cane and the world-renowned shoes, the business and props are said to be entirely new.

The added attraction will be "Mary, Keep Your Feet Still," a rattling comedy-drama starring the petite Ella Hall.

Belasco.

The premiere showing of Edwin Milton Royle's success, "The Unwritten Law," featuring Beatriz Michelena and Andrew Robson, will

Mrs. Sue Balfour, who plays Mrs. Mathilda Clarke, mother of Beverly Clarke, the role taken by Beverly Bayne in Metro's serial, "The Great Secret," which is running at the Symphony, holds the champion all-round "stage mother" medal. By this is meant that she has played mother to more stage stars than anyone else. Mrs. Balfour, who has a sweet matronly face, began "mothering" stage favorites back in the good old stock company days, when she was a prominent member of Proctor's in New York. She has had some famous children, too, including Margaret Illington, Sydney Drew, Otis Skinner, Charlotte Walker, Tom Powers, Viola Allen and many others.

HAPPY THOUGHT CLUB SYMPOSIUM.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

All hope that lovely Myra Marr will ever return to the Happy Thought studio has been abandoned. The massive settee on which she was wont to repose her buxom figure has been draped in crepe and arrangements are being made to have her dramatic work carried on by others. This is a calloused and a sometimes cruel world and the loved ones of yesterday are the forgotten ones of today. Of course, on account of her generous size and affectionate disposition Myra will be remembered somewhat longer than the ordinary skirt, but it is a safe bet that even the Old Resident will be wearing another's picture in his watch before the picnic season breaks.

The reward of ten thousand bones for the solution of the Myra Marr mystery was a great incentive to effort on the part of sleuths. The mystery may be plumbed, but it is hardly possible that Myra will be seen again in the flesh—at least, in anything like the amount of flesh she usually carried. In this connection, however, a strange incident was noted. The watcher at the public scale at the freight house noticed the other day that the beam of the scale suddenly dipped and registered eighty-five pounds. There was nothing whatever on the platform and not a soul in sight. It is the theory of William Jennings Burns, the eminent detective, that Myra met a violent end and that it was her ghost that mounted the scale. When Myra was dieting last summer it was her custom to go to the freight-house every week to be weighed, and her gentle spirit may be keeping up the habit. She would be the only person hereabout likely to have an eighty-five-pound ghost.

Who knows?

On the strength of this the Old Resident consulted Mme. Uneeda Nozzer, the eminent clairvoyant. The madam put herself in a receptive mood and claimed to receive a message from Marrs, which she wrote on a slate as follows:

"Dry your eyes and quit your weepin',
I am not dead—I'm only sleepin'.

The handwriting, however, was vastly different from Myra's and the Old Resident refused to be consoled. He thought the happy medium was striving to cheer him up for the moment and try to get him into a mood where he would loosen up on his money.

One of the most striking solutions of the Myra Marr mystery is that of Prof. Watts Eaton Hughes, the eminent scientist of the club. It will be recalled that the buxom actress completely disappeared from this world while in a moving elevator somewhere between the fourth and eighth floors of the Alexangelus, where she was a guest. The young man in charge of the elevator is positive she got on at the ground floor. She did not stop at her rooms on the fourth floor, but signaled to the attendant to go on to the top—she was presumably going to the roof to cool off. But when the elevator man stopped at the eighth floor and opened the door his car was empty.

Prof. Hughes went at the mystery by the deductive process and questioned the attendant along those lines. When the boy reached the top landing the elevator was apparently empty—but was it? If Myra was not there was there anything there that was not there before. So, taking his magnifying glass, he went over the car very carefully with the attendant. They found three cockroaches in a corner of the car, and this in spite of the fact that the elevator had been thoroughly gone over with a vacuum cleaner the day before Myra's disappearance. The professor took the little roaches home to his rooms in the club studio, where he turned them loose.

During the night strange and tragic things happened to them. In the morning Dr. Hughes found one of the roaches crushed under a sofa pillow, on which he had unconsciously rested for a moment. Another had eaten profusely of some ant paste found on a shelf and was lying stark in death, and the third had drowned herself in the professor's shaving mug!

Like a flash the mystery explained itself to the professor. He recalled that at the time of her disappearance the beauteous Myra was filling a trinity of roles in the club's Shakesperean revue, "Midsummer Night's Scream." She had the parts of Juliet, Ophelia and Desdemona, and had become thoroughly wrapped up in them. Prof. Hughes not only believes in the transmigration of souls, but of bodies as well. A person of Myra's imposing physique could not well be reincarnated in one cockroach, and so her massive spirit now found lodgment in three! The one suffocated under the pillow was Desdemona, the one poisoned was Juliet, the one drowned was Ophelia. She had remained a consummate actress to the last.

She kept the faith even in her passing.

As to the form of her present incarnation the professor is wholly in the dark, but he is satisfied in his own mind that he has solved the mystery, and he wants the 10,000 bucks.

Uncle William Snaggs, the wild sage of the San Gabriel Wash, has become to some degree reconciled to the loss of Myra from the club studio. At the symposium yesterday he checked his tears long enough to remark:

"Far be it from me to cast reflections on the memory of the missing Myra Marr. Casting reflections would make about as much impression on Myra's stability as digging with a toothpick would make on Mt. Lowe. 'Tis an ill wind, however, and now that Myra has chosen to vanish in thin air—or was in thin raiment—I once more feel emboldened to agitate in favor of my favorite, Marie Walcamp, as leading lady in "Midsummer Night's Scream." Marie has shaken the dust of the Big U ranch from her pretty feet (I know they're pretty,) and I suggest using some of that Carranza currency in locating her and making her an offer. Perhaps the Old Resident can woo forgetfulness in the quest, although it will be hard to forget the lovely Myra, but if he balks I'll undertake it myself, for I have nothing to do at present but teach a bantam rooster to mind his own business. I make these suggestions in case Myra's disappearance becomes permanent; if she reappears I'll have to retract again, but that won't be any trouble for a man who has been explaining Hughes's defeat ever since. In the meantime we've gotta have a heroine. Have the detectives sought her around the municipal building? She may have gone there for information, and if she doesn't perish from fatigue before she gets it she may return. I went to the City Hall one time for information, and my wife was about to charge me with desertion when I returned. 'Tis a sad tale, mates:

"I went down to the City Hall to make a small complaint, and now, since I have made that call, I'm weary, sick and faint. The clerk who first accosted me smiled charmingly a bit. 'Oh, yes,' he said, 'you want to see the men who yonder sit.' The men who yonder sit I tried; they eyed me for awhile; they hawed and said, 'See Mr. Pride, just two desks down the aisle.' To Mr. Pride I made my talk; he sent me to see Brown, and Brown, he sent me for a walk just four desks farther down. And thus from desk to desk I went; I spoke to clerks galore; at last I was no farther sent because there were no more. Oh, City Hall's a grand old hall; it's sure the candy place, for those who pay the taxes tall, to walk a six-day race."

The poets are rhyming about their favorite flowers. It isn't all rose and lily—by a long shot. Some of the plebeian blooms have their friends. The gorgeous sunflower is championed by Thomas Jefferson Patchley, the Forty-second-street mockingbird, who sings thusly on his trombone:

The Sunflower.

The sunflower, my favorite blossom,
Reminds me of the life of a 'possum;
  In the hills alone, or trapped as game,
  The possum's smile is ever the same.
One prowls at night; by early morn its work is done.
The other turns at night to greet the morning sun.

Charles Ross de Klein, who learned to sprinkle happy thoughts while writing bills of lading, has applied for admission to the club. He thinks he might qualify for the first degree and wear the button of the Breezy Brotherhood at

Some visitors and others.

Mrs. Edwin Francis Holmes, sometimes called the "Silver Queen of Utah," and a genuine social favorite in Southern California, was one of the patronesses of the charity ball at the Hotel Maryland Thursday evening. Miss Gladys Blevins, a society girl of St. Louis, who has come with her parents, Judge and Mrs. John Blevins, to spend the winter in Los Angeles. She is a Wellesley graduate in last year's class, and an intimate friend of the Misses Maurece and Julienne Heffelfinger, who are her week-end guests at the beach. Miss Josephine Banks is the charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Leo Banks. Miss Cecil Healy of Toronto, Can., who, with her parents, is wintering at the Hotel Maryland. Miss Geraldine Gough has come on from Toronto to visit her. in which one talks about low-brow things in a highbrow way, is very popular among the widows. The soulful, spirituelle, lofty idealed type is still extant, but is rather exacting for any but classical features. The worldly-wise, innocent debutante style, with the naughty tongue and the baby stare, properly done, is very fetching. Being a good influence has its vogue, too. Very popular among the earnest daughters of club women.

Talking of club women, I recently met Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, president of the national federation. She is quite distinctive, talks like a streak of lighting with a train to catch, and wears graceful 1917 gowns with a 1910 waistline, with discriminating taste. She has the art of making an hour's speech in ten minutes.

Heard about the new reducing rage? Mrs. Crescy and Mrs. Noble have taken it up with fearful zest and tell violent stories of their exciting "treatments," which includes rolling on hard boards and contortionist tricks of surprising alarmfulness. When a plump ladys toe is arbitrarily compelled to touch her shoulder the rebound can occasion little short of earthquakes. But it takes Mrs. Crescy to tell the story with graphic descriptive detail.

Yours for comfortable plumpitude and no bony protuberances.

BETTY.

Crowded Calendar.

Time's wings of pleasure are bearing Lent swiftly nearer—now seventeen days distant. But ere there is a cessation of society's festivities many large events are yet to fill milady's days and evenings with gay activity.

There is the bachelor's ball for the 19th inst., with its score of dinner parties in the planning. And the Allied carnival on the 16th and 17th will be preceded the 7th (Wednesday) by the German-Austro-Hungarian relief costume programme-card party. In addition many individual hosts and hostesses are active with hospitable preparations.

Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Bryant have taken a crowd of young folk to the Crags Country Club for the week-end—a compliment to Miss Eleanor MacGowan and shared in by others of the debutante circle.

Mrs. James H. Cockins will give a large luncheon party at Midwick Tuesday for the Kerckhoff twins—Gertrude and Marian—who will also be complimented on the 13th, when Mrs. Frank W. Emery and her newly-presented daughter Katherine will have luncheon guests in their Hillcrest-avenue home, Pasadena. And the Kerckhoff girls will be further honored at the Valentine party Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jewett Schweppe will give at the California Club the 14th inst.

The approach of St. Valentine's Day is noted in all the little details of luncheon and tea-table adornment these days. Cupid with his bow and his strings of red hearts will be conspicuous in the first half of the month's entertaining.

One of the more important affairs of the month is scheduled for McDonald Taylor, Mrs. Daniel Murphy and Mrs. W. A. Clark, Jr., will entertain some 250 guests with a dance and buffet supper at the Alexandria.

The past week has also been full to overflowing with pleasureable functions, but to a bachelor fell unquestioned honor—Louis F. Vetter. Many who were his guests are children of the people he has known many years—grown children who are now taking their places as society buds. Thursday night he was host at one of the most sumptuous "rosebud" dinner-dances of the winter, in compliment to Miss Eleanor MacGowan, whose birthday it was. The entire second floor of the California Club was "done over" for the event—the walls hung with Dresden wreaths and garlands of ferns and rosebuds, caught up with lovers' knots of pink ribbon. The tables, seating from ten to a dozen friends each, were presided over by Miss MacGowan, Mrs. James Calhoun Drake, Mrs. Henry W. O'Melveny, Mrs. Sayre Macneil, Mrs. Eugene Payson Clark, Miss Eleanor Banning, Miss Amy Busch and Mr. Vetter, who placed Mrs. MacGowan at his right and Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner at his left.

Each table held a mammoth snowy mound—the birthday cake—centered with a beautiful fairy in gauzy draperies, made apparently from the clouds and dewdrops. Surrounding each figure were huge pink tapers shedding subdued illumination. The cakes were banked in wreaths of Cecil Brunner rosebuds and feathery fern fonds, and at each loop stood a tall candle wound in these Dresden flowers and based in pink lovers' knots. Tiny fairies, standing on miniature replica cakes, beckoned the guests to their places, the small cards having diminutive tapers at either side. There were also elegant baskets for the confections and nuts. Each coterie was summoned to its table by means of a talking machine, entering the rooms by candlelight.

Henry W. O'Melveny, in an impromptu response to a toast, likened the assembled debutantes to flowers, each with its individual charm. J. Bond Francisco exemplified his art by picturing them in musical rhythm and W. H. Crane, the actor, amplified the theme in his "flowery" talk.

The guests were:

Table 1—Miss MacGowan, presiding; Miss Marian Kerckhoff, Miss Beatrice Finlayson, Miss Jane Richardson, Miss Marian Wigmore, Miss Helen Jones, Miss Gertrude Kerckhoff, Miss Mary Forve, Miss Rosemary Sartori, Miss Dorothy Lindley, Mrs. Marcus Marshall; Garrett Winne, Harrell J. Mary Wilcox Longstreet, Mrs. J. Bond Francisco, Mrs. Dean Mason, Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner; Mr. Vetter, presiding; William H. Crane of New York, J. Bond Francisco, William E. Dunn, Guy. B. Barham and John J. Byrne.

Mrs. Eltinge T. Brown, John D. MacFarland, Conway Barbour, Bradner Lee, Jr., Garretson Dulin and Ross Kirkpatrick.

Coming Event.

Mrs. Norman D. Hall (formerly Grace Monk,) has issued cards for a tea the afternoon of the 16th inst. to meet her brother's bride, Mrs. Edward Brewster Monk, who was, prior to her marriage, Miss Margaret Davidson of Des Moines, Iowa. Two hundred invitations are out.

Mrs. Hollingsworth a Hostess.

Her second party of the week was given by Mrs. William Irving Hollingsworth last night, when she entertained with an informal bridge supper honoring Mrs. L. V. Price of Chicago, who is wintering at the Huntington.

Among the guests were Mr. and and Mrs. Reuben Shettler, Mr. and Mrs. Willitts J. Hole, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lott, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Thresher, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas E. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark Carlisle, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Miles, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Orcutt, Mr. and Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Crenshaw, Mrs. H. K. Williamson and Mrs. Downing.

The hostess, who has a rare collection of imported laces and linens, centered each filmy cloth with a floral motley of spring flowers.

Mrs. Hollingsworth extended a welcoming courtesy to Mrs. Alexander B. Barrett Tuesday noon, when she gathered by phone a coterie of guests, including Mrs. Price, Mmes. Stoddard Jess, E. H. Moore, E. S. Rowley, Easton, Dwight Hart, C. W. Hinchcliffe, W. D. Stephens and George H. Bishop and Miss White, who enjoyed luncheon and bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Barret are just back from a trip to Honolulu, and Tuesday evening furnished the inspiration for a dinner, with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hawkins hosts, at the California Club. Covers were placed for twenty-four, all of whom belong to a congenial dancing coterie.

The Barrets are again at the Los Angeles Country Club.

Allied Carnival.

Though it is not designed to be, and will not be, a society affair, the Allied Carnival, that will be held at the Shrine Auditorium the 16th and 17th inst., is expected to attract as large a turnout of the smart set as ever attended an entertainment of the sort in Los Angeles. The list of patronesses is notable and every person included therein has stated she will actually take part in the carnival—will be present to dance and make merry. Moreover, nounced they are preparing a number of divertissements in which they will take part. The proceeds will go for the relief of the destitute in France, Belgium and England.

Mrs. William A. Clark, Jr., as president of the affair, is to be assisted by Mrs. William A. Edwards (who was Frances Taft, sister of the ex-President of the United States) vice-president for the French Red Cross; Mrs. Willoughby Rodman for the Belgian Red Cross and Mrs. G. A. Potts for the British Red Cross. Dancing on both Friday and Saturday nights will be one of the main features of the carnival, yet will not take precedence over many of the attractions, which are now being arranged by various committees in which society women and theatrical experts are allied.

The afternoon of the 17th there will be a children's matinee with a programme, particularly thought out for the little ones.

Tickets will soon be on sale at the Alexandria, the Van Nuys Hotel and the carnival headquarters, No. 154 North Spring street.

Complimented.

Miss Madaline Souden, fiancee of Christy Walsh, was an honor guest at a bridge tea yesterday afternoon when Miss Lois E. Salisbury of Menlo avenue dispensed hospitality—an honor shared by Miss Marion Wilson of New York, who is the house guest of her cousin, Mrs. Owen Humphreys Churchill.

To accentuate the dominant coloring of the rose dining-room, the hostess used pink Enchantress carnations amid yellow acacia, while the dining-room had the note of spring, with its violet and jonquil floral decoration.

These two honorees are coming in for much social attention. Mrs. Will Kemper gave a bridge for Miss Wilson last week, and Miss Estelle A. Cecilia Cross will make Miss Souden her honored guest at a breakfast at the Alexandria and theater party the 10th inst.

For the Younger Set.

At the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Thompson, of No. 671 Norton avenue, Miss Fanny Thompson will give a dancing party tomorrow night, having asked some seventy-five of the younger set.

On Ocean Voyage.

Mr and Mrs. Stanley W. Smith (Florence Clark) are enjoying a cruise to the Hawaiian Islands. Mrs. Smith is recovering from recent illness and the ocean voyage was taken partly to benefit her health.

For a Visitor.

Adding their nodded welcome to the greetings of the guests, stately white lilies and pink Enchantress carnations lent their beauty at a party given Thursday night by Mrs. J. D. Hurd of the Rampart, in honor of Mrs. Nellie McDaniel of Denver, who by reason of annual visits to Southern California is widely acquainted here.

Monte Carlo whist was played and later supper was served, each table holding a center of contrasting flowers in pink, white, blue and yellow And dancing came as a merry climax.

Mrs. W. C. Cheney, Mrs. H. S. Jones, Mrs. G. E. Morrill and Mrs. H. E. Riner assisted the hostess.

Bidden were Messrs. and Mmes. S. H. Allen, S. T. Alton, N. E. Branch, J. M. Burgner, E. Cline, F. B. Close, W. C. Cheney, C. S. Easton, A. F. Godin, L. B. Goodrich, H. S. Harrison, C. Huber, H. S. Fowler, F. F. Freeman, T. T. Greaves, C. V. Merrick, Morgan, E. Pickard and S. O. Vandemarck; Miss Margaret Burgner, Miss Georgie Post, Miss Grace Moore; Messrs. W. B. Dace, E. H. Heck, Hobbie, Charles E. Kendall, W. E. Lady, W. Mann, J. Pickard, and H. Severson.

At Howell Terrace.

Mrs. L. F. Mellor of the Howell Terrace apartments, assisted by Mmes. Volney S. Beardsley, C. C. Crippen, Joseph Black, G. M. Hammond, Shuman Jones, R. E. Wood and Mary Alexander, entertained with auction bridge and dancing Friday evening. After the buffet supper, the entire company formed into quadrille and cotillion sets, with only a sprinkling of modern dances on the programme. Mrs. Harry Robb Hooper and Volney S. Beardsley made high scores at the card tables.

Chicago "Deb" Coming.

Miss Louise Geraghty and her mother, Mrs. Joseph Hunter Geraghty, held their final at home of the season in Chicago last Monday afternoon, preparatory to leaving for Southern California to remain until spring. Miss Geraghty has been among the widely feted of the debutantes of the present winter. She made her formal debut New Year's Day.

Birthday Celebration.

For the sixteenth birthday of Miss Rhea Weisberger, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Weisberger, entertained Sunday evening at their home on Central avenue. Dancing followed a programme given by Julius Medway, Miss Anna Hammerman and Harry Hammerman. Among the guests were Misses [illegible] Love, Anna Walters, Essie Immerman, May Gold, Alice Utah, Anna Hammerman, Amelia Harris, Pearl Mendlen, Bessie Rosenblatt, Rae Cooper, Ethel Pollock, Anita Calcott, Libbie Volk, Mamie Margolis, Fannie Steinberg, Ida Steinberg, Dorothy Weisberger and Esther Wainer, and Messrs. Ben Williams, Ben Schwartz, Morris Schwartz, Solly Goldberg, Herman Wainer Herman Rosenblum, Isadore Bernson, Reuben Wainer, Cal Wainer, Harry Lederman, Harry Hammerman, Ben Tobinsky, Emil Klein, Louis Spevack, Abe Weisberger, Manuel Cherman Myron Weisberger and Julius Medway.

Young Girl Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Norton of Compton announce the engagement of their daughter, Alma Lillian, to John Edward Hare, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. William Hare of Redding.

Miss Norton has been attending Mills College, Oakland, and is a member of the Studio Club. Her fiance is a senior at California, where he is an instructor in physiology, and is a Sigma Pi.

The wedding is to be solemnized at Glenwood Mission Inn, Riverside, March 17—the anniversary of Miss Norton's parents' marriage.

To Marry Angeleno.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Huntington of No. 2245 Knapp street, St. Paul, Minn., formally announce the engagement of their daughter, Florence Adora, to Dr. J. Frank Frieson of Los Angeles. The wedding will be in the spring.

Montecito's Fashionable Colony.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius K. G. Billings have arrived in California from New York and have taken the handsome residence of Mrs. William Miller Graham on Booth's Point, known as Bellosguardo. They may become permanent residents of the State. Mr. Billings has shipped his race horses and it is possible he will start a large stock farm and build at Montecito. He is a former president of the People's Gas, Light & Coke Company of New York and Chicago, having succeeded his father, Albert M. Billings.

Many of Los Angeles' smart set are planning to go to Santa Barbara for the presentation of "The Atonement," a coming attraction at the Country Playhouse. Most of the cast are familiar to the amateur players, in particular, of this city.

"Selicia," Dora Peritos, will be played by Miss Eva Marius-Paigne, a talented young woman from Australia, who is said to possess decided dramatic ability: Jerome Hogan, who will be Juan Flores, the lover, is an eastern amateur, of whom much is expected; Joel Remington Fithian, the Country Playhouse comedian, will furnish the laughs as Francisco Garcia, a wealthy and boastful ranchero.

The aunts, Rebecca and Lorena Escharen, will be Mrs. Louis H. Long and Delfina Dibblee. Bert Harmer, a Santa Barbaran and son of Alex Harmer, the famous artist, will be Chashunca, the Indian poet, while Kari Schmidt, is cast as his companion, Wanda. Miss Lillian Albertson will appear as Senora Venaga, and Frederic H. Randall will have the strong character of Padre Padilla.

The English sailor, who is a runaway, will be left in the hands of Dr. Alexander C. Soper. There will be a number of lesser characters, such as vaqueros, padres and dons, with special music and chants. Miss Ynez Dibblee will dance the famous La Cachuca, and a special feature will be a real barbecue, for which the back of the stage will be thrown open. Mrs. William Miller Graham is supervising the making of the special scenery, in which she is being assisted by her son, Earl Graham.

Going Abroad.

Count and Countess del Valle de Salazar, who have been much entertained in Los Angeles during the former's stay as Spanish Consul at San Francisco—more than five years—will leave soon for their former home in Spain, to stay six months.

Bridge Luncheon.

In an effective color scheme of yellow and violet Mrs. Walter Edward Overell entertained at her home in Manhattan place, members of her bridge club at 1 o'clock luncheon Friday. For the centerpiece of the T-shaped table, a huge basket tied in fluffy lavender tulle held an arrangement of violets and marigolds. At either end were candelabra with lavender candles, while yellow and violet doilies accentuate the motif, executed to the minutest detail. Crochet baskets, tied alternately in yellow and violet ribbons, held the nuts and the place cards were hand-painted girls dressed in the last word of sport attire, violet and yellow in turn. Mrs. Louise Junsquist, mother of the hostess, and Mrs. Anna E. Overell, her mother-in-law, graced the heads of the table, where covers were marked for Mmes. Matthew Finehout, Julian Van Deusen, Earl Rogers, Frederick K. Junquist, E. S. Siegmund, Manuel Jungquist, Frank B. Ranger, William Lane and E. V. Sherwood, and the Misses Cora Boettcher, Juanieta Lane, Willie McClelland, Florence and Clara Wilson, and Smith, and the hostess.

Informal.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Zadeck, with their two daughters, Misses Beatrice and Leona Zadeck, were guests of Maj. Wham (retired) of Sidney, Australia, for dinner at the Victor Hugo, followed by a theater party at the Majestic Thursday evening. Maj. Wham is touring the States.

Gifts in a Moving Van.

In compliment to Miss Ethel Hayward, who will become the bride of Oliva Normandin, the 8th inst., Miss Gail Hagle entertained twenty girl friends at [illegible] Strafford avenue, South Pasadena, the past week. The rooms were decorated with hanging baskets of ferns and Chinese lilies. The affair was an art shower for Miss Hayward and Miss Hagle had created a little white moving van to haul the gifts to the bride-elect. Her games were unique and appropriate of the occasion. Afterwards a buffet supper was served.

For Former Neighbors.

Mrs. William Hayward of No. 1817 East Fourth street, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Lilley, entertained at luncheon last Wednesday a number of friends who were formerly residents of Williams, Ariz. At table were Mrs. Martin Buggien, Miss Edna Buggien, Mrs. R. B. Burns, Mrs. George Barney, Mrs. W. L. Clarke, Mrs. Dermont, Mrs. George Wharton, Miss Lulu Wharton, Mrs. J. Salzman, Mrs. Dr. Mellick, Dr. Louise Long Miss Mary Howard, Mrs. Starkman and Mrs. Alice Pickerell.

To Welcome Miss Del Valle.

At the cabaret supper to be given by Charles Heston Peirson in honor of Miss Lucretia del Valle, at the Hotel Melrose, Tuesday evening, Miss Jessica Burnham Peirson of Altadena, a cousin of the host, will receive, assisted by Mrs. Pierre Letchworth of Covina, also a cousin of Mr. Peirson; Mrs. William A. Brackenridge, Mrs. Edwin W. R. Lawrence, Mrs. Lavinia Griffin Graham, Mrs. David Chambers McCan and Mrs. Elizabeth Rutherford Meyer of Pasadena.

An interesting programme is being arranged by Mrs. George Kellogg Bretherton, assisted by Sir Quirino Pellicciotti, Miss Ann Mellon and Mrs. Jaime Overton. Miss Gladys Bromley will be seen in dances, as will also Juan and Juanita, star dancers of the Mission Play.

For Portland.

Miss Aurora Leigh Armstrong left Monday noon on the Beaver for Portland, Or., where she will be the guest of relatives and friends for a few months. Miss Armstrong will pay a short visit to friends at Stanford University on her way north.

For Elaborate Ball.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the annual Oriental Ball of the Sierra Madre Club, which has been announced by the Entertainment Committee for the evening of the 17th inst.

San Francisco's famous Chinatown and Los Angeles are already being scoured by the more enterprising members and their ladies for bizarre and unusual costumes, while the club has sent a committee north to secure ornate trappings and tapestries with which to decorate the club-rooms.

An oriental dinner, with the famous dishes of China, Japan, India and the South Sea Islands, will be served at 6:30 o'clock, before the formal dancing. The aromatic wines and highly colored cordials of the Far East will be in evidence to supplement the piquant sauces made from tropic and semi-tropic herbs.

There will be a great variety of colorful costumes, judging from the announcements made by those who have already made reservations for large parties. The hula-hula maiden will waltz with the beturbaned Hindu, while the Chinese mandarin will be seen fox trotting with a Zulu belle, and the Japanese Ambassador with a snake dancer of Benares.

The Oriental Ball has always been the big event of the year of the Sierra Madre Club.

Sunday Evening at Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Ulrich (Mme. Emilie Cole-Ulrich) entertained a circle of friends at their bungalow residence last Sunday evening, in honor of Gareth Hughes, the Everyman of the Ordynski production, and Charles Wakefield Cadman, composer and musician who now calls Los Angeles his home.

The host and hostess and many of the guests contributed to an interestingly enjoyable entertainment, in the music room that has just been done over in old rose and gold. Wadsworth Harris, formerly with Modjeska, Mr. Selby and Mr. Allys gave readings and Mr. Cadman played selection from his "Thunderbird" suite.

Newlyweds Back.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shults, who were married in this city, January 16, have returned from their honeymoon trip and will be at home after March 1 at No. 2275 Cambridge street.

Luncheon and Cards.

With her decorations suggesting the Valentine season, Mrs. L. L. Vogel of No. 2271 Cambridge street entertained twenty ladies at luncheon, Friday afternoon, with bridge as the pastime. The guests are members of the Westlake Bridge Club.

Dutch Supper.

Because it was the Kaiser's birthday as well as her own, Mrs. L. L. Krebs, always an ingenious hostess, chose to celebrate with a Dutch supper and cabaret dance at the Krebs home in Sierra Madre last Saturday night. Many guests motored out from Los Angeles.

The guests were greeted by Hans, a German lad, who had plenty of room to grow, and from the time of their welcome until good-bys were said, one merriment followed another in quick succession. Supper was served in the rathskeller downstairs, where there was dancing and stories and song, and later, in the music-room, some well-known musicians and composers gave added pleasure with their contributions—Briel, Mme. Constance Balfour, Homer Grunn, Freida Peycke, L. J. Selby and Allys, the painter, being among the number.

The rooms, always attractive, were decked in California poppies, marigolds and roses. Dr. and Mrs. Krebs were assisted by their daughter, Miss Beth, attired as a Turkish girl.

Dinner for Southerner.

Mrs. Charles Eastman of Nashville, Tenn., who has been the houseguest of Mrs. W. D. Woolwine on Lake street since her recent stay with Mrs. C. Q. Stanton, was again complimented Friday night when the Woolwines had dinner guests. The table was decked in spring flowers.

Rose Luncheon.

Mrs. Charles Hillerman of Culver City, was hostess at a rose luncheon at Christopher's Tuesday afternoon, when she entertained a coterie of young matrons who meet for games of five hundred. A mound of My Maryland roses centered the table, while rose cups held favors. Hand-limned cards adorned with roses marked covers for the hostess, her sister, Miss Maud Hillerman, who assisted her; Mrs. C. Cates, Mrs. A. Magill, Mrs. J. Valentine, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. H. Megary, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. S. Barnes, Mrs. H. Benjamin, Mrs. Keene and Mrs. Kiebler.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, bring back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Over sixty attended the February dance on Friday evening of the Oneonta Dancing Club, an exclusive and very jolly social organization of local society folk. The Wednesday Afternoon Bridge Club was entertained this week by Mrs. Samuel Macdonald of Huntington drive. Those enjoying the games of "auction" included Mrs. C. H. Bingham, Mrs. W. L. Thomas, Mrs. S. S. Curtis, Mrs. Harry Towers, Mrs. M. Thompson, Mrs. John Otto, Mrs. O. A. Blattner, Mrs. Frank Beardslee, Mrs. A. L. Shellhorn and Mrs. Robert Thompson.

Mrs. Vera Briggs, prominent musically, was married Tuesday evening to Robert Austin of this city at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. May Haskins, No. 1857 Mission street.

Curtis Bingham, George Powell, Elliott Hine, Warren Hoak, Dana Dunton, Francis North, Marion Raab, James McEniry, Albert Gates and Clinton Woodruff.

Social affairs galore are to be a feature of the month. The Women's Club, particularly, will be a very busy place during the coming thirty days. Affairs planned for the Rollins-street clubhouse are: February 9, the Huntington Hall girls will present "She Stoops to Conquer;" February 10, Mrs. Howard Kelley will entertain with a dancing party, honoring her daughter, Miss Grace; February 15 and 17 respectively, a card party and a dance are scheduled, and on February 19 Mrs. Edward Reilly of Electric avenue will entertain with a bridge afternoon.

Seyler, Miss Clara Bosbyshell, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Thomas, Mrs. Emma Porter Makinson, Ettore Campana of the Buesno Aires Opera Company and Frank Kurtz.

Hedges, Miss Bess Stuart and Miss Alby Easton.

Alkali Makes Soap Bad for Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in; about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

How to Judge a Woman By Her Hair

There is real common sense in just noticing whether the hair is well kept to judge of a woman's neatness, or good taste. If you are one of the few who try to make the most of your hair, remember that it is not advisable to wash the hair with any cleanser made for all purposes, but always use some good preparation made expressly for shampooing. You can enjoy the very best by getting some canthrox from your druggist. Dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. Dandruff, excess oil, and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its lustre and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth.

A New, Harmless Way to Banish Hairy Growths

(Beauty Topics)

By following this suggestion any woman can, in the privacy of her own home, remove every trace of hair or fuzz from her face: With powdered delatone and water mix enough paste to cover the not wanted hairs; apply and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and wash the skin. This method is unfailing, harmless and quick in results, but care should be employed to get the genuine delatone.

A Medical Mongoos

We can manufacture poisons within our own bodies which are as deadly as a snake's venom.

The liver acts as a guard over our well-being, sifting out the cinders and ashes from the general circulation. A blockade in the intestines piles a heavy burden upon the liver. If the intestines are choked or clogged up, the circulation of the blood becomes poisoned, the system becomes loaded with toxic waste and we suffer from auto-intoxication or ptomaine poisoning. Something is wrong with the liver, and we suffer from headache, yellow-coated tongue, bad taste in mouth, nausea, or gas, acid dyspepsia, languor, debility, skin or eyes yellow, the water is scant and high colored, containing "brick-dust" deposits and bile pigments. At such times one should drink plenty of water between meals, and a pint of hot water before breakfast, and occasionally take a pleasant laxative, Such a one is made of the May-apple, leaves of aloe and root of Jalap, first extracted and put in ready-to-use form by Dr. Pierce nearly fifty years ago, and sold by druggists as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Do not take mineral oils or so-called "Russian Oil," for the experiments by R. F. McDonald have shown, as lately reported in a government publication of the U. S. Public Health Service, that mineral oil may act as an irritant that produces gastro-intestinal disturbances and that it may cause tissue proliferation, simulating cancer.

The next important organ to be reckoned with is the kidneys. Kidney disease carries away a large percentage of our people. What can the ordinary person do to properly balance bodily health? The answer is not easy, but I advise everybody to eat less meat, eat coarse, plain food, with plenty of vegetables, drink plenty of water between meals, and take an uric acid solvent, such as Anuric (double strength,) before meals for awhile. Anuric can be obtained at almost any drug store.

A pleasant birthday dinner party was given at the ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. James Bowlin in honor of the birthday of Mr. Bowlin. Place cards were decorated with hand-painted blue ribbons. The guest of honor was presented with a neat candy box, in which reposed lettuce, turnips, carrots and radishes, as he has always expressed a fondness for these. Guests were Dick Baugh, Mrs. Leacie Rogers, Nina, Elsie and Rubie Meadows, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bowlin, Messrs. Kenner and Kelly, Miss Johnson, Miss Sylvia Erskine and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Flynn.

Mrs. O. F. Simpson gave a dinner Saturday in excellent appointments, guests being Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Royer, Rev. Fred Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Simpson.

Word has reached here that Huber Jenkins, former Imperial young man, was married to Miss Keim of Redlands, last Wednesday. The bride is a sister of Mr. E. G. Keim.

Alhambra.

THE most notable of the week's social happenings was the concert on Thursday evening when the talented musicians, Miss Frieda Peycke and Axel Simonsen, were heard at the Woman's Club House. A large and fashionably-gowned audience was present to greet the artists whose skill was displayed in a programme of merit. Miss Peycke's numbers were planologues and her charm of manner and pleasing personality added much to her interpretation of the dainty bits of verse. Mr. Simonsen was received as an old friend, Alhambrans having had the pleasure of hearing him in concert on several similar occasions. Miss Lorna Gregg was accompanist for the evening.

The attractive home of Mrs. Kate F. Chase, 320 North Garfield, was the scene of a happy event on Tuesday, when members of Chapter N, P.E.O., observed founders day. The forty-eighth anniversary of the largest secret organization in the world independent of men's organizations, was celebrated with a historical and dramatic programme. The versatility and ability of the members were shown in features given by Mmes. Lawyer, Barber, Goldthwaite, Sexton, Goudge, Wilson, Jewett and Miss Jean Collins.

Pink carnations and smilax combined to furnish an artistic decorative motif for the luncheon presided over on Saturday by Miss Alta Hooker, honoring a group of her college friends. A five-course repast was served. The hand-painted place cards, in dainty design, rested on tiny easels and the sandwiches and cakes were palette-shaped. Luncheon covers were laid for the Misses Marian Graves, and Mable Trueblood, Pasadena; Miss May Jones, Whittier; Miss Mary Bandy, Escondido; Miss Marian Leaver, Los Angeles; Miss Helen Knecht, Redlands; Miss Stella Lambert, Covina; Miss Jessie Hilton, Hilton, Nev.; Miss Rena Cranston, Santa Ana; Miss Minnie Krick, Long Beach; Miss Ava Adams, El Centro.

Amid a graceful arrangement of acacia sprays that decorated the living and music-rooms of her home, Mrs. C. H. Goodson entertained with a musical during the past week. A pleasing programme was given under direction of Mrs. S. P. Jewett and Mrs. Adelaide Trowbridge. Thirty-five guests were present.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Becknatel of Monrovia and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence V. Graham were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Jewett on Thursday evening. The concert at the Woman's Club House was enjoyed later in the evening.

The Wednesday Afternoon Club programme was especially delightful the past week when Mrs. Inez Townsend Tribit, well-known illustrator, gave an original charcoal talk wherein she told something of the funnies she draws for the kiddies and the verses that accompany them.

On Monday evening fifty members of Holy Trinity Sunday-school were pleasantly entertained at the rectory by Mrs. W. J. Currer and Rev. and Mrs. M. S. Runkle. Games were followed by tempting refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. William Meade Orr entertained Thursday afternoon at their beautiful Vega-street home, honoring Mrs. Horton Singer. Society was delighted to meet this charming visitor to the Southland, who is a guest in the Orr home, and who, during the sojourn, will be the recipient of many social courtesies.

Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Sturges of No. 816 North Marguerita entertained a few of their friends at their home, Saturday evening, with cards. Later, refreshments were passed. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Riselay, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spieker, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Gifford, Mrs. F. L. Moore, Mrs. A. C. Gilruth, Miss Mary Bates and Mr. and Mrs. Will Geach of Columbus, O.

Anaheim.

MISS ETTA SCHLINDLER was very pleasantly surprised recently when sixteen of her friends gathered to spend the evening with her to celebrate her birthday anniversary. Progressive whist was the main pastime and the prizes were won by Miss Etta Schlindler, Miss Lydia Heying, Ray Adams and Art Little. At the close of the evening's amusements delicious refreshments were served, and the guests wished her many more happy birthdays. Miss Schlindler was the recipient of many pretty gifts.

Mrs. Fred Wilcox gave a surprise party Thursday evening for her husband at their home west of town in honor of their twentieth wedding anniversary. The evening was spent in playing progressive whist. At midnight a delicious lunch was enjoyed by those present, who were Mr. and Mrs. John Rockwell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trudeau, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Criss and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilcox.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kroeger of North Raymond and Chapman avenues entertained a few intimate friends from Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Herman of this city at dinner recently. The home was tastefully decorated with peach blossoms, and violets and favors were in keeping with the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. John Van Paten of No. 624 East Adele street entertained some friends Sunday afternoon at a 5 o'clock luncheon. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fairburn, son Clyde and daughter Clarissa, Mr. and Mrs. Hunker and son Earlen of Olive, Mr. and Mrs. H. Schryer

Divorce Yourself from Pain and Kidney Disorder

(By Dr. L. C. Babcock.)

Simple methods are usually the most effective ones when treating any disorder of the human system. The mere drinking of a cup of hot water each morning, plenty of pure water all day, and a little Anuric (double strength) before every meal has been found the most effective means of overcoming kidney trouble. Death would occur if the kidneys did not work day and night in separating poisons and uric acid from the blood.

The danger signals are backache, depressions, aches, pains, heaviness, drowsiness, irritability, headaches, chilliness, rheumatic twinges, swollen joints, gout.

It is such a simple matter to step into your favorite drug store and obtain Anuric, which was first discovered by Dr. Pierce, of the Surgical Institute, Buffalo. Every druggist dispenses it.

All people in America and especially those who are past middle age are prone to eat too much meat and in consequence deposit uric acid (uratic salts) in their tissues and joints. They often suffer from twinges of rheumatism or lumbago, sometimes from gout, swollen hands or feet. Such people are not always able to exercise sufficiently in the outdoor air in order to sweat freely and excrete impurities through the skin. Anuric will overcome such conditions as rheumatism, dropsical swellings, cold extremities, scalding and burning urine and sleeplessness due to constant need of getting out of bed at night, by carrying off the uric acid poison.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of the fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

Have you a symmetrically cut diamond?

Do you realize the high degree of importance that the cutting of a diamond bears to its worth?

Do you know that the stone of ideal dimensions — the stone of absolute symmetry — must be cut to a depth two-thirds below the girdle and one-third above?

Nordlinger diamonds are selected by long experienced gem experts. They are chosen specifically for their perfect cutting, their scintillating fire, coloring and purity.

Nordlinger diamonds are invariably extraordinary values. They are purchased at the lowest prices that CASH will command.

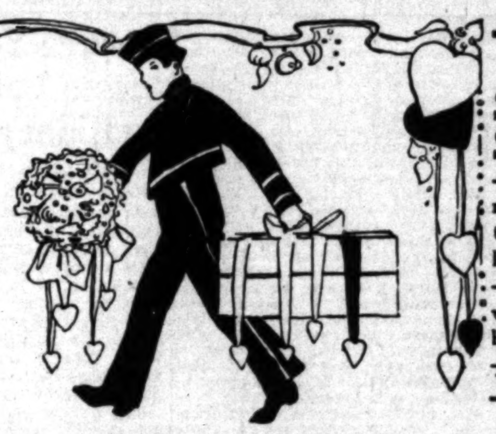
Just here from Kayser Chamoisette gloves at 79c

—They look the part of gloves for which you'd ordinarily pay very much more than 79c. Suede finished gloves. All-white with three rows of embroidering on backs!
—Buy the new gloves you need for the new season Monday. Main Floor—Jacoby's.

Jacoby Bros. February

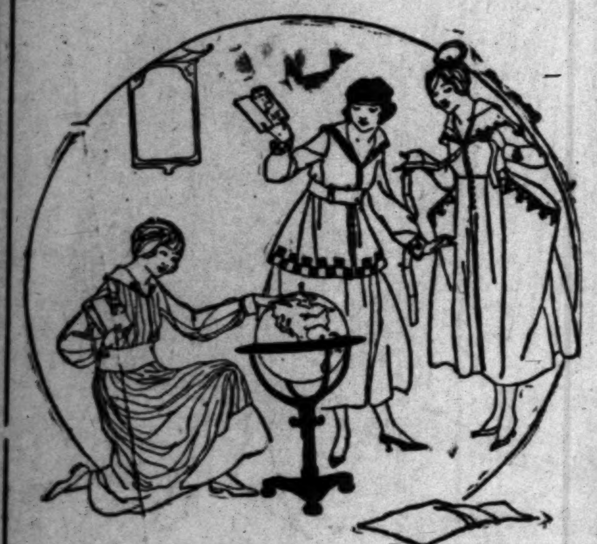


Extraordinary! Silk Boot Stockings at 45c

—They've been given this remarkably low price because they're slightly imperfect—at least so the manufacturers' said—though we can find but a very few hurts. They come in black, in white and in colors.
—Sale, Main Floor—Jacoby's.

New things are all through the store

There's all the charm of spring in these delightful new FROCKS!



And their low prices, $17.50 to $25, will still further charm those who delight in buying economically!

—There are more different styles in this spring's fashion book than any season has had in a long, long while — there are some with long, straight lines—and there are some with all the puffs and furbelows that any heart could wish for!
—The materials are confined chiefly to Georgettes, taffetas and crepe de chines though there are a great many sport models in the showing, too!
—Visit the 3rd floor on Monday—you'll be intensely interested in the style exposition!—

Suits—new as can be—$25 to $35

—Most of them will be shown for the first time on Monday—none of them have been in the house over a few days!
—There are tailored models as you would expect and there are sport models that will win a world of admiration, but, no doubt, the most comment will be excited by the new Middy Suits of jersey! These may be worn with or without a separate blouse!
—The suit colors embrace many that were never thought of a few months ago!

Coats have many new features

—Not only are the colors much more vivid and entrancing than ever before, but the styles are more snappy and "different" as can be!—Collars and cuffs are decidedly novel in cut—in many cases they're of tones forming a brilliant contrast to the coat itself. The new colors include Kelly, mustard, olive, rust, gray, Hague, magenta, rose and champagne. Prices range from $17.50 to $35.00.

—See them on the 3rd floor—Jacoby's.

Kayser sends Union suits 50c

—They're of fine lisles made with band tops and lace or tight knees. Values very much greater than you'd expect under present-day conditions. Extra sizes are 65c.

Silk topped suits $1.29

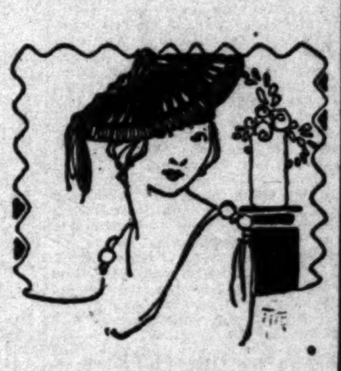
—These, too, are Kayser's and they'll win instant favor at $1.29. Pink and white lisles with glove silk tops, low neck, sleeveless styles with tight knees. Main floor—Jacoby's.

For girls Scent ball necklaces 10c

—10c is but a fraction of their worth—fine gold filled chains with enamel scent balls.
Main floor—Jacoby's.

$7.50 HATS that look the part of much costlier ones!

You know we sell millinery on the same basis as other merchandise—the selling prices are based on the cost, not on the "looks" of the article!



—And so it is that these hats are $7.50, in spite of the fact that they have the style and the appearance of higher priced ones!
—Sport hats are the most in evidence in this Monday showing, but there are plenty of very becoming models in combinations of crepe and straw and of satin and straw with ribbons—fancies and Oriental novelties (no doubt money can be termed a novelty then,) used as decoratives!
—One of the windows holds some of these today! 2nd floor—Jacoby's.

There'll be "Ohs!" and "Ahs!" aplenty over these SPORT SILKS at $1.45

—They resemble the old poplins of seasons past, but so wonderfully have the designers and the dyers done their work that no one would ever think of calling them poplins!
—They're SPORT SILKS!

—All full yard wide and in 12 strikingly different patterns—patterns that will make scissors and needles twitch to form them into suits and frocks for you and others who love the unusual—

Fancy SILKS that are full of charm $1.39

—Satins and taffetas all in one—yes and novelties too in such stripes and plaids as you little thought any but the French could create. All are 36 inches wide.

We've Georgette in over 40 shades $1.95

—If you've an "off shade" silk that you're planning on making up with Georgette you'll be glad to know about the remarkable color range that we have ready.

Chiffon taffeta in new Spring shades $1.50

—It's quite a feather in our cap to have such a splendid 36-inch taffeta as this to sell at $1.50—and it's a bigger feather to have them in the bright, cheery new colorings, which have been blended for Spring! The darker shades for street wear are here as well! 2nd floor, Jacoby's.

Come see the wonderful LACES in our windows today at $1.25 yd.

—We ask you to come see them because it is an absolute impossibility to write about them so that you could picture them as they are!
—12 to 36-inch Novelty Laces—
—And they're such laces as $1.25 hasn't bought in a month of blue moons! Why, ordinarily we'd jump at an opportunity to buy them from the market at more than $1.25!
—It was one of those rare happenings in the merchandise world that brought them to us so much underprice! On Monday you'll have an opportunity to share our good fortune!
—Some are embroidered in silver and gold effects—some are done in pastel colorings and still others carry appliqued embellishments.
—There are whites, blacks and colors! Several matched sets are included! Sale, Main Floor—Jacoby's.

French serge that is 44 in. wide and worth more than $1.50

—It's just out of its wrappings—but it was ordered months ago when woolens were selling for much less than they are now—that's why it's $1.50 instead of ever so much more!
—All wool? To be sure it is and it's in just the right weight to make up into the new frocks for spring! The colors include two shades of wine—4 shades of green—3 shades of brown—4 shades of gray and 3 shades of blue!—
2nd floor—Jacoby's.

You'll want at least a dozen 81x90 seamless sheets at 75c

—They're such splendid values we wouldn't be at all surprised to see them go out by the hundreds! They're bleached snow white—finished with 3 and 1-inch hems.

81x99 in. Sheets 95c
Extra heavy sheets, fully bleached, no filling.

Pillow Cases at 15c

You'll like these New breakfast sets $1.95

They're of splendid Amoskeag ginghams—the sun and tub-proof kind, you know—in attractive new styles. Some are prettily embroidered and button trimmed; others are bound with white or contrasting color. Balcony, Jacoby's.

Warm as can be! Flannelette nighties $1

They're values very much out of the ordinary—these outing flannel night dresses. They're cut generously long and full. Several collar styles. Balcony, Jacoby's.

Decorative novelties for bulb bowls

At 19c to 35c. There are brilliantly colored bees, butterflies and birds of china and of glass. Main Floor, Jacoby's.

Cut glass nappies $1.00

Several styles in the highly favored buzz and pineapple designs—and there are a few cut glass vases at $1.00, too, that will cause no end of a stir. Just 36 pieces in all. Main Floor, Jacoby's.

To sell much underprice 40-in. georgette crepes 79c

They've been given this low price because some of them have tiny imperfections, and because the color range includes only American Beauty, light blue, lavender, blue and green. Main Floor, Jacoby's.

And there are new COTTONS that will make the silks jealous!

—On the second floor, is just such a showing of cotton weaves as you expect ordinarily on the 1st of May! There are a number of reasons why they're so early this year, but the chief one is because we thought you'd be glad to see them and buy them early and have them all made up, ready to wear when summer comes stealing around the corner!
—Here we mention just a few—others are in one of our windows today!

—40 in. paisley voiles in a galaxy of exquisite colorings and patterns—priced 60c yd.

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women, who immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood, causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so limestone phosphate and hot water act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is vastly more important to bathe on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful prescription. One man says after trying it: "I was almost blind, could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eye two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

THE losing members in a recent series of auction bridge games entertained the winning members of the Buenas Amigas Club at the home of Mrs. G. H. Center, No. 683 East Columbia street, Tuesday afternoon. It was a Valentine party with appointments in keeping with the spirit of St. Valentine's Day. Mrs. Fuller is a sister of Mr. Mosher, and both of them are children of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Mosher, who reside at No. 734 West Center street.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Starr of No. 375 East Third street celebrated their wedding anniversary on Sunday. Mrs. Starr made her home unusually beautiful by effective arrangements of potted plants and pink blossoms. There was a wedding cake with hearts atop of it, and the pink and green color scheme was even observed in the menu. A party of intimate friends were invited to share the pleasure of the occasion. Games an dmusic were enjoyed after the dinner. Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Burdette of Long Beach motored over to attend the little celebration.

Mrs. Fred A. Fleming gave a delightful party at No. 177 East Holt avenue Sunday evening in celebration of the birthday of her husband, Fred Fleming, and his twin brother, Frank Fleming. The brothers knew nothing of the arrangements until they returned from an afternoon auto trip with John Manley and found their house filled with friends who were ready for the birthday dinner. The dining-room was prettily decorated with ferns and acacias, and there was a big birthday cake in the center of the table. The men received quite a number of elegant birthday gifts. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fleming, Mrs. Margaret Fleming, Mrs. Kate Fleming, Miss Mamie Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. John Manley, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lemery, Mrs. Mary Hayes and Richard Houlihan and Margaret Fleming.

Johnson, No. 457 East San Francisco street, Wednesday afternoon. Van Nuys.

THE Van Nuys Woman's Club met in regular session on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Miss Ella M. Goodhue on East C street. The programme for the afternoon was arranged by Miss Edna Newby, chairman of the dramatic section. Mrs. Ida S. Bailey gave a delightful account of her recent eastern trip to Minneapolis and various other points. The date of the corner-stone laying was set for February 22, which is the sixth anniversary of the birth of Van Nuys. A committee of five was appointed to arrange the details of the programme. Reports show that the new building is progressing in fine shape, and will be ready for occupancy within a short time.

The Pioneer Club entertained at cards on Friday evening at Whitson Hall. The affair was one of the most enjoyable meetings of the season and was attended by a host of members and invited guests. Five hundred and bridge was the order of the evening and the prizes were awarded to Mr. J. W. McBride, Dr. Smart, Mrs. George Scott and Miss Ruth Dickey. A bantam rooster and a Duroc piggie were the gentlemen's prizes, and were hidden away in hollowed pumpkins. The ladies were the recipients of two handsome vases. The committee in charge was Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Blodgett, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Kellogg, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Merrick and Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Steere.

The mission circle of the Baptist Church met with Mrs. F. N. Baker on Thursday afternoon. A splendid programme was given by the delegates, who attended the "Southern California Baptists' Convention." The Van Nuys circle is but one year old and has attained an enviable record in that time.

Mrs. Daniel W. Staley of East G street is visiting her daughter and friends in Bakersfield this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark C. Sutton entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Roebuck at a wild goose dinner on Tuesday evening. Mr. Sutton had just returned from a hunting trip in the San Joaquin Valley, where he and his companions killed a nice string.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lindeman of Redwood Falls, Minn., are the house guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Lindeman of North Sherman way. The Lindemans are touring California and coast States.

Mrs. Ida S. Bailey, prominent society and club woman of Van Nuys, returned to her home on West E street on Saturday, after an extended visit with relatives and friends in Minnesota and Iowa. She states that she is glad to be back in sunny California, and that we should have no complaint to offer in regard to cool temperatures, as she experienced cold of 30 below zero in Minneapolis.

Maj. A. J. Pickerell and family of Phoenix, Ariz., arrived in Van Nuys Saturday and are now living in their magnificent home on South Sherman way. Maj. Pickerell is one of the most prominent mining men of the country. He purchased his home here in the early days of the development, at which time it was just a barley field. The estate now consists of a large body of acreage which has been developed into an elegant suburban home. An enormous sum of money was expended in building the home, in rare shrubs and trees and in planting the finest varieties of orchard trees. The home and the surrounding grounds is one of the show places of the valley.

A very enjoyable time was had at the American Pleasure Club dance held on Saturday evening at Whitson Hall. Thirty couples were in attendance from all valley points. The hall was attractively decorated for the occasion, and Howell's Orchestra from Los Angeles furnished music for the evening.

Rialto.

THE annual Chamber of Commerce banquet, held Tuesday evening at the Crowder's Hall, was the enthralling event of the season. All arrangements for the affair were in charge of the Woman's Club, and the elaborate decorations and delicious menu surpassed any of previous years. Choosing the effective color motif of the coming national event, "San Bernardino Orange Show," the decorations were stunning and gorgeous. Five long tables adorned with horns of plenty, pouring out their wealth of golden fruit emphasized the citrus supremacy of Rialto. Combined with the fruit was a graceful arrangement of ferns, while favors of orange-shell baskets, filled with nuts and raisins, added to the attractively laid tables. Nearly two hundred were seated.

Two happy surprise parties have occurred during the current week. A number of intimate friends of Mrs. G. W. Gregory were invited by her husband to assist him in celebrating the birthday anniversary Friday evening. Many pretty gifts were left by the guests to mark the milestones of the honoree.

The silver anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hellerman was the cause of forty friends who came self-invited to spend Monday evening at their home in Orange street. A dainty luncheon was served at the close of the pleasant informal evening. Beautiful pieces of silver were presented the couple.

More than fifty members and friends of the Loyal Workers' Sunday-school class of the Methodist Episcopal Church enjoyed the annual banquet which was held at the church parlors Monday evening. The long tables were placed in a square, plates laid only on the outer side. The inner square was canopied with garlands of smilax, in the center of which hung a large brown basket filled with rich red carnations. Favors were fragrant narcissus and violets. Thomas McKeown, teacher of the class, was toastmaster. Rev. Samuel H. Hughes of Colton was the chosen speaker of the evening, and short talks of interest were given given by Rev. I. A. Engle, pastor; C. E. Tibbot, superintendent of the Sunday-school, and J. A. Weech, class president.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Reisinger entertained with a beautifully appointed dinner party at their pretty home Monday evening as a courtesy to the birthday anniversary of their niece, Miss Winnifred Litts. The dining-room and table presented a lovely picture in their graceful decorations of greenery and white carnations. Twelve pretty pink and white place cards bore the names of the guests.

A score of young married people were entertained with a delightfully informal evening of music by Mrs. Ed Slade Monday. The rooms were pretty in decorations of red carnations.

Complimenting her sister, Mrs. W. Sours, of Redlands, and house guest, Miss Russell of Arlington, Mrs. W. H. Wheeler entertained with a neighborhood thimble party. A delicious luncheon was served at the close of the pleasant affair.

Miss Estella Hickey of Iowa is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Engle, and Rev. Engle.

Mrs. D. M. Errant is entertaining her cousin, Joseph Wadleigh, of Herscher, Ill.

Mrs. J. N. Knoblaugh is entertaining her nephew, George C. Stamm, of Chicago.

McKittrick.

COMMITTEES have been appointed by Yokut Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men, to make arrangements for a celebration of the natal anniversary of George Washington, to take the form of a dance at O'Meara's Hall, on the evening of February 22.

The tastefully-decorated hall of the Aoco Club, on the Associated lease at Reward, was well filled one evening this week, the occasion being the masquerade dance given by the club for the pleasure of members, their families and friends.

The members and friends of the Reward Club will enjoy a dance at Reward Hall on the evening of February 15, in commemoration of St. Valentine's Day. Extensive arrangements are in progress for the event, which promises to be an especially brilliant one.

PROTECT DIVA'S VOICE.

Only Request for Her Own Safety Made by Opera Singer.

Cecil M. DeMille, the Lasky Company director-general, spent two weeks in making tests of the burning scenes in "Joan the Woman," now at the Majestic Theater, in order to discover whether or not the smoke and flames would affect the golden voice of Geraldine Farrar, who is seen as Joan of Arc. The wood of the burning pyre was finally saturated with a solution, which prevented the diva's voice from being impaired should she inhale any of the smoke. That her voice be protected at this time was the only request for protection which Miss Farrar made throughout the entire taking of the picture. Everything else, even the hand-to-hand conflicts, she plunged into, regardless of injury.

CAMERA MAN OFF TO JUAREZ REGION.

Beverly H. Griffith of the Los Angeles Times Universal Animated Weekly staff left for El Paso last Wednesday with Charles Kingsbury, one of the expert cinematographers of the Universal Company for El Paso. He was ordered to the Texas city by H. O. Davis, vice-president of the Universal, immediately upon receipt of the news of the anti-American demonstrations in Juarez, which is directly across the bridge from El Paso. Griffith accompanied Gen. Pershing's expedition into Mexico some months ago, at which time he "shot" thousands of feet of film for the U's news pictorial.

OF ART AND ARTIST

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

Transmutation.

I said: "O Beauty, Beauty yet to be,
Where sleep thy faint beginnings?
On what sky
Shall one behold thy wings afar and shy?
What realm is thine by what unsounded sea?"

From out the dust my soul a murmur found:
"Thou treadest me, O Questioner! The flower
Abides below thy foot her fragrant hour,
And I shall weave my raiment of the ground."

From somber skies the softer tidings came:
"Of these gray mists the wind shall rear my throne,
In lands of sunset, where I wait alone,
And clasp the lilies of a fading flame."

From out a stagnant pool a whisper crept:
"Hidden am I. Thou seekest me in vain;
Yet shall I find the silvern veils of rain
And arch the rainbow when the day has wept."

And then her voice in wider music rang:
"In all that seems today most far from me
I slumber, till tomorrow's eyes shall see
The face thy harp of yestereven sang."
—[George Sterling, in Harper's.

Ella Buchanan, Sculptor.

All men who model in clay are not sculptors, even as all men who write verses are not poets. It is given to many to toy with the superficialities of the technics of art, and this may be why art has come to be almost universally regarded as of no greater worth than the plaything of an idle hour. You know the story of the young man who was asked if he could play the piano. "I don't know," said he. "I never tried."

The easy attitude of the dilettante does not belong to the artist, to whom art is that most urgent need of the human soul, the need of self-expression. Art is travail, with exceeding joy in the thing born. It has become a truism that an artist loves his statue, or picture, or poem as a mother loves the last and loveliest of her children. Now you know why the job of the art critic is often so deucedly uncomfortable. The artist in his studio may be likened to the lioness surrounded by her cubs. The pictures are perhaps decrepit monstrosities, the cubs not worth licking into shape, but—

All who model are not sculptors, for the jealous gods grant to few the joy of "imagining in clay and dreaming in bronze." Such a one, when so elected, is a true sculptor, strong to do and dare because breathed upon by the immortals, and keen of eye, sure of hand, fine of soul, for the same tremendous reason. Such a one, it seems to me, is Ella Buchanan, who was "raised" in Kansas, educated in art in Chicago, and who came to Southern California less than two years ago, to Los Angeles a year ago. She worked as a teacher as well as a student in the Art Institute.

Miss Buchanan's first work in California was the statue in bronze, larger than life, "The Desert Man," for the patio of the beautiful Barbara Worth Hotel at El Centro. A famous character of Imperial Valley, a true westerner, a man of six feet four inches in height, posed for this fine piece of plastic art. A replica of it was exposed for two years in the exposition at San Diego, and the small original model may be seen in the artist's studio at No. 927 Grand View street. This little model of "The Desert Man" attracted me at last year's exhibition of the Architectural Club, though I was even more taken with the charming and sympathetically-felt bust of a child, "Anna," in which the hand playing with a string of coral beads was modeled with mastery and in which the delineation of child nature was both simple and subtle, both strong and delicate.

Miss Buchanan springs unexpected and unlooked-for perfections upon us—beauties waiting round the corner, as it were—little touches of originality and genius. We feel, always, that she is an artist who thinks as consistently as she feels, that she is forever "dreaming in bronze." Sometimes her dreams are big with portent, as in that colossal little statuette group, "Driven from Eden," in which a shambling Adam, uncouth and prehistoric, leads an Eve whose heavy face expresses an unimagined woe. Sometimes "Queen Mab hath been with her," as when she executes such delicate and delightful fancies as her small study for a fountain, where a wooing frog, long-legged, pot-bellied, lackadaisical, holds a toadstool over his inamorata, a gauze-clad fairy, while the rain drips from its edge. Could a conceit for a garden fountain be prettier than that? And what a play of color might be utilized in it! Sometimes she is frankly grotesque, as in "The Soul Mate," whose satire is as keen as its humor is diverting.

Intensity of expression that yet is never caricature, may be indicated by the curve of a back, the bend of a neck, the forward sweep and swing of an arm. The inner torment of the figure in "The Ancient Soul of the Wretched Myrrah," which illustrates a line from Dante, is shown by the huddled body quite as much as by the ravished face. The passion of the fragment called "The Kiss" is felt, even though the woman has no body and we see no faces. This fragment, by the way, is a lovely statuette, as perfect in color as in conception. Miss Buchanan fears she can never repeat the color, if she should make a replica, for it was an "accidental inspiration."

When an idea comes to her, Miss Buchanan does not, as a rule, jot it down on paper, but seizes a bit of clay and models it rapidly into a tiny figure, placing this upon one of the big stones kept for the purpose. Thus the idea has its proper pedestal at once, and remains there in full view to await its appointed hour. I saw many of these "ideas," and some of them were by no means small ones. For instance, "The Altar of the Nations," perhaps three inches high, certainly not more, shows us a woman raising her hands aloft in wild despair above the body of a soldier thrown across a cannon placed on a huge grinning skull. Here we have the quality of Miss Buchanan's "imagining in clay." From such conceptions as these comes "dreaming in bronze."

One of these imaginings, one of these dreams, was recently sent to Utah as an entry for "The Mormon Battalion and Its Monument," to be erected at Salt Lake. Miss Buchanan's model, which was winnowed out with two others for the final from the works of Brahms, Tschaikowsky, Strauss, Paladhile, Saint-Saens and, as a closing group, American composers. John Stark Evans, a pupil of Rudolph Ganz, will accompany Miss Lee.

Mariska Aldrich at Ebell.

A programme of especial interest, in that it contains two groups of compositions by resident composers, will be presented by Mariska Aldrich, operatic soprano, tomorrow afternoon before the Ebell Club. Mme. Aldrich achieved quite a marked success at her recent appearance with the Symphony Orchestra as soloist. She sang prominent operatic roles at the Metropolitan in New York during her engagement there.

Following is her programme, local interest attaching especially to the songs by Carrie Jacobs-Bond and Mrs. Abby Norton Jamison: "Air de Lia" from "L'Enfant Prodigue" (Debussy,) "Bon Jour Suzon" (Pessard,) Mrs. Harmon D. Ryus at the piano; "Negro Death Song," "Banjo Song," "Mammy's Lullaby," "My Prayer" and "Violin Strings" (Jamison,) Mrs. Abbie Norton Jamison at the piano; "Cry of Rachael" (Salter,) "The Sleep that Flits on Baby's Eyes" (Carpenter,) "Love Me" (Rose O'Neill,) "Explanation" (Coleridge-Taylor,) Mrs. Ryus at the piano; "My Soul," "Compensation," "Haunting Memory" and "Play Make Believe" (Bond,) Mrs. Carrie Jacobs-Bond at the piano.

Matinee Musical.

The artist-pupils' programme before the Matinee Musical Club proved the source of much enjoyment to the members of that organization last Thursday afternoon. Miss Adelaide Wolcott manifested her possession of a lovely voice and excellent style. Eunice Landrum's piano numbers delighted her listeners. Miss Wolcott is a pupil of S. E. Briscoll and Oscar Saenger of New York, and Miss Landrum of Jode Anderson of this city.

Following was the programme: Aria from opera "I'Puritani" (Bellini,) "Cantique d'Amour" (Liszt,) "Fantaisie-Tarentelle" (Zinet,) "Barcarole" (Zullak,) "O Child, Why Dost Thou Leave Me?" (Handel,) "Come, Child, Beside Me" (Bleichmann,) "L'Ete" (Chaminade,) "Arabesque" and "Claire de Lune" (Debussy,) and Prelude in G minor (Rachmaninoff.)

At the club's meeting next Thursday Mrs. James Henry Ballagh, president, will give a reading of Tennyson's "Enoch Arden" with the musical setting of Richard Strauss to be played by Mrs. M. L. Botsford.

St. Cecilia Club.

Russian music will make up the programme to be given under the leadership of Mrs. Fred Bacon Reynard at the next meeting of the St. Cecilia Club. The following musicians will take part: Mrs. John W. Thayer, Mrs. Harry V. Baxter, Mrs. Charles Lick, Miss Mary Read, Mrs. Harry Ross, Mrs. Fred Bacon Reynard, Miss Margery Pickell, Mrs. Benjamin Bloser, Mrs. A. B. Perkey, Miss Mercedes Ciesielska, Miss Isabelle Isgrig, Miss Kie Christin and Miss Ida Selby. Selections will be from the works of Tschaikowsky, Arenzky, Rachmaninoff, Gretchaninow, Scriabine, Rimsky-Korsakow, Moussorgsky and Gabrilowitsch.

Timmer-Lott Recital.

The Timmner-Lott Trio will present two unusually pleasing works at their recital Thursday evening. One will be Haydn's Quartette, No. 65, in D major, and the other Dvorak's Quintette. The trio will have the assistance of George Benkert, violinist, and Richard Schlievin, viola player.

Last Historical Programme.

Ernest Douglas will present the last of his series of twelve historical recitals this evening at St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral. The programme will consist entirely of manuscript numbers by local composers, as follows: Prelude to American Fantasy (Jean de Chauvenet,) Scena Pastorale (Roland Diggle,) Anniversary March (Sibley G. Pease,) Allegretto Semplice (Morton F. Mason,) Gavotte (built on theme by Bach,) by Dr. Raymond B. Mixsell. The first, second and last numbers have been dedicated to Mr. Douglas.

Pupils' Recitals.

An exceedingly fine programme was given by the pupils of Will Garroway last Thursday evening at the Ebell Clubhouse. Difficult selections from the works of Chopin, Bach, Liszt, Cyril Scott, MacDowell, and others were rendered. The following pupils were heard: Miss Marguerite Hegyi, Gay Bushee, Miss Viola Hegyi, Miss Marion Rose, Miss Mary Campbell, Miss Doris Aiken and Miss Marguerite Bitter.

The first of a series of interesting recitals by pupils of Vernon Spencer and his assistants and associate teachers took place yesterday afternoon at the Vernon Spencer studios in the Majestic Theater Building. The enjoyable programme was rendered by Mrs. R. A. McKee, Miss Edith Miller, Miss Frances Bronson, Jane Elizabeth McKee, Miss Helen Dilley, Mrs. Halbert Thomas, Miss Blanche Reynolds, George Hodel, Miss Lucia Smith, Miss Edith Miller and Mrs. Halbert Thomas. In the several concertos played Mr. Spencer assisted at the second piano. Associate teachers whose pupils played included Mrs. Anna Etta Mayr, Mrs. R. A. McKee and Mrs. Katherine Trumbull.

Mrs. Mabelle Lewis Case presented a number of pupils in a delightful programme last Wednesday evening. Numbers by Chopin, Liszt, Mendelssohn, Rubinstein and others were included. The pupils were Ethel Blocklinger, Eunice Haskins, Alberta Cole, Molly Blumberg, Dorothy Eakin, Frances Smith and Katherine Noonan, the last four belonging to the preparatory class. Mrs. M. R. Norman, soprano, assisted in a group of songs by Mabelle Lewis Case, and Miss Irene Zeller in Japanese songs in costume.

Studio Programme.

A charming studio recital was given last Monday evening in the Gamut Club Building by Rose Hamer, a gifted vocal pupil of Mr. Theophilus Fitz. Miss Hamer has a very pleasing voice of coloratura type. She sang a bright group of selections.

Gounod Numbers.

Ray Hastings, organist of Temple Baptist Church, will play a special Gounod programme this evening at 7 o'clock.

RECIPE FOR SPEED.

Monogram Company Director Finds Doubling up on Same Story is Effective in the Shorty Hamilton Pictures.

That two directors and two companies, working simultaneously on the same story, can make a picture as well and better than one, is the belief of William H. Clifford, author and director-general of the Monogram Film Company, which is producing the Shorty Hamilton films for the Mutual programme.

Under the system which Clifford has put into operation at his studios the author writes the scripts with detailed direction. Two directors, Bob Gray and William E. Parsons, produce the pictures two at a time. While Gray is directing the scenes from one or two plays in which Shorty Hamilton appears, Parsons directs those scenes in which the services of the star are not required.

This system of doubling up on the stories and direction might not be adaptable in making all kinds of pictures, but with Clifford's company, which is required to supply one two-reel picture each week, it appears to work quite effectively. There are great advantages to the system by reason of the fact that in each picture there are from twenty to thirty scenes in which the star does not appear. Were the picture to be made by a single director long waits for part of the company would be occasioned. Not all efficiency methods are suitable for the movies, but in so far as having all of the company occupied and keeping up with releases, Clifford declares that working two directors at once on the same story is highly successful.

Typewriter Speed Secrets Told by the Mistress of the Keys

Margaret B. Owen
World's Champion Typist

In the many talks I have had with typists on my demonstrations, I have found, much to my regret, that a large majority of them are strangers to words. I mean by this, that, though it must be said with reluctance, most of the young people of America are not what could be called readers. They seem to be devoting more attention to the social side of life they do to literature. To the typist who wishes to be well informed that she will have a fair knowledge of almost anything that could be ted to her, it is necessary, particularly if she has not had the advantage of a good education, to read almost everything available. The newspapers come first, and the more she reads of them the better informed will find herself. Read something in addition to the headings on articles—the editorials.

READING THE NEWSPAPERS.

Business men tell me they often quote a popular word or phrase some author, or a sentence bearing on something which is being of in the papers, only to find the stenographer getting the dictation all wrong because she never read that particular quotation or article. Read newspapers and books to keep well informed and up-to-date.

In this, my seventh appearance before you as your teacher of typewriting, I am going to devote most of my talk to "Words." In my opinion will be of great value to you. I will lead the lesson toward the formation of vocabulary. Many of you who read this will not at first rly understand what I mean, for, unless you have made a particular y of the words that are most used in the business world, you would justified in thinking that they are as numerous as the sands of the . As you have now obtained your first position in a business office, will discover before long that the words you will be called upon transcribe will not number 500 at the most. Just think of it—only words that you will have to learn in order to become a first rate

FAMILIAR WORDS TO LEARN.

I am not going to publish the 500 words because it would take up too much space, but I feel that I must give you a list of 100 of the most occurring words in the English language. Here they are:

of	and	to	in
is	that	for	was on	by	be	at will	his	as	with
have	has	which	not this	are	were	an
they	had	all	but

new	said	so	into
now	only	why	them
what	before	many	until
can	may	these	being yesterday	house	day	long

car	during	people	through

These words were compiled by R. C. Eldridge of Niagara Falls, N. Y., there never was such an important compilation placed before the for practice work. If you would like to prove this, all that you have to do is to see how quickly you could make up sentences them.

Keep the list constantly at your elbow and make a study of every . Of course there are hundreds that you will have to use that are on this list, but these do not appear so frequently as the "One hundred ." These are just what you want at this time.

No matter what subject is before a class, repetition is the greatest in making them proficient. This is the reason, even though I have outlined the fingering, I intend now to picture it in another way.

Another Peace Proposal by Men of Churches Quickens Discussion; Seven Hundred Prominent Churchmen Outline a Possible Basis for Negotiations—Pacifists Approve this Plan—It Contains Interesting Echoes of Earlier and More Vigorous Statement of Principles—Is the Church Meddling with State?

WHILE the echoes of the protest against an inadequate peace, issued on New Year's by a group of sixty-nine eminent representatives of eleven denominations of churches, are still resounding over the land and throughout the world, another "message" concerning international peace has issued from New York by a larger group of churchmen. The is fundamentally different though apparently affected by, earlier document.

The two utterances, which avowedly seek to express or direct the thought of all members of Christian churches upon the important question of peace, are as distinct from each other as "why" from "how." The first was a "why" statement, setting forth why Christians may not be for "peace at any price," and why they put righteousness, truth, and loyalty above a cessation of conflict. The second is a "how" statement, confining itself to methods of settling the war and for concluding a permanent peace.

This obvious distinction, above all else, will quicken the discussion over the two deliverances, because many churchmen feel that the of the church is with the of things, and not with the . In other words, Christianity is in principles and not in . The reasons governing a war, or any other human activity, are the concern of religion, whose aim is to supply a mainspring of action. The manner in which principles of righteousness may be wrought out are the concern of governments and secular organizations. Broadly speaking, the province of the church is "why;" the of the state is "how."

SEVEN HUNDRED SIGNERS.

Recently the newspapers have attached as much seriousness to second pronouncement as to the first, for it has been rather generally ignored by them. Yet it is the of a month's diligent work, the energies and organization of such bodies as the Carnegie Church Peace Union, the Ginn Foundation, the Federal Council of Churches, and other bodies.

Bishop Greer presided at the original conference of forty men, held last week in December, at which message was drafted, and Bishop B. Wilson is chairman Conference Committee. The who has directed the actual work of securing signatures, is Dr. Sidney L. Gulick.

Seven hundred men and women, the stars of first magnitude religious firmament, have this "Message to Christians of from Christians in America" unlimited funds at command, the committee has to circulate the document generally, and to print it handsomely, and to mail it widely, thus in a measure the failure of the daily papers to publish it.

Whether 700 names add more weight than seventy to such a statement is to be questioned. It gives the paper the appearance of a general petition. It is known that many men, some of them of real eminence, wired and wrote, asking that their names be appended to the protest against an inadequate peace issued by a committee of six Philadelphia men, of which George Wharton Pepper was chairman. This was not done, the list being retained at sixty-nine men, all of whose signatures were secured within three days by the original informal committee, with neither organization nor money to back them.

The statement issued last week from New York is of such a general nature that almost any Christian could sign it. Its preamble insists only upon a "lasting peace upon the foundations of righteousness," so that the signers of the Philadelphia declaration could add their names to this one also. The three points that make up the body of the paper deal wholly with methods of settling the war and concluding peace, including an indorsement of a league of nations. The document follows in full:

WHAT CHURCHMEN SAY.

"At a time when the world is suffering the indescribable horrors of war, and when the possibility of peace by negotiation is being urged by various governments, we desire to take our open stand with those who labor for the establishment of lasting peace upon the foundations of righteousness, believing that responsibility for the welfare of humanity is inevadable and universal.

"First, we are convinced that any adequate guarantee of lasting peace involves the establishment of a league of nations, with provision for the limitation of armament, and we believe that the agreement to establish such a league of nations should accompany the offer or acceptance of any proposal for negotiation concerning the termination of the war.

"Second, we believe that the approach to a just peace makes necessary an agreement that the adjustment of territory and compensation be upon the basis of righteousness alone, with due regard for the rights of all nations, small and great, belligerent and neutral, and that all differences not otherwise adjustable should be referred for arbitration either to the Hague court or to some tribunal constituted for this particular purpose.

"Third, we believe that any adequate programme of negotiation in the interests of peace should further include the entire matter of relief, reconstruction and reconciliation in which the warring nations, the United States and other neutrals, shall engage for the common good.

"While we sign this statement without the authoritative action of the several bodies with which we are connected, we cherish the hope that it will be approved by a large proportion of those with whom in faith or practice we are associated, and we submit this deliberate expression of our attitude and principles to the prayerful consideration of our brethren in all nations, warring or neutral.

"Without assuming to advise in the world crisis which is upon us, we nevertheless declare our profound belief that the sincere proffer of negotiation upon such conditions as we have named, and the acceptance of such proffer in the same spirit, must inevitably inure to the immediate and lasting good of mankind, as also to the greater glory of God, and we pledge our support of every measure, proposed or adopted, looking definitely toward this end."

FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS FIRST.

Whether or not there is anything in the report that this declaration was at first meant to be a pacifist document, but was obliged to stiffen its tone after the appearance of the Philadelphia statement, the fact is indisputable that the signers are committed to the support of only a righteous peace. Bishop Wilson, the chairman of the committee in charge, declares: "Of course, those who have signed this message believe in a righteous peace. No other kind of peace can be discussed at all." But these experts in righteousness unfortunately refrain from any definition of what constitutes a "righteous peace" by the Christian standards.

The purchasing power behind The Times' circulation makes this paper the supreme selling force for merchants, brokers, agents and general tradesmen, and no advertiser can get his proportionate share of business without using its columns.

Screen.

be given at the Belasco Theater tomorrow. The story is that of a district attorney named Wilson who, when nominated for governor, refuses the support of a saloon owner and political boss named McCarthy. Although previously a total abstainer, when Wilson loses at the polls he takes to drink and is aided in his downward course by the wily McCarthy, who later persuades Wilson's wife to sue for divorce and to accept his (McCarthy's) "protection." Kate Wilson's mind becomes unbalanced from her troubles and, in a struggle, she kills McCarthy. Wilson returns just as this happens and is charged with the murder. Miss Michelena's work on the witness stand in the scenes that follow is said to be remarkable in its emotional appeal.

Palace.

In "Lost and Won," the attraction at the Palace beginning today, the distinguished Marie Doro is said to have one of the most interesting roles she has ever essayed. The story has to do with Cinders, a little newsgirl, who, on a bet, is made the ward of a wealthy stock broker, the latter wagering that he can change a newsgirl into a society belle within a year. The girl becomes a reporter on the paper which she formerly sold. When her benefactor is about to win the wager he is arrested for theft, and Cinders, by her cleverness, discovers the identity of the real thief and frees the man she loves and who has learned to love her.

The cast supporting Miss Doro is one of unusual excellence, including Elliott Dexter, Maym Kelso, Carl Stockdale, G. H. Geldert, Sydney Dean and Robert Gray.

Clune's Broadway.

"The Crab" with Frank Keenan and Thelma Salter in the stellar roles, is to be the attraction at Clune's Broadway, beginning today. The picture is said to be one of the most appealing ever produced, abounding in rich characterizations and strong in heart interest.

The story centers about a crabbed villager, who, at the death of his wife, is bereft of the one softening influence in his hard, stern life. Gradually the people come to fear and hate him. At this point there comes into his life a little homeless waif who finally succeeds in bringing him back to sanity and sweetness.

In addition to "The Crab" the programme includes a special film of educational value, showing the details of the silk industry, beginning with the tiny silk worm, picturing the forming of the chrysalis into the moth, as well as other steps toward providing milady with her silks and satins.

Superba.

Gladys Hulette, the bright little Thanhouser star, will appear at the Superba, beginning today, in a play, "Her New York," that is said to be something more than a play, so near is it to real life. This photo feature is said to be full of real-for-sure heart interest and those "homey" touches that all of us love. It does not rely on thrills, but rather emphasizes the fact that there's a great deal of good in every bad little boy and girl and in every man and woman, and that the good will assert itself if given half an opportunity.

Mrs. Vernon Castle will appear in the fourth episode of "Patria."

Symphony.

During the coming week "Threads of Fate," a story of love, labor and riches, starring the popular Viola Dana, will share headline honors at the Symphony with Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in "The Hidden Hand," the third thrilling episode of "The Great Secret." Miss Dana as Dorothea, the gift of God, is said to have a role giving her an opportunity to display in full the talent that has established her as one of the ablest stars of stage and screen. Since her appearance in spoken drama in the title role of "The Poor Little Rich Girl," Miss Dana, it is asserted, never had a part better suited to her charming personality.

Many of the scenes of "Threads of Fate" were taken in the famous coal mining district around Wilkes-barre, Pa., and they depict the life of the miners and their struggle with capital.

Woodley.

In a fascinating romance of an artist's model, Vivian Martin will be seen at the Woodley Theater, beginning tomorrow. The photoplay is "The Wax Model." Both the gay and the serious sides of the life of an artist's model are depicted in this interesting story. This story caused much comment upon its publication, and there is reason to believe that in its presentation on the screen it will prove even more fascinating. There are many phases of particular interest in this production, one of which is the showing of the actual wax models around which the story is built.

The charm of Miss Martin's personality and her gifts as an actress are enough to guarantee the picture as one worth seeing. In support of Miss Martin appear Thomas Holding, Helen Jerome Eddy and George Fisher.

Judges of the Farrar contest.

Grace Kingsley, Cecil B. de Mille, Sam Behrendt, who, with Hector Alliot, will decide which idea as to Geraldine Farrar's next great role wins the hundred-dollar prize. In all, fourteen prizes will be given for the best suggestions for Miss Farrar.

Advice Wanted.

SUGGEST CHARACTER FOR FARRAR; WIN $100 PRIZE.

SCORES of answers to the Geraldine Farrar contest arrived at the office of The Times yesterday and many of these will be printed from time to time as they arrive.

The details of the contest are such that anyone, young or old, has an equal chance of winning.

Cecil B. de Mille, director of the Lasky company and producer of the Geraldine Farrar photodrama, "Joan the Woman," now at the Majestic Theater, is desirous of learning the wishes of the theater-loving public regarding the sort of character that Miss Farrar shall portray in her next big picture. Miss Farrar will arrive in Los Angeles within a few weeks, and it is the hope of Mr. De Mille that the people of Los Angeles will enter heartily into this contest so that he may obtain a real idea of their desires.

To this end he is offering, through The Times, cash prizes for suggestions. The first prize is $100 in cash, the second $25; three prizes of $10 and nine fourth prizes of $5 each.

Conditions of the contest are as follows: Anyone is eligible. Make your selection of a character which you think Miss Farrar should present in her next picture. This character may be of fact or fiction; a historical character or a modern character. There are no restrictions other than that the character must be one that would lend itself to Miss Farrar's characteristics in a general way.

It may be obtained from history, encyclopedia, from books of fiction or the daily newspapers. It may be any character you have read about, thought about or seen, or one of your own imagination. All that is necessary is to select the character you believe Miss Farrar should portray and send in your selection to the Farrar Contest Editor of The Times. If possible, describe in your letter in not more than seventy-five words, why you believe the character would be a desirable one.

The contest will be necessarily limited as to time, and for that reason it is best to get your suggestion in as rapidly as possible.

Do not delay; as soon as you have reached your conclusion write your letter and mail it at once to the Farrar Contest Editor of The Times. Some of these letters will be printed during the contest. All will be turned over to the committee of judges for the award of the prizes. The award will be announced a few days after the contest closes and the prizes paid at once to the winners.

The committee of judges for the contest includes Cecil B. de Mille, Jeanie Macpherson, Grace Kingsley, Sam Behrendt and Hector Alliot.

Studio.

Fine Arts studio is in the midst of the production of what will prove to be a sort of painless travelogue. That is, he is starring Robert Harron in "A Young Gentleman of the Old School," a photoplay by Frank E. Woods, the scenes of which are being made in various large cities between here and New York. The list of cities includes El Paso, New Orleans, Atlanta, Washington, D. C., and New York. And Bobby just can't tell a story these days that doesn't begin: "Oh, by the way, when I was in——"

Others in the cast are Colleen Moore, who has the feminine lead; Sam de Grasse, Loyola O'Connor, Alma Reuben, Charles Lee, Wilbur Higby and Bert Hadley. Frank Urson is the camera man who had his outlook on life enlarged by the trip East.

Seena Owen Returns.

Seena Owen, one of the stars of "Intolerance," has returned to the Fine Arts studio and is being featured in a story by Frank E. Woods, manager of production.

Some Scrapper is Lucas.

Wilfred Lucas possesses an athletic figure which makes him an ideal character in the role of the Herculean Greek in the Triangle-Fine Arts drama, "A Love Sublime" (temporary title.) In this story Lucas's figure appeals to a well-known sculptress and she engages him to pose for her.

In the hospital scene of the photoplay the athletic Greek cleans up the hospital, including surgeons, interns and ambulances drivers. Lucas, who is really an athlete, who keeps himself in the pink of condition, started the fight when Director Browning told him to tear into the other players. Lucas did so, the result being one of the greatest free-for-all fracases that has ever been enacted before the camera.

Anti-wrist-watch Note.

And now it's Kenneth Harlan, lately leading dancer with Gertrude Hoffman and at present leading man with the Fine Arts, who has pawned his wrist watch and gone in for the real rough stuff when it comes to a scrap. In "Betsy's Burglar," a story by Frank Woods, Harlan is supposed to have a fight with three crooks, headed by Elmo Lincoln, the mighty man of valor in Griffith's "Intolerance." Lincoln tore into Harlan and Harlan tore into Lincoln. The outcome was a fight that would have made the famous Kilkenny cats turn green with envy.

Constance Talmadge is the star of the picture, with Joseph Singleton, Josephine Crowell, Clyde Hopkins, Hal Wilson and Kate Bruce supporting and Paul Powell directing.

Good Old Days Gone.

"Oh," sighed Eddie Dillon, Fine Arts director, ruefully, the other day, as he searched for and grabbed off some Indians among the extra men to appear in a picture which he is staging. "Griffith used to put on Indian pictures with Irishmen and Swedes, but we can't do it now."

Picture will be a Bear.

Take it from George Beban, noted Italian actor and star of the Morosco-Pallas forces, life in the motion-picture studios is not all beer and skittles, nor yet Dago red and risosto. Not only is Beban working by day under the direction of Donald Crisp in a promising feature, "The Marcelina Millions," but he is busy by night burning up all the midnight oil to be found in a thirty-two-candle-power Mazda writing his next picture play. As if this were not enough, it has now become Beban's painful and difficult duty to get acquainted with a bear which will be used in said picture.

He is not to become acquainted in just a formal sort of way, either, where you only leave a card, pass the time of day and depart before any casualties can occur. But it's to be a real, heort-to-heart acquaintance, where you explain what you do to your hair to make it that color and tell about your rows with your things-in-law and intimate matters like that. The bear will be Beban's pal in the picture, since the popular actor is to play the role of an Italian organ grinder with a trick Bruin as his principal meal ticket. The bear has already been rented and each day Beban is doing his best to make the great, rude creature his friend, so that not only will he display no active dislike to the actor, but will actually behave as if they had been friends for years. Beban says that so far the creature has offered no hypocritical hugs and promises it will be a good picture.

No Birth-control Film.

George McDaniel, who plays the role of an Indian chief in Robert W. Chambers's "The Hidden Children," which the Yorke-Metro company is producing, with Harold Lockwood and May Allison in the leading roles, met a friend the other day.

"What are you doing now, George?" inquired the friend.

"Playing a part in 'The Hidden Children,'" answered McDaniel, "and—"

"My Gawd!" interrupted the friend. "Another of those eugenic plays?"

Carnegie Medal Note.

Harold Lockwood, Metro star, has become a weather prophet. Recently May Allison saw him gazing at the sun through a piece of smoked glass. She asked him what it meant. He replied:

"I didn't want to give it away until I had made an extended study of a new theory. But seeing as it is you, I will tell. Recently I dug up a translation of a 'stone book' written by a Chaldean astronomer. It said bad weather conditions on earth were caused by spots on the sun. The philosopher believed huge insects lived on the orb of day, and that when they began crawling over its face they obscured its brilliancy and caused rain. We, of course, know that philosopher was bugs himself, and that the sunspots are caused by an upheaval in the sun. Nevertheless these upheavals do obscure the brilliancy of the sun—what? Certainly they do. Light a cigar and then jam a metal rod into the lighted part. Don't you decrease its brilliancy? Therefore, by watching the sun through smoked glasses every morning the observer can tell by the size of the spots whether it's going to rain. It's a great discovery—the greatest of the century."

And then Miss Allison all awe-stricken as she was, had to make a thoroughly feminine and therefore naturally entirely inadequate rejoinder. "But what," she asked timidly, "what will you do on cloudy days when you can't see the sun?"

Tally Books Winner.

T. L. Tally has just booked a film version of Chambers's "The Girl Phillipi" for his Broadway theater. Anita Stewart is the star and the picturization is said to be an elaborate one.

U to Go to China?

The Universal is contemplating establishing a studio in China, with Thomas H. Gubbins, well known as a Chinese interpreter, as well as a picture man, in charge.

"There is a tremendous field for native films," said Gubbins. "While the Chinese are great film fans and patrons of American films, they tell me they would much rather see their own people in their own native dramas, which, of course, is entirely natural. I believe Mr. Brodsky's is the only producing company in China at present.

"It is difficult to find Chinese who will act in pictures in this country, the reason being that the callings of the barber and the actor are on a par in that country, these two belonging to what the Chinese consider the lowest social stratum. Here the only Chinese we can get are those from the upper tongs, who are superior to the taunts of their fellow-countrymen, the latter fearing to make any comment as sudden and violent, but mysterious death might be the penalty."

Physical Culture Note.

The principal topic of conversation at Universal City among the actresses at the present time, appears to be the subject of maintaining the proper balance of flesh. Nellie Allen, Irene Hunt and Agnes Vernon of the Fast and Grow Fat Club are adding daily to their weight, while the Eat and Grow Thin organization, composed of Mary MacLaren, Betty Schade, Eileen Sedgwick and Miss Lewis appear to be keeping the demon flesh in leash by taking long walks daily.

Miss Schade, Miss MacLaren and Miss Sedgwick arise every morning at 5 o'clock and walk at least five miles before breakfast.

Lets Fame go Hang.

A few days ago Howard Crampton, one of the leading players at Universal City, was cast for a part which would require him to swim in the Pacific Ocean, a few miles from the big U studios. He declined and gave as an explanation the following painful facts:

Crampton played the part of Capt. Harding in the U production of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" the marine portion of which was filmed in the Bahamas. In one scene Crampton was supposed to swim from a boat to the shore although he cannot do a stroke. Finally the director arranged for a rope to be tied around the actor's body and which was to be held taut so as to keep him on the surface of the water. Everything was going beautifully when suddenly a big wave came along and tore the actor loose from the rope and he was dashed upon a coral reef.

The next thing the director saw was Capt. Harding running up and down the reef with his hands and arms in the air, shouting wildly, "Never again! Never again!" And he has kept his word.

Will Hunt in Barnyard.

"What did you get?" somebody at Universal City inquired of Millard K. Wilson, U actor, the other day, when Wilson returned from a hunting trip.

"Oh, I bagged a couple of Fords, a Studebaker and a Chalmers Six," answered Wilson nonchalantly. From which it may be judged that, as a nimrod, Wilson is a very good assistant chauffeur.

The facts are these. After having worked before the camera at Universal City for a number of days and even nights, Mr. Wilson was given a vacation, and went into the Sierra Madre Mountains to hunt. There were many others in the mountains at the same time who were unadvised of a sudden drop in the barometer. Before the hunters had an opportunity to get away a blizzard broke over the mountains and very soon the roads practically were impassable. Wilson placed the chains on his automobile and started.

Along the road he pulled four or five machines out of difficulties and then started again. He carried one man to a nearby station to obtain a doctor for his wife, who had been injured, and then brought three people to safety in his machine. Upon his return he was also able to direct parties of men who had gone into the mountains seeking people believed to be lost.

Wilson says a barnyard now looks good to him as a hunting ground.

Miss Weber's Back Fire.

"What's the matter here?" demanded one of the head U men, as he gazed into a set which had Dore's illustrations of Purgatory looking like a tea cosy corner in the Ritz. The set belonged to a story being filmed by Lois Weber, scenes of which were supposed to occur in the nether regions, and it being a cool morning, the temperature did not suggest punishment by excessive heat.

"That's it," answered Miss Weber. "You've heard of hell freezing over? That's what's happened to our set while we waited for props."

The head man turned away sadly.

Robinson Crusoe Stuff.

Frank Beal, who is producing "The Curse of Eve" for the Corona company, was victorious in a fierce battle, and incidentaly proved a good provider as well as director, when, with a well-directed shot he killed a huge wild hog which attacked him on Santa Cruz Island while he was filming scenes there last week.

Joe Roach, who wrote the scenario of the present story, declares he's going to write a serial entitled "Beal's Braveries."

Report Exaggerated.

Harry Pollard, while very busy on "The Devil's Assistant," fourth of the Margarita Fischer series of Mutual Star productions, takes the time to say that he wishes to deny in toto the malicious falsehood which ment out a couple of weeks ago concerning his pet Oldsmobile. In order to prove its falsity to the public at large, and to discredit the wretch who wrote the story, Harry arises to announce that he has had this car made up to look like an automobile, and furthermore, it is playing the part of an automobile in "The Devil's Assistant." Harry has had old "Snobs" washed, her mohair combed and well bandolined, has put belladonna in her eyes and had her toes manicured. Besides, he has put two of the powerful searchlights from the California Tower on her bulldog face, and had Jack Mower talk into the gasoline tank.

It must be admitted that the old car responded nobly to the treatment, and besides looking her part as the "snorting demon," she is playing the role assigned her with a credit which belies the story that she is only good as a mud-splasher.

Busted the Speedometer.

Monroe Salisbury of the Pollard Pictures Company, has at last been cured of the race-track habit, much to the gratification of his many friends. Monroe says he might play the ponies if they would move the track to some more peaceful hamlet than Tia Juana, Mex.

Salisbury was idling around the band stand at Tia Juana waiting for his favorite to come home when a love-crazed senorita ran'amuck with what the film actor says was a completely equipped arsenal.

While the only serious result from the young lady's endeavors was the death of the Mexican royal bandmaster, Monroe points out that many things might have happened. While Monroe does not admit it himself, eyewitnesses state that he started with the horses at the wire, at the first shot, and flew past them on the half after circling the track once, before he got his direction clear and left for San Diego. On the second shot, which dispatched its victim, Monroe was entering the city limits, and did not really know of the fatality until he read the morning papers.

Fingering Finery.

AMID THE SHOPS AND WITH THE SHOPPERS.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

Now is the time to buy:

Furs at reduced rates, for use this season and next. Furs, it is declared, will be much higher in price next year.

Furniture in one of the several sales which are in progress.

Lace for the coming craze of laces in dress during the impending season.

"I have observed," said Editha, as we sat snugged up in the Book Nook, looking at recent arrivals of fiction and philosophy, "that most reformers make it a point to reform the other fellow. Never, by any chance, do they pick upon a fault of their own to eliminate. I think reformers—the radical kind, I mean—are born with that 'bug' which develops into the disease defined sometimes as 'meddling,' when it breaks out beyond family lines; and in the family is just plain 'bossing.' It matters little what it is they reform, just so THEY are the ones to start it. It is a kind of egomania. Those who must be in the lime-light in order to be happy, do not care who or what is burned to create that lime-light. They are like the fussy mother who told her small boy's nurse 'to go and see what Johnnie was doing and tell him to stop.'"

"Yes," said I, "and the same applies to many who are so anxious to have our country go to war. They want the other fellow to be the target. Mostly, you will observe, the valid warriors are in some way precluded from taking any active part, but are willing to sacrifice some other man."

With which semi-colon, tactful Miss [illegible] observing that we had a listener, called attention to the newest book, a lovely piece of bindery, with a Druid path in green and gold lettering throughout, fitting well with the delightful stories of the Emerald Isle. As we had met the author, we were particularly charmed to see the first copy of the forthcoming book—a master-piece of storying as well as book making and print.

Wishy Washy?

If you wish washy corduroy, "now is the time to buy;" for they have it in every color and shade, and at a less price than usual, in that "come-of-age" sale, at the big Broadway store where—ah, yes! You know.

Buy Fur.

The wisdom means fur buying now, while furs are less than they have been, and if we may believe predictions as to la mode, less than they will be next season, when fashion will decree that everything appertaining to the wardrobe shall be furred. Sales at the big furriers are in progress now.

Pegs?

It has been predicted that we shall be again peg-topped; or in other words, that the modish silhouette is to be similar to that of hobble days. The hobble, it is promised, will not this time appear. Let us wish devoutly—

Being Purplish.

"I never saw a purple cow, nor ever wished to see"—but there's no telling if purple continues to overspread the landscape—or rather the clothescape—what we may see by spring. Hats, coats, frocks, gowns, suits, bags, even shoes and stockings have all turned purple and the new silks for summer wear are the most adorable of purples! I always loved the color! It is like some delicious thing to eat and like hearing music—at least it seems so to me.

Purple and Gold.

All that's needed is "fine linen" for milady's spring array to make it truly regal. The purple and gold is here, in fullest measure. Witness the new sports silks—plaided combinations, in those two delightful colors and hats of the same materials or in ribbonry of the two colors, which so well harmonize.

Come of Age.

The twenty-first anniversary of that big Broadway store is an event so happy that it will celebrate by giving presents to the public—the presents being less high living cost. In other words—bargains, in every department of the great house, which has become during those twenty years and one almost a city in itself.

New Buttons.

First you buy the buttons and then you buy the dress or coat—or at least you might, so important a part of clothes have buttons become. The new ones, seen yesterday at that big store on lower Broadway, are the biggest ever and are in exquisite shades to match the coloring of the season's goods. Purples, blues and rose shades, and even big plaids in mixed colorings, dark and light, are there for outside dress; while for blouses the daintiest of creations in small, odd shapes are centered with golden or silver emblems, like hieroglyphs.

Overhead Expense.

Thus might we name the newest blouses, for nearly all go on over our heads. Slipovers are a result of the smock fad. Some of the latest, which go under the belt skirt, have wee aprons attached in front—a sort of remnant of the peplum, made from lace or fine embroidery. The waist line is so very lost that but few garments make any attempt to define it—blouses least of all.

Monkeying with Fringe.

Not slangy in the least! I'm not convicted, as you thought at first; for I am speaking of the new monkey fringe. Not a fringe of monkeys, but one of monkey fur. In fact, so great is the craze for fringe that any long-haired fur, monkey or even skunky, is again revived for trimming around tunics and upon the edges of skirts and sleeves.

Up Her Sleeve.

In awed tones, please, mention sleeves, for they are dictators of the mode. "As her sleeves, so is she," might properly be said of the new dress. Sleeves are becoming complicated to the point of fussiness in some new models. I saw one which appertained to a cuff fully a yard in squareness—the cuff, I mean; and other are so wrinkled—so mousquetaired—they require nearly as much material as to make a skirt.

Kalogrammed Shoes.

If you would be ultra smart you will kalogram your shoes. Or rather you will have them kalogrammed by that clever girl in that big store on lower Broadway—she who has silhouetted for many months before a silhouette screen, and who looks for all the world like a pretty silhouette herself. But to return to the tops of shoes—if it be the tops which you would kalogram. The colors may match the spots upon your khaki kool, or any other that you choose. If the vamps are black and the tops in white the scheme may be carried into the kalogram. Well, by now you see the possibilities of shoe bedeckment which the kalogram affords.

Strange Friendships.

What d'ye think? Sports patterns and sports colorings have broken into the world of fashionable silks! Or still more startling, they have associated themselves with silk voiles. These sporty films have just arrived at—where else do you suppose than that reliable big store where silks are always 'pon honor? Silks and silkens are there first, always; and always, too, the very best in quality. The new sport voiles will be used as blouses to wear with khaki kools and for entire frocks. Thus does the sports world—in clothes—rout everything before it, taking all by storm—or by right of beauty.

Color of the Cinema

[illegible] Herbert, has a score for The Fall of a Nation, while in the production of Carmen with Farrar, the music was taken from Bizet's score of the opera.

"The composer of the future should turn his attention to the cinema if he wants to make himself famous. He may write sonatas, and good ones, but if he will be heard, he should write for pictures. The form of music to be desired for pictures allows the freedom so dear to the modern composer. There is no need for the music to be hushed for the dialogue, as is the case with music incidental to a play. Music for pictures should not be an accompaniment to the picture; it should be an integral part of the whole structure; and it should not be purely photographic music, such as a crash with the fist on the piano when somebody in the picture falls down stairs. Of course, there are some situations which occur in pictures that could only be treated musically by an artist of the first rank. What possible music could be written, for example, during a picturization of Ibsen's "Ghosts?" Or, in fact, for almost anything of Ibsen, Shaw, Brieux, Pinero or any one of that school of drama?

"Of course, a good drama often makes a bad picture, and music decidedly has no place in the sort of thing I refer to, while it is indubitably true that music has a very ostensible place in pictures. Great composers [illegible] have declined to write for pictures; they rather like it. Mendelssohn did it, and even Beethoven, to say nothing of a host of less consequential men. The trouble about music for pictures is this: music is an art, and film pictures are not. There is no art in a motion picture. It may be beautiful or spectacular, or even (more's the pity) educating, but it's never art. Even if great artists write for the cinema, it is not art. There is D'Annunzio's "Cabiria," for example. That dramatist has written plays and books of great value, but his picture was not. The movie is not art, but cleverness; it is supercleverness; it is the triumph plus mechanical contrivance.

"There are reasons why motion pictures cannot be good art; the mere imperfections of photography, at its best, are enough to turn the artist away. A man in the foreground of a picture, has, for example, a valet in the rear who is half the man's size; all figures in the foreground are life size, and those in the rear are miniatures. The essence of photography is the very opposite to the essence of drama, which is action. It is not the looking at wonderful pictures which takes us to a film show, it is the thrill—the least lofty of all emotions to which we react. The mind does not need to be active at a picture show; in fact, the less it acts the greater the thrill, and the more unexpected. There is no more art in Mrs. Vernon Castle's picture, now playing, than there is in any penny-dreadful, and the things which holds us are a desire for a glimpse of a much-talked-of person and the thrill of watching to see whether or not she will make the crossing ahead of the train.

The most satisfying reminiscence of a visit to the Universal studios is the assurance it gives of the development of the film drama in the direction of wholesomeness and sanity and away from the morbid. The things that brighten the mind instead of depressing it—these are the things the Universal is striving for and producing. The stalking horses of murder and suicide and depravity are not stalking there. The skies are blue and the atmosphere is not lurid. There are genuine approaches to both art and nature, although the melodrama is still commanding and pervasive—even in the cafeteria and soda fountain, where painted millionaires and frescoed grand dukes sit on stools and munch real sandwiches or trifle with genuine beefsteaks.

A MATRIMONIAL PROBLEM.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

SHE is 33 years old and the mother of ten children. There will soon be another. Her man is a hard-working soul who is supporting them to the best of his ability. They live in a pitiful little shack at San Gabriel, but she was doing her maternal duty amazingly. I went to see them on Monday—an unexpected visitor, who found five of the babies at home, two little girls in the vicinity of 6 years old doing the family laundry, and making a good game of it. The other children were at school, and all were clothed and fed and in their right mind.

But——

Up till a year ago she was only "a common-law wife." They had omitted to pay a license and stand before a clerk to make their official marriage vows. So the "social-welfare" people discovered the crime and stepped in. They managed to convince the little mother that she was leading an immoral life. They held a court-martial, and father very reluctantly and resentfully became husband before the law. He has been resentful ever since. A bogey has entered the little household.

An immoral life! Ten children, hard work, poverty, but cheerfulness, duty well done under incredible handicaps, and decency to the best of their modest ability. An immoral life, forsooth!

And now the little mother has vast unshed tears in her eyes, and father feels that he stands convicted of an incomprehensible crime! He cannot take it out on society, so he is taking it out on the family, especially on mother. She represents the living evidence against him. He almost hates her now, for her existence and the ten babies put him in the wrong when he was not cognizant of doing any but his duty.

They are not educated people, of course, but they are intelligent. And there was family life, family cohesion, family loyalty. Yes, even religion.

It is one of those sordid, pitiful little tragedies that upsets all our smug traditions of righteousness. They were leading an immoral life. But the sparkling society dame, married at a brilliant and costly function, who, nevertheless, has not the slightest intention of becoming a mother, is an accredited member of society. She conformed to the requirements of the law.

There is such a fine line between prostitution and matrimony these days—so fine that it is invisible to the eye. We often need our strongest legal spectacles to appreciate the subtle distinction.

Can it be possible that a just God would frown upon that generously-maternal mother and smile upon the society dame? The world does, obviously, but is the world always right?

Those people who live in crowded shacks of incredible discomfort, men and women sleeping and living without privacy or dignity of any kind—what do they know of morals? It is a merciful thing if their sensibilities are a little callous; it is a merciful thing if the consciousness of their degradation is a little dull. But even they have their own standards of loyalty and decency. They do the best according to the conditions in which it has pleased fate to place them. Their immoralities are at least of the sincere, straightforward order; they do not bring polished and luxurious civilization to aid them in their—irresponsibilities. We, who have had our traditions, our decent upbringing, our education, our opportunities, our little dignities, our rights, cannot judge these submerged ones by our standards. But the social-welfare people do. And they have wrecked what sweetness there was in one home by their arbitrary decision. They have inoculated the virus of pretentious civilization into the jungle without providing the necessary environment, the possibility of maintaining the necessary standards. They have tried to graft orchids into weeds—and then gaze with contumely upon the bastard flower. They cannot see why the orchid should not flower benignly on the dung-heap, but should turn into an evil-smelling plant of unlovely growth. They are aghast that that little San Gabriel shack, nicely inoculated with the morals of comfortable society, has not been transformed into a bower of love and respectability by their efforts. It was a good, healthy, useful weed, and now it is neither good for God nor man.

And they meant so well, those welfare people. They were so virtuous in their stupidity. Of course, they must have been right—all the principles of the law and religion are with them, and yet——

But, of course, that little, hard-working mother of ten children was leading an immoral life, and the childless, affluent dame who sold her body for social position and wealth is leading a moral one. We are quite comfortably decided upon that point.

There is really no more to be said about it.

LIKE WESTERN PLAYS.

Also Vampire Dramas at Sing Sing Prison.

Thomas H. Ince was the recipient last week of a letter from George W. Thompson, chairman of the Entertainment Committee of the Mutual Welfare League of Sing Sing prison, in which the writer expresses the appreciation of the league for the opportunity of witnessing a performance of the Triangle Kay Bee drama, "Truthful Tulliver," in which William S. Hart is the star.

"It was the best and most complete western production we have seen," declares Thompson. "There certainly was a kick in it when 'Tulliver' went in the back way of the dance hall and roped Doyle and his partner, dragging them through. You ought to have heard the roar out of the 1400 men here. I never saw them get so excited. May we have another of these western pictures for this Saturday? 'The Return of Draw Egan,' or 'The Devil's Double,' or any other good western drama will serve. If you find none of this sort available, please send us a good vampire picture, featuring Louise Glaum."

"Preacher" Monkeys.

[Indianapolis News:] The author of the "History of Brazil" tells of a species of monkey called "preachers." Every morning and evening these monkeys assemble in the woods. One takes a higher position than the rest and makes a signal with his forepaw. At this signal the others sit round him and listen. When they are all seated he begins to utter a series of sounds. When he stops these cries he makes another signal with his paw, and the others cry out until he makes a third signal, on which they become silent again. This author, Mr. Margrove, asserts that he was a witness to these preachings.

THE PRESS

CONDUCTED BY GORDON RAY YOUNG.

POETS THAT WON THE MUSE NAMED BY MR. BRAITHWAITE.

Result of the Annual Sifting of Versifiers Given in the New Anthology of Magazine Verse—Compiler is Disappointedly Timid This Year and Fails to Name "The Best," but Includes Many Poems of Rare Merit, Particularly by Nancy Byrd Turner and Louis Untermeyer—Some Liter Scandal in the Preface.

CURMUDGEONS only discourage poets. The unfeeling rascals judge the printed word and not the swell and rise of passion, or the spritely emotion that commonly enough is drowned in the ink pot.

The printed word, the feeble chiming rhymes, or the zigzag typography symbolic of the intoxicating passion, are often but the inarticulate and cryptic symbols of what the poet wanted to say. Everybody "feels" things inexpressible. This is nearly always due to unfamiliarity with a book of some dimensions by a man named Webster; but for an unexplainable reason these attacks of "feeling" manifest themselves usually in the writing of verse.

There's a Lorelei lure a-top Parnassus that drags people to it. But some people manipulate the printed word better than others. These are called the "geniuses"—though some moralists, who presumably have inside information, say that God will judge us by our purpose, not by our success. But even the presumption of critics has boundaries, limitations. They seldom judge poetry or anything else by what it might have been if the writer of it has succeeded.

William Stanley Braithwaite annually collects the successful into an "Anthology of Magazine Verse," the present volume covering 1916 (Laurence J. Gomme, New York.) In some respects it is one of the important books of the year, every year. It represents a shifting of values, a literary sieve by which the consequential are taken from the sandbank—each grain of it, of course, representing a poem written during the year.

That Mr. Braithwaite cannot agree with everybody is no fault of his own. Judged by his purpose and not his success, he averages up around 99 per cent. The presence of Ezra Pound on earth lowers Mr. Braithwaite's percentage. He doesn't like Ezra Pound's verse. We do not blame him. If he did not like Tagore's we might even love him. He reports a bit of cheerful literary scandal thus: "The collected poems of Pound has so little interest for the American public that they find it difficult to obtain an American publisher." And more grammatically he reports the death of an eccentric poetical magazine, "Others;" which Mr. Braithwaite says was largely supported by Mr. Pound's "disciples," who regard him as "their idol and master." He also reports that the influence of "Poetry: A Magazine of Verse" has "waned" and that it, too, is "the instrument of Ezra Pound's radicalism."

That is about all of the scandal in his foreword; and after the manner of scandal it has a touch of venom. Mr. Braithwaite never got out in the open and condemned "Others," he has never crossed swords with the brilliant editor of "Poetry: A Magazine of Verse," and he sneers at Mr. Pound for inability to find a publisher instead of whacking him over the head for writing the stuff he does.

We probably have an "esthetic" dislike for "Poetry" and Mr. Pound that exceeds Mr. Braithwaite's. Mr. Pound, we are convinced, is a charlatan, a motleyed peddler of bunk; but "Poetry" is a magazine of ideals. Harriet Munroe has, we would say, done more to encourage poets than Mr. Braithwaite; and she is too good a fighter for some people, who haven't a prejudice against being disagreed with, to wish misfortune upon—though she does take Mr. Pound seriously.

Mr. Braithwaite sadly disappoints us this year by not saying which was the "best" poem or the "best" book of poems. The divination that enabled him in the past to declare the "best" is too precious a gift to be suppressed because unbelievers have scoffed and ridiculed. He has surprisingly developed a florid timidity in discussing the "Fifteen Important Columns of Poems Published in 1916." Olive Tilford Dargan's "The Cycle's Rim" "comes near to being a masterpiece;" Conrad Aiken's "The Jig of Forslin" has "these elements of modernity which bring one face to face with humanity;" Adelaide Crapsey's "Verse" "has all the evidence of that extraordinary quality we call genius;" Louis V. Ledoux's "The Story of Eleusis" makes one feel "the consciousness of its architectonic values, the sense of a monumental mood embodied in the fitting materials of speech;" Edgar Lee Masters's "Songs and Satires" has "every differentiating quality symbolizing the cynical, satiric, ironic, pathetic, inexplicable paradox of soul and body;" Tagore's "Fruit Gathering" is a message from the "mystic, which gave a new sense of life and eternity to the English-speaking world." The one place that Mr. Braithwaite's well-nigh irrepressible and highly miraculous power of detecting the "best" crops out is in the comment on Edwin Arlington Robinson's "The Man Against the Sky," for we find that "this volume contains the greatest poem ever written on Shakespeare."

But we repeat that Mr. Braithwaite's Anthology is one of the valuable books of the year. His selections are not always, or even largely, those we, for instance, would have made. But his taste is fortunately catholic. He includes representative poems. In other words, he really edits an anthology and gives a degree of permanency to work which at its worst is worth notice. We have a suspicion that some of the shorter poems slipped in because they fit—a suspicion that extends also to the magazines that make a specialty of poetic tail-pieces.

Among the poems that particularly attract our attention is Nancy Byrd Turner's "Twelve Good Men and True" (reprinted on this page.) It is rather intense and cosmic in its scope; but it hits, and it has not the hysteria of Ruth Mitchell Comfort's "Night Court," which was one of the notable social poems of 1915. The ironic phrase—"and they want their tea"—in the last line weakens it as an American poem, and suggests English jurymen. But it is an excellent indictment of the jury system and a dramatic poem of fine quality as well.

"Eve Speaks," by Louis Untermeyer, is also distinctive, very much so. It is one of the big pieces of verse of the past year; and Mr. Untermeyer has attained a poise, without losing a bit of the defiance that was absent two or three years ago from his book of verse, "Challenge." Incidentally Mr. Untermeyer has a poem in the current number of Good Housekeeping that also shows a quality that was beyond him a few years ago.

Mere beauty, to our mind, is as insipid in verse as in a woman's face. Narrative poems as a usual thing leave us cold. Dexterous, even graceful (as many of Robert Frost's poems) embellishment of the commonplace has no more appeal to our admiration than if the authors who write that sort of thing managed to inscribe the Lord's prayer on the head of a pin. We hold a brief for poems, say, like Amy Lowell's "Lead Soldiers," which Mr. Braithwaite had omitted though anthologically including some of Miss Lowell's less attractive experiments.

Among the pretty poems, tinged with poetic melancholy, is Amelia Josephine Burr's "The Poppies." The author is eminently capable; and merit of the kind exemplified in this poem has won her a host of admirers. The same with Sara Teasdale, who is represented among other things with a neat adaptation called "Mastery" of Henley's "Invictus." Conrad Aiken, he of the protean moods, appears in the more sentimental vein of "Evensong," and to better advantage in "Miracles," and also has a book reviewed.

Incidentally, we are inclined to believe that Mr. Aiken will not this year suffer from the "cold nausea" which he reported in print as having attacked him when he perused Mr. Braithwaite's previous anthology. He was quite bitter over it, and scolded Mr. Braithwaite just as though he might have been somewhat peeved because his own name and verse were left entirely out.

Among the better known poets represented this year are Amy Lowell, Edgar Lee Masters, Ruth Comfort Mitchell, Josephine Preston Peabody, Edward Arlington Robinson, Richard Le Gallienne, George Edward Woodberry and Robert Underwood Johnson.

"Free Verse" is also given attention, and the selection is such as to convince, we believe, almost anyone that Mr. Braithwaite has picked about the best the new movement has to give. It is represented chiefly by the work of John Gould Fletcher, Alfred Kreymborg, Amy Lowell, Mr. Masters, and James Oppenheim.

Too, it is a pleasure to note that Mr. Braithwaite has not escaped the charm of the celebrated ghost of St. Louis, Patience Worth; who, though claiming to have been dead for some 300 years, has nevertheless, fairly won the right to be included in an anthology of magazine verse for 1916.

LEADING BOOKS OF CURRENT FICTION, DRAMA AND ESSAYS.

"Souls Resurgent."

MARION HAMILTON CARTER has written a fine novel in "Souls Resurgent" (Charles Scribner's Sons.) Current novels, American novels, present too few books of such dignity, careful writing and strength for "Souls Resurgent not to be distinctive.

As the title implies, the author has had something more than narrative in mind. The subject of regeneration is one quite dear to novelists; but they are prone to be mawkish when not questionably sentimental, and for the most part regeneration stories are absurdly freakish and usually distressingly pious also. We are very much impressed by this novel because the author has tried to do a big thing in a big way; there is thought-substance behind the action, philosophy behind the plot, and both action and plot are well handled, and the character work is particularly good.

In the first place, "Souls Resurgent" presents a western story, a Wyoming story, amid the familiar settings of the cow-punching type of fiction; but it is a real and not a "reel" story of the West. The heroine, Dora Feruseth, is truly a heroine; braver withal than debutantes who pot villains and save the old homestead or their virtue, though her struggles are largely psychological. Nor is the interest in Dora less because she is not the center of a love affair—love affairs being stupidly considered the sole and enchanting prerogatives of young females in fiction.

A sketch of the plot cannot be anything like fully appreciated without an understanding of the characters as they have been drawn. The plot is solidly grounded on its characters; they are convincing, they are human.

Dora returns from college to find most unexpectedly that her father, a large ranch owner, has in his will left her the guardianship of the estate, though her mother is living, and though her brother is almost of age. The guardianship is to extend until he is 25. The discerning father realized that she, alone of his three children, has the firmness of character that resembled his own.

Dora's situation is difficult. She finds the ranch life intensely disagreeable after the ten years of cultural life away from it. Her mother, spasmodically tempered, good hearted, impulsive, cannot understand her daughter; her little sister, too, is bewildered by Dora's coldness and poise; but it is with her brother, Eric, that the real battle is fought. Eric is egged on by graceless friends until he bitterly resents the guardianship; a "papa in petticoats" he calls her, taking the phrase from one of his companions.

But Dora stands firm. Ranch work is new to her. The ranch hands are curious and resent her "stuckupishness;" but she puts them into and keeps them in their places. She gradually draws the members of her family closer to her, and they understand one another. The long, hard, psychological battle is remarkably well described. And when Eric has learned to respect her, to value her, she forces him into marriage, or rather calls so forcibly upon his honor that he accepts the marriage. Then Dora learns bitterly that she erred; but Eric has become as another man and grimly holds to his manly course. This part of the book is intensely dramatic, yet sober and strong.

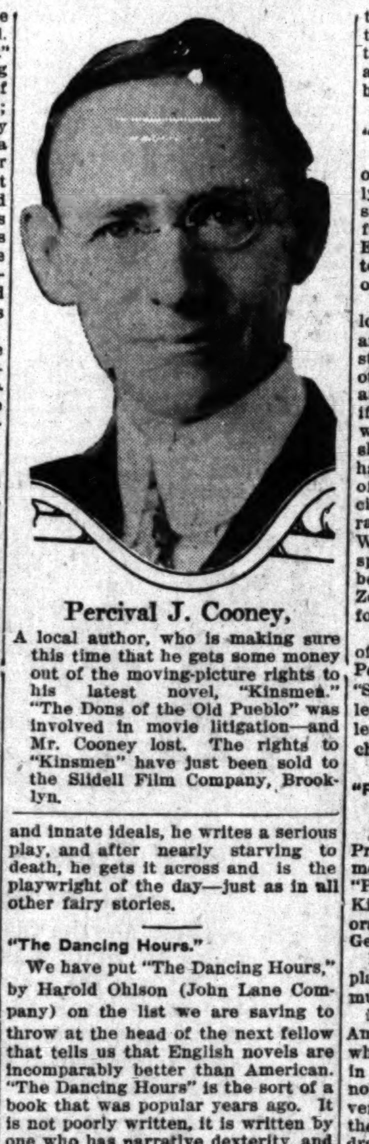
If "Souls Resurgent" had come from a well-known, a prominent author, it would have created a literary sensation. No prominent author in this country has done work more solid in many a day, or has made a more masterful handling of a big theme. It is true that in parts the philosophy goes somewhat beyond the interest of the casual reader, and in places it seems a trifle opaque; but this novel is a fine novel, and readers of serious fiction will miss something of decided value if it is ignored.

"The Balance."

Francis R. Bellamy in "The Balance" (Doubleday, Page & Co.) flings out a banner heavily embroidered with the slogan, "Uplift." Mr. Bellamy writes with sophistication, and he has written an allegory rather than a novel. He varies the morals that Alger and Otis once assiduously insinuated into the minds of juvenile males, showing how the honest youth always married the banker's daughter, and tells the story of the meretricious playwright who, after catching an ideal, passes from poverty to financial honors and permanency as a dramatist. "The Balance" is designed for playwrights; the fellows who are after the coin, panderers to prurient audiences, and these fellows are invited to behold the happiness and prosperity that attended S. Sydney Tappan, playwright, after he gave up writing the popular truck and went in for the earnest stuff.

The fault that we find with this earnest and careful book is that it is too sophisticated, too smug, too certain of itself, too palpable with its moral. On the other hand it has an ideal, a definite, commendable purpose, in fact, a "purpose;" but the blend of cocky facetiousness with poignant earnestness, of amiable cynicism on the part of the author with the quite tragic suffering of his muchly coddled hero, is annoying. It was as though Mr. Bellamy was really afraid of letting himself go and telling his story resolutely. But the novel has quality of plot as well as purpose, though there is some irrepressible skepticism in believing that the erstwhile plumber can land in New York and at once make good his bluff as a playwright, even as a meretricious playwright; and there is even more skepticism likely to appear within the reader's mind when the serious young playwright marries the girl he does not love because he believes that she has been made pregnant by a good friend of his recently killed.

"The Balance" dawdles in opening chapters. It begins with Tappan's boyhood and the meeting with Carrie, the rich grocer's daughter, who stays in the background and writes letters most of the time, but is eventually turned out of her snobbish home because she has ideals. Then she ventures to New York. The opening chapters are also concerned with Tappan's venture in the plumbing business, which relieves him of some thousands of dollars. But with the few hundred saved from the wreck, he and a musical friend jump to New York, pick up a fluffy act that a fat "angel" who loved the leading lady has dropped and at once make good. Tappan writes a play for a prominent actress, and then writes others. But, because of Carrie's uplifting letters and innate ideals, he writes a serious play, and after nearly starving to death, he gets it across and is the playwright of the day—just as in all other fairy stories.



Percival J. Cooney,

A local author, who is making sure this time that he gets some money out of the moving-picture rights to his latest novel, "Kinsmen." "The Dons of the Old Pueblo" was involved in movie litigation—and Mr. Cooney lost. The rights to "Kinsmen" have just been sold to the Slidell Film Company, Brooklyn.

"The Dancing Hours."

We have put "The Dancing Hours," by Harold Ohlson (John Lane Company) on the list we are saving to throw at the head of the next fellow that tells us that English novels are incomparably better than American. "The Dancing Hours" is the sort of a book that was popular years ago. It is not poorly written, it is written by one who has narrative dexterity, and the plot is slightly ingenious; but—

The supposed daughter of a drunken pawnbroker, using letters said to have been found in an old cabinet, blackmails Lady Alicia to take her up into society and give her a push. Jane proves quite popular and is beset by suitors of various intentions. In the background hovers the villain, a tavern keeper who is determined to marry her; and he connects with villains in the foreground, so that the girl is harassed in the conventional fashion. Needless to say, there is a mysterious will; almost needless to say, the supposed daughter of the drunken pawnbroker turns out to be someone else, and she is wholly entitled to the social position which she has forced from the reluctant Lady Alicia; and the letters she used for blackmail were written by—but that is one thrill the reader can get for himself if he cares to peruse "The Dancing Hours."

"War Phases According to Maria."

Those who haven't met Maria before may be somewhat bewildered by the tangents of this estimable British woman, who hasn't much humor of her own, but affords plenty of it for Mrs. John Lane to pass on to her readers. "War Phases According to Maria" (John Lane Company) illustrated by the inimitable A. H. Fish, is a satirical study of a certain, no doubt plentiful kind of English woman who wants to do something for her country, but doesn't care to inconvenience herself.

Two of the chapters appeared in a previous book, but since they show war phases according to Maria, their inclusion is acceptable.

While it is the fashion, Maria wishes to care for a Belgian; on behalf of a patriotic economy she wishes the servants to eat a substitute for butter though she doesn't care to do so herself; she abhors the "equality" of the war and is greatly indignant when a former parlor maid marries a peer, but is greatly elated when she can have a marquis for dinner. She goes in for keeping hens because England must import eggs, and finding her friends introduce chickens into the home, decides that her husband's study will make a good hennery; she visits a submarine and thinks the periscope would be a fine thing on the front porch so she could see who rang the bell before deciding whether or not to be at home.

If this caustic book is popular in the British Isles it will attest that the British not only have more humor than Americans credit them with, but can smile when the joke is, so to speak, on their own wives. On the other hand, the British may be so tired of women like Maria that they will vote Mrs. John Lane—an American—a medal.

"Malvaloca."

The latest addition to the Drama League Series of Plays is "Malvaloca" by Serafin and Joaquin Alvarez Quintero, translated by Jacob S. Fassett, Jr. (Doubleday, Page & Co.) It is a Spanish play written in the Andalusian dialect.

Quite gracefully, amid the somewhat refining and hallowing influence of Sisters of Charity, with the symbolism of the recast bell which is restored to its pristine melody in the background, the story is told of how honest love makes a happy and worthy woman of Malvaloca, a little daughter of joy.

It is far from being a traditional Spanish drama—this that shows one partner of the iron foundry taking up and loving the discarded mistress of the other, and loving her devotedly without rancor or bitterness toward his former rival. The three acts are deftly put together, the action skilifully developed, and the theme idealistic. It is a pretty, a gentle, very nearly a sweet play—but not convincing.

"The Empire of Silence."

A book of 400 pages on the virtues of silence is something of an anomaly, but the virtues and benefits of saying little and saying that thoughtfully are ably presented in "The Empire of Silence" (Sturgis & Walton) by Charles Courtney, chaplain of Holy Trinity, Rome.

The author has drawn from philosphy, proverbs, literature, national and ecclesiastical histories, from statesmen and theologians and every other conceivable source for his argument by illustration. He asks if there has ever been a chatterer who did things worth while? He shows that men of personal power have always been men appreciative of silence. His reach is wide. He cites the silence imposed by Pythagoras upon his pupils, and quotes William James and Maeterlinck; speaks of martyrs who could not be silenced by the church, and of Zeno, whom the tyrant could not force to speak.

The chapters are essayical studies of various phases of silence; "The Power of Silence," "Grim Silence," "Silence Symbols," "Monastic Silence," "Silent Men," "Ignoble Silence," are some of the two score chapter headings.

"Plays and Players: Leaves from a Critic's Scrapbook."

Almost all of the plays that Walter Prichard Eaton discusses in his remodeled scrapbook with the title of "Plays and Players" (Stewart & Kidd Company) have elicited favorable comment except those by George M. Cohan.

Mr. Eaton is an entertaining, a plausible and an earnest critic, with much charity in his cosmos.

He says the real foes of the American stage are not the managers, who would gladly produce anything in which there is money; and it is not the frivolous maidens or proverbially tired business man. "No, the real foes of a serious, effective drama in America, which shall rank as literature on the one hand and as a social force on the other, are the thousands of good men and women—more women than men, unfortunately—whose attitude toward the stage is represented by their reiterated remark in the face of a serious drama, 'There's enough unhappiness in the world without showing it on the stage.'"

They are the people who are afraid of the truth. It annoys them. They resent the irritation of unpleasantness. Like badly raised daughters, they don't want to put their lily hands in the dishwater; they don't want to know anything about the millions that scrub pots and pans.

And we regard "Plays and Players" as an indication that Mr. Eaton's charity covers a multitude of dramaturgical sins. Were the ideals that inspired the chapter on "Real Foes of Serious Drama" sitting like jade gods on his writing desk, he would not have been so complaisant with most plays other than those by Mr. Cohan. It is true that Mr. Cohan's plays, when serious, are the apotheosis of middle class idealism which finds expression in magical regeneration; and Mr. Eaton lays bare with palpable ease the bones of "Broadway Jones" and "The Miracle Man." Too, he scorns the execrable "Honeymoon Express;" but for the most part he passes with a gentle pat of approval all "harmless" plays; and he rises to applaud heartily "The Unchastened Woman;" he finds "The Secret" something more than a French adaptation of "Hedda Gabler;" he intimates that the young Mr. Sheldon had best be a little more careful of borrowings, but Mr. Eaton is not offended by the last act of "Romance," which is worse than any plagiarism. He sees the charming novelty of "The Yellow Jacket," he is won by the sweet simplicity of "Pomander Walk," and is awed by the scenery and costumes of "Kismet." Burlesques please him immensely; one would almost think that he was a tired business man except for his castigation of "The Honeymoon Express." The best he can say of "Kindling" is that it is an honest play, of course inferior in technique to the plays of M. Bernstein—thus forcing a gratuitous disparagement of a young and inexperienced writer in comparing him with the greatest mechanician—who is little else—of France.

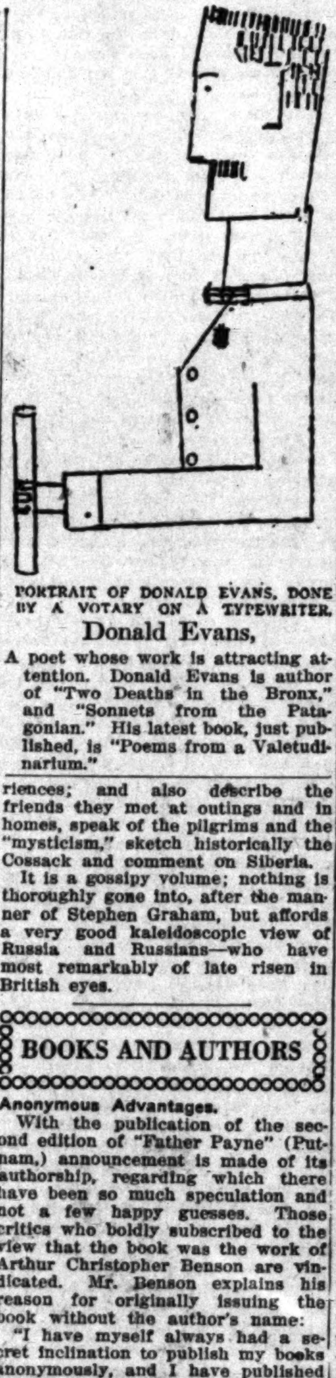
Mr. Eaton has facile phrases and a consciously modest air. His tone in compliments is one of patronage; in censure it is an attitude of boredom. Only rarely does he make the searching analysis that he did with "The Song of Songs" and "The Case of Becky;" and as pieces of criticism we found nothing else in the book that so convincingly attests Mr. Eaton's right to impersonate Rhadamanthus.

"The Soul of the Russian."

Marjorie and Alan Lethbridge are among those of the English Isles who take pleasure in telling their countrymen complimentary things about the Russians, age-old enemies of the British Empire. "The Soul of the Russian" (John Lane Company) belies its title in that it tells little about the "soul," but in a series of interesting, though disconnected chapters, gives glimpses of Russian life, history, customs and society.

The authors find the Russians a friendly people, and think much of this is probably due to the long distances of the railroad journeys upon which people make a practice, like on ship board, of becoming acquainted. They tell of their own experiences; and also describe the friends they met at outings and in homes, speak of the pilgrims and the "mysticism," sketch historically the Cossack and comment on Siberia.

It is a gossipy volume; nothing is thoroughly gone into, after the manner of Stephen Graham, but affords a very good kaleidoscopic view of Russia and Russians—who have most remarkably of late risen in British eyes.



PORTRAIT OF DONALD EVANS, DONE BY A VOTARY ON A TYPEWRITER.

Donald Evans,

A poet whose work is attracting attention. Donald Evans is author of "Two Deaths in the Bronx," and "Sonnets from the Patagonian." His latest book, just published, is "Poems from a Valetudinarium."

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

Anonymous Advantages.

With the publication of the second edition of "Father Payne" (Putnam,) announcement is made of its authorship, regarding which there have been so much speculation and not a few happy guesses. Those critics who boldly subscribed to the view that the book was the work of Arthur Christopher Benson are vindicated. Mr. Benson explains his reason for originally issuing the book without the author's name:

"I have myself always had a secret inclination to publish my books anonymously, and I have published seven of my books so, four of which have been, from the point of view of circulation, the most successful books I have written—"The Upton Letters," "The College Window," "The House of Quiet" and "The Thread of Gold." The advantage of anonymous publication is that the book is judged on its own merits, and owes nothing to the writer's position or friends. And then there is the amusement of a little secret, and the pleasure of hearing what is said and thought about one's work, without any of the inconveniences of recognition. Recognition has its penalties, because all that one says in public, above one's own signature, is commented upon from the standpoint of one's profession and reputation. Besides, if you read a book from the point of view of the author's personality, you are apt to read into it not what the writer says but what you expect him to say, and, further, a writer is credited with believing, consistently and continuously, all that he says in his books, when a book is often the expression of a mood or a phase, or even of a romantic dream."

Rupert Hughes's Activities.

Rupert Hughes, author of "Clipped Wings," etc., is not confining himself these days to the mere writing of novels. His interests are numerous, and in the current number of a weekly periodical he has an article on the National Guard, in which he is an officer, and at the same time his name is on the New York City billboards as the author of a movie play.

Author of "The Unwelcome Man."

Waldo Frank, the author of one of the earliest 1917 novels, "The Unwelcome Man," was born August 25, 1890, in New Jersey. He is a graduate of Yale, and while still in college conducted a column of signed dramatic criticism in the New Haven Journal-Courier. For the next few years, he was a journalist in New York—being a member of the staffs of the New York Evening Post and the New York Times. He left the Times to go to Paris, where he spent a year, principally in study of the drama and in writing. Mr. Frank has been an editor of The Seven Arts since its beginning. Now that his soul story of Quincy Burt, "The Unwelcome Man," has been published by Little, Drown & Co., he is working upon another novel which he hopes to complete before 1918.

Psychoanalysis.

Moffat, Yard & Co., New York, announce for publication three new books on the science of psychoanalysis:

"The Psychoanalytic Method," by Dr. Oskar Pfister, translated by C. R. Payne, M.D.; "Freud's Theories of the Neuroses," by Dr. Edward Hitschmann, translated by C. R. Payne, M.D.; "The Neurotic Constitution," by Dr. Alfred Adler, translated by Bernard Glueck, M.D., and John E. Lind, M.D.

Prince Kropotkin's "Mutual Aid."

Alfred A. Knopf has in hand a new and cheaper edition of Prince Kropotkin's important book, "Mutual Aid," which has long been out of print in this country. In this book the author shows that progress, biological and social, is best fostered not by brute force or cunningness but by the practice of mutual cooperation and support. He thus answers those writers who excuse the horrors of the present war by representing them as unavoidable consequences of "The Struggle for Existence," the necessity of which for the improvement of the human race was proved, they maintain, by Darwin.

Lecturer and Author.

Montaville Flowers, author of "The Japanese Conquest of American Opinion," published by the George H. Doran Company, has delivered 280 lectures during the past year—his record on the Chautauqua platform. The new president of the "Chautauqua and Lyceum League," Mr. Flowers is one of the best-known lecturers on the Chautauque platform. His lecture on "Guarding the Golden Gate" was recently voted by 125 of America's leading lecturers, gathered at the International Lyceum Association meeting in Chicago, "the most perfectly constructed and vitally important lecture on the American platform."

On Thrift.

Bolton Hall's new book, "Thrift," which B. W. Huebsch has just published, is a presentation of twentieth-century principles of saving. Mr. Hall attacks the old maxims, the observance of which makes men so miserable while hoarding against a rainy day that it is impossible for them to be happy when the rainy day comes. He thinks that saving should serve life in its fullest sense, and that life should not be sacrificed for saving. It is a healthy, stimulating and audacious book.

Eighteenth Century and Books.

A gap is to be filled in the literature of the book trade by an illustrated volume on 'Tokens of the Eighteenth Century Connected with Booksellers and Bookmakers,' which Messrs. Longmans have in the press. The author is Mr. William Longman, son of Mr. Charles J. Longman and himself a junior partner in the publishing house which can boast that it has existed intact since the days of George I. The work is divided into three sections dealing with "Tokens issued by Authors, Booksellers, Circulating Libraries, Engravers, Newspaper Proprietors, Paper Manufacturers, Printers and Publishers;" "Tokens struck by People unconnected with any Branch of the Book Trade, but which refer to, and in most cases portray, an Author;" and "Miscellaneous Tokens of Interest to the Booksellers and Allied Trades. —[The Times, London.

History of American Literature.

"The Cambridge History of American Literature," edited by Professors W. P. Trent, John Erskine, Carl Van Doren, of Columbia University, and S. P. Sherman of the University of Illinois, has been planned to supplement the "Cambridge History of English Literature" with an account of the body of writing in English produced within the United States. The work will be published in three volumes by the Putnams. Volume I will be issued early in the new year.

The scheme, as in the case of the British section, involves the joint labors of representative and authoritative scholars throughout the country. Thus, while every attempt will be made to render the work organic by careful editing, it will furnish a more varied and yet more exact treatment than could be hoped for from a single writer. In fact, particular attention will be given to certain general movements which in themselves are subjects for specialization. There will be chapters on education, publicists and orators, children's books, travelers and explorers, newspapers and magazines, historians and memoir writers, humorists, dialect writers, scientists, philosophers, theologians, and the influence of American literature in Europe, as well as on the better known imaginative writers.

Detailed bibliographies will be given for the guidance of minute students. The text, however, will be suited to the needs of the general reader who desires to secure, in reasonable compass, an adequate notion of the expression which has been given to the United States by men of letters working in all the departments of literature.

A Blow to Vanity.

Fannie Hurst, whose new book, "Every Soul Hath Its Song," was published last autumn, told the other day the following anecdote at her expense: "One day in the New York Subway I observed a man beside me deeply absorbed in one of my stories then appearing in a current periodical. Watching his face for his reaction in the story, I saw him reach the bottom of the page where the tale was continued in the back of the magazine. Instead of turning to the page indicated at the close of the column, he merely turned to opposite side of page where, under the heading, Duck Shooting a Cure for Lunacy, he continued reading without a flicker of expression."

Eastern Women Advancing.

"Like the woman movement all over the world, the emergence of woman in China is above everything a spirit of humanism, a regeneration of enduring instincts for good in both sexes, and a widening of that area of contact and understanding between men and women which inexorably grows with civilization," says Gardner L. Handing, in "Present-Day China." "In their capacity for progress there are, I believe, no women in Asia like the women of China. Beside Japan, China is counted as one of the world's weak nations. But in the moral regeneration that is bringing about the emergence into modern life of her women she is fulfilling a deeper and more test of civilization than has by Japan in and her fifty years of material progress."

Anti-Feminism Twenty-seven turies Ago.

Seven hundred and eighty yea fore Christ, men were even th sisting that woman's place was h home, and they had, evidently, same reasons that prevail today so thinking. We have as proof no woman should dabble in p the following poem, taken "Lyrics from the Chinese," lated by Helen Waddell, a edition of which Houghton Company are just importing England:

"The wise man's wisdom is strength, the woman's wisd
our bane,
The men build up the city wal
women to tear down again.
No man from any woman's wit,
yet learned aught of any worth,
For wise is she, but unto ill, to disorder on the earth.
What does she in affairs of
Her place is in the inner room,
Her wisdom doth least hurt i to mind the silkworm and loom."

The Borderers.

From Camp Stuart, on the border, where our soldiers are nobbing with Uncle Sam and his broken bronchos, a favorite dispelling ennui is the study of Andrews's "Fundamentals of tary service." From a letter by one of the captain's there, one gathers that the life is not wholly unadven "We had to walk back into the tains three miles before we the big pile. In a rocky cleft we stopped for lunch we saw humming birds, enjoying the from the flowers of mint, which growing there. We descended other side, and on the way spied what appeared to be a dog walking along on the other of the deep ravine below us. My showed, however, a full-sized, mountain lion, who was very lous to keep away from us. must also be antelope in hills as other parties have several pairs of horns. One of boys and myself nearly walked two rattlesnakes, not three apart. We killed them both brought them to camp."

A thousand years I have been free!

Dust! How it suffered oft—and oft,
Set all about a fiery soul

And, flashing forth, regained the Whole!

Dust! woman, child, and man have worn
These atoms—worn and cast away

And they have danced to fluted lay!

Dust! I am dust a thousand years—
But sometimes in the wind I rise,

To see my wraith 'twixt earth and skies!

'Dust!' saith he, then—those fears to still—
'Yon whirling dust fortells a storm.'

His own fate in my transient form!"

rose and drove with sudden goad—

1917's First Furniture Review---

Mattresses

—A Special Feature in the February Review—

—"And just to make you doubly certain of the Value Spirit in our Inauguration, we are introducing Bullock's 45 lb. Neverstretch Mattress—any size—for $10," say The Wise Little Craftsmen.

—And anyone at all familiar with mattresses and especially Bullock's Neverstretch, will instantly recognize the very superior value in this mattress.

—An excellent quality—the filling being almost one-half staple cotton—think of it!

—A billowy, restful Neverstretch Mattress—and for only $10.00. 7th Floor.

"My!"

—says the Master Little Wise Craftsman, "Don't I wish I could tell everyone of all the good furniture and values that are at Bullock's now!

—"And our experience in getting them—

—"No one should miss their share."

—With "The Wise Little Craftsmen" in Charge, as Generals in the Army. Not only is the furniture theirs, but also the planning of this campaign and its execution—

—They are to demonstrate that the real importance of wisdom depends not merely upon knowledge.

—For if these wise little Craftsmen had merely known, and had not worked to accomplish, then this Furniture Review might not have been. If they had merely worked to accomplish and had not known, and understoood Furniture—your desires—and the principles and purposes of Bullock's then —The great measure of quality and substantial value that is here and brimming—might not have been so filled—

—But they did know and they did work, these wise little Craftsmen, (as beavers work in building their very own homes) and there are no "Might-have-beens—"

—The furniture is here, and it is Good Furniture; the values are here, and they are Good Values; the varieties are here; and service and everything is good——And now the wise little Craftsmen have authorized Bullock's—to invite you and your neighbors, and your neighbor's neighbors. Everyone to come to Bullock's on Monday and on other days in February, to see Furniture, to study Furniture; to know Furniture as it is in this Review—and to buy as your need may be—

—"We have been energetic—We have been insistent—We have been careful—We have remembered—that —"What do you think? The price of this ivory chiffonier will be but $17.50!"

—"At $12.75 it hardly seems possible, but it is true as true can be. Ivory!"

THE RICH INDIAN.

Osage Oil and Gas Magnates Say the Lord has been Good to Them and Happily Enjoy the Bounties of Kind Providence.

BY REV. CARL E. GRAMMAR, S.T.D.,
President, The Indian Rights Association.

Lo, the poor Indian, of the popular imagination, has been transformed of late into Lo, the rich Indian; and conjectures, numerous and varied, have been rife as to her ultimate destiny, instead of what we used to call his ultimate fate.

Now, the truth is that the Indian, in the main, is still poor. About two-thirds of the nation's wards either remain dependents upon the nation for sustenance or are so far removed from wealth that they are dependent on their own exertions for their living. The one-third remaining may properly be classed as being above want by reason of their independent means; and one-fourth of the Indians in the United States are, as communities but not as individuals, really rich.

The 25 per cent. represents 103,500 Indians—the five civilized tribes, the Cherokees, Chickasaws, Choctaws, Creeks and Seminoles resident in Oklahoma, together with their neighbors in the State, the Osages, who number only 2200, and individually, might be called the magnates of the Indian communities.

The five tribes, including those of the Seminoles, who were transplanted by the government from Florida's Everglades against their will, owned their lands in Oklahoma in fee simple. Four of the tribes sold their original holdings in Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, and used the money for purchase outright of lands in what was then Indian Territory and is now Oklahoma. The Seminoles were given their land by the government. Individual allotment, in severalty, was made of the lands at the beginning of this century. Tribal land remaining after all allotment was made was sold off from time to time, the proceeds being deposited to the credit of the several tribes and later distributed on a per capita basis. The Choctaws and Chickasaws still retain title to several million acres, located in Oklahoma and containing by government estimate, coal and asphalt deposits now valued at $40,000,000. These deposits have not thus far been exploited; but they will come on the market shortly for rental on royalties. Apart from these reserve resources of the Choctaws and Chickasaws, the five tribes possess property, tribal and individual, aggregating $160,000,000.

On the face of it, every man, woman and child included in the five tribes should be worth $1600. But the action of Congress, in removing restrictions upon the individual adult Indian's management of his affairs, permitted thousands of the enfranchised wards to become the prey of a horde of grafters, swindlers, bootleggers, and other adventurers who flock to every such feast with avidity and dispatch. The worst and most revolting of the grafting by the whites lay in the unscrupulous robbery of Indian heirs, whenever a member of one of the tribes died, through the agency of professional guardians, who fairly stole the pennies off the dead men's eyes. In a word, 60,000 grown people, supplied with ready money to the use of which many of them were wholly unacustomed, were permitted to become victims of the worst elements in the white race. It is estimated that now 60 per cent. of those whose fortunes were left to their own management have lost their money and are deriving their support largely from the charity of their more prudent neighbors.

The really wealthy Osages, who bought their lands from the Cherokees with the proceeds from the sale of their former reservation in Kansas, acquired ground which, during the past fifteen years, has proved of enoromus value. Included among the 2000 Osages were many half-breeds and pure whites possessing full tribal rights. This shrewd element set their faces sternly against sale of the surplus tribal land; they would acquiesce only in lease on royalty of the oil and gas wells, which are among the richest in Oklahoma. Due directly to this wise conservatism, approximately $600,000 is paid out every three months to the 2195 persons in the Osage tribe, an income for every man, woman and child of nearly $1200 per year in cash. This is in addition to the revenues derived from the individual holdings of 650 acres, for which the average rental is $400 annually. If a family number only four people, the yearly income of the little group is well over $6000.

Fortune, however, has been as fickle here as she is traditionally known to be. While none of the Osages is poor, there have been numerous instances where holdings, which looked least promising of any return, have proved enormously profitable by reason of their unexpected oil production.

The chief concern the American people have here is with the effect of large and assured wealth upon the Indians. Notwithstanding the evil influences which still have access to them, there is no more law-abiding class of citizens than the full-blood Osages. There are seventy-five persons who may be classed as drunken incompetents. The full-bloods, as a rule, decline to work, saying that, since God has been pleased with them and given them plenty, they are under no necessity of toil. Mark Twain pointed out the fact that white people, in similar circumstances, wouldn't work, either. Many of these wealthy Osages, living in commodious dwellings, employ whites as domestic servants; and not a few, notably among the mixed bloods, are engaged in business enterprises. It is a peaceful, wealthy, happy community, with less of dissipation and immorality than might be looked for in a white community similarly circumstanced and as often tempted.

A factor of importance for the future is the manner in which the wealth of the Osage heiresses attracts white suitors. The difficulties in the way of acquiring tribal rights by marriage with an Indian woman have been greatly and wisely increased; for, ever since 1897, marriage has not conferred legal membership in any Indian tribe in the United States. But marriage can be used, and has been used, as a means toward legal adoption into a tribe. It is, however, of infrequent occurrence. A rich wife and children legally qualified as heirs to her wealth are inducements so potent that whenever the Indians of any community are assured of considerable fortune intermarriage with whites promises to afford one solution of the Indian problem.

FACT AND COMMENT.

With Councilman Betkouski alone opposing, the final ordinance for the Second-street tunnel will be passed by the City Council next Wednesday. Betkouski, it was, who succeeded in having the ordinance of intention for this vitally needed traffic outlet held up a week in December. Last Wednesday, by declining [illegible] to vote for a suspension of the Council rules, he was able to delay the tunnel still another week. Acting as he has, the obdurate official has placed the municipal body of which he is a member in a most undignified light, and it is safe to say that he has not added to his popularity with the thinking people of Los Angeles, regardless of whether they have any direct interest in seeing the Second-street bore through or not.

Whatever satisfaction Mr. Betkouski may have been able to derive from halting the progress of the assured enterprise, his power as an obstructionist is apparently at an end. The ordinance that will start definite work on the tunnel will be passed over his head on Wednesday. Before the month has passed bids for the construction of the tunnel will be in the hands of the City Engineer. Late in May, or early in June, it will be Mr. Betkouski's privilege as a city official to [illegible] in the ground-breaking [illegible] of the great public improvement which he has done his best to hold back.

[illegible] the Boulevard.

The next important step in the program for settling the traffic problem of downtown and northwest Los Angeles is the construction of the long-delayed West First-street [illegible]. Plans for the widening, grading and paving of First street from Lakeshore avenue westward to [illegible] avenue were completed [illegible] ago; a legally-prepared petition for this improvement has long been in the hands of the City Council. A similar plan for the improvement of Temple street westward from Vermont avenue to the city limits is practically ready for presentation to the Council. A viaduct across Silver Lake Parkway will connect the two [illegible] traffic arteries, both of which have been held up only to await the outcome of the Second-street tunnel proceedings. West First street runs into Second street at Lakeshore and the new tunnel is the natural outlet for the [illegible] traffic into the business district.

Acting on the principle of "one thing at a time," the City Council has lost no time in taking up the West First-street improvement. It is ready to go ahead, only the formal proceedings preliminary to the passage of the ordinance remaining to be attended to. While the First-street project is being taken care of, the preliminaries of the Temple-street plan can be disposed of. Both these projects are essential to the full usefulness of the Second-street tunnel and an integral part of the whole traffic plan. Both improvements should be in and ready for use by the time of the opening of the tunnel next January.

Few persons really realize what these traffic improvements will mean to the city. It is generally understood, of course, that they will take much of the traffic that is now forced, for lack of a direct outlet into the business section, to go around Bunker Hill into Sixth and Seventh streets from the lower Broadway district, thereby relieving the serious downtown congestion. The value of the boulevards and the tunnel and of future Bunker Hill tunnels to the people of north-

MANY ANGLES TO BIG DEAL.

Buyer of Grand-avenue Lot Believes in Action.

Plans and Leases Building During Escrow.

Announces Whole Transaction at One Time.

A notable real estate transaction involving the immediate erection of a modern, new, downtown improvement was concluded in this city yesterday by the Wright-Callender-Andrews Company, represented by Glenn N. Deuel of its business sales department. The deal was characterized by unusual dispatch throughout, considering the various angles covered in the negotiations.

In the transaction, which came out of escrow yesterday morning, R. W. George, a wealthy citrus grower of Whittier, acquired from Sophie Newmark eighty feet of frontage on the west side of Grand avenue, 120 feet south of Tenth street. During the two weeks that the deal was in escrow the Whittier man closed two other important deals affecting the property. One was the commissioning of Frank Wilson Young to prepare plans for a four-story automobile building to cover the entire site. The other was the leasing of the structure in contemplation to the George R. Bentel Company for a period of ten years.

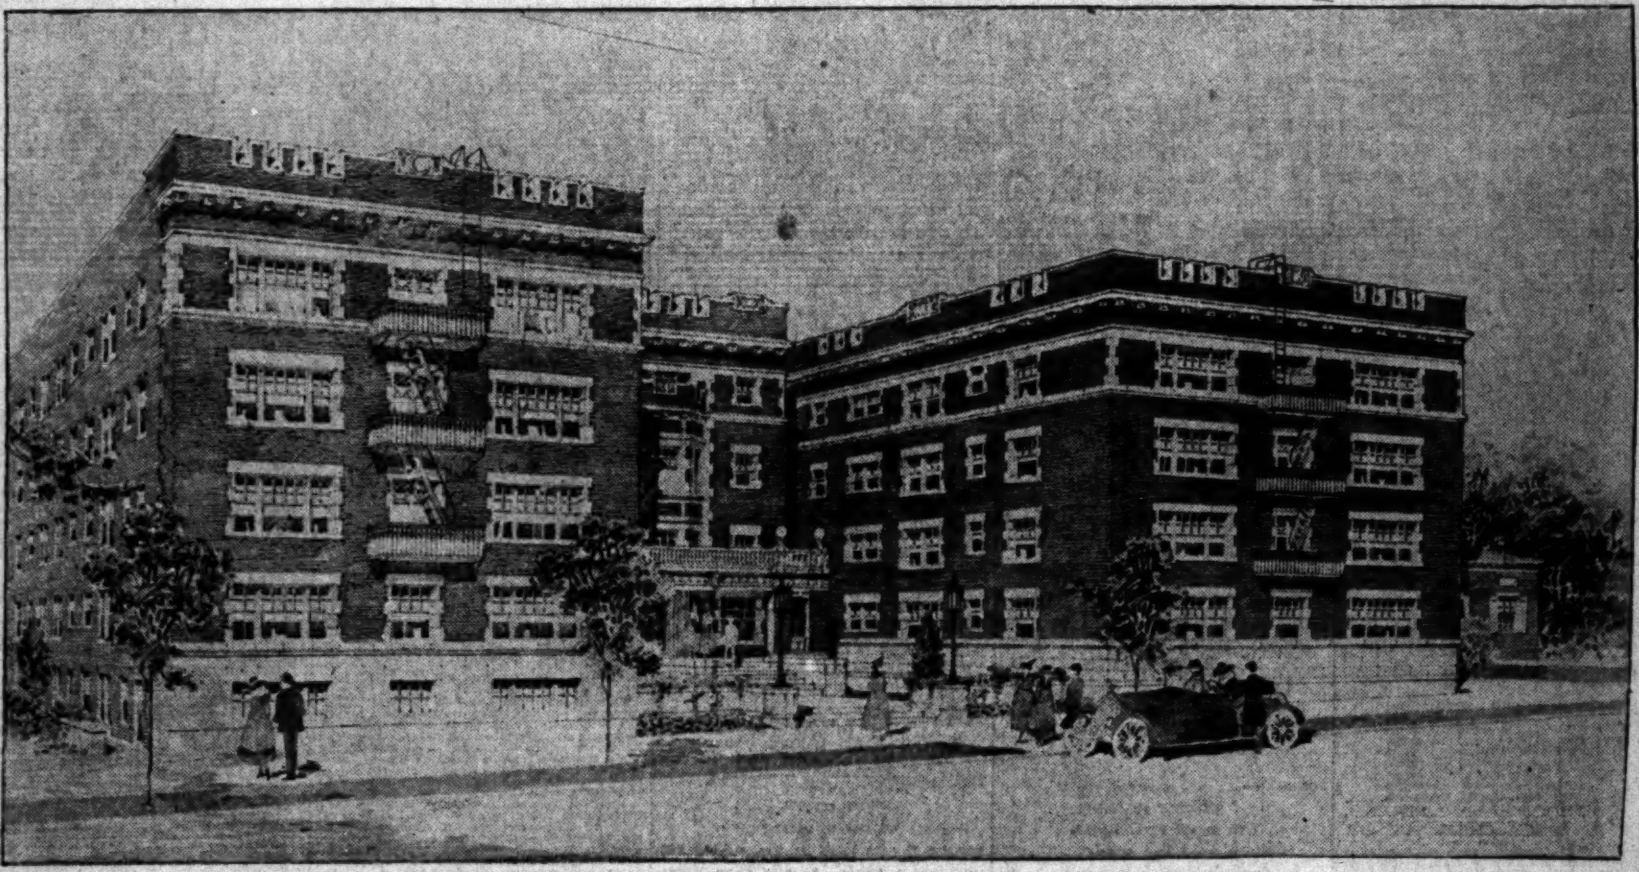
Both of the last-named contracts were closed immediately upon the conclusion of the negotiations for the sale of the site itself. The instructions of Mr. George to the architect were to "rush" things. That this has been done is revealed in the fact that Mr. Young has not only finished the working plans for the building, but has awarded to the Pozzo Construction Company the contract for its erection. The excavations for the foundations will be started tomorrow. Three months from now the tenant expects to take possession.

The building will cover the entire site, which has a depth of 152 feet to a twenty-foot alley. It will be of brick construction and will be handsomely faced with white enamel brick, the ornamental effects being carried out in the form of green tile insets. The equipment will be strictly up-to-date and will include an electric passenger elevator and general service elevator, as well as a large elevator for heavy freight service.

The plans call for two attractively-finished and appointed showrooms on the ground floor. The offices will be housed in a mezzanine overlooking the sales quarters. This entire story will be finished in hardwoods and floored with tile. The second story will be given over to stockrooms and the third and fourth to service and repair uses. The entire back of the building will be of glass in metal frames, insuring ample light for all purposes.

The consideration paid by Mr. George for the South Grand holding is not given, but it is understood that frontage in the immediate vicinity is held at around $1000 a foot. The sale is the second made in the same block within a short time, C. C. Moore of San Francisco having bought the northwest corner of Grand and Eleventh through W. W. Mines & Co. only a few days ago.

Notable Improvement for Close-in Wilshire Boulevard District.



Apartments to be built by Wilshire Hotel Company on South Coronado street.

The structure, which will be started tomorrow, is to be erected by the Atlas Building Company from plans prepared by Peoples & Cheney. The site has already been cleared.

LARGE SUBDIVISION.

Large Tract to be Placed on Market in Northeast Los Angeles.

Evidence of the improved condition of the realty market, is to be seen in the announcement of the immediate development of a large subdivision in the northeastern part of the city to be known as Maycrest Park. The property consists of nearly 1400 lots, and is on the north side of Huntington drive, extending from two blocks west of Sierra Vista to Bairdstown. The tract is on high ground and is adjacent to the main eastern outlet of the Pacific Electric Railway.

Arthur F. Levitt, the owner of the tract, is now putting in extensive improvements, these including the paving of existing streets, five-foot sidewalks, ten-foot parkings, shade trees, gas, electricity, sewers and city water. An ornamental street lighting system is being installed.

Linton Tedford, with offices at No. 830 Security Building, has been given the managing agency of the property.

TO IMPROVE ROADS.

Plans are shaping for the oiling and grading of thirty miles of roads in the recently-formed Yorba Linda road district, comprising the large orange and lemon tract of the same name, sold by the Janss Investment Company a few years ago, and now a well-developed citrus section. The completion of the work will greatly facilitate the handling of the crop that is being produced this year on the young orchards coming into bearing. Two packing-houses have recently been completed at the new townsite of Yorba Linda, and, according to the Janss company representatives, additions will be made to these in the near future.

DOWNTOWN TRADE.

South Spring Street Property Exchanged for Wilshire Mansion.

A valuable Wilshire holding and downtown Los Angeles real estate figured in a notable transaction closed during the past week in this city. In the deal W. T. Rutherford transferred to Sydney T. Smith a nineteen-room residence of English architecture occupying a lot 100x125 feet in size at the northwest corner of Wilshire boulevard and Mariposa avenue, receiving in exchange a three-story brick building occupying fifty feet of frontage at Nos. 120 to 122 South Spring street. The Wilshire property went in at a given valuation of $50,000 and the Spring street, holding at a reported consideration of $100,000, the difference being adjusted by cash and mortgage.

The deal was handled by Seymour & Batchelder, who also announce the leasing of a store at No. 920 South Grand avenue to H. S. Nettleton, at $175 a month, and the leasing of a garage at No. 1130 South Figueroa street for Laura C. Hutchinson, to the Aston Motor Company for five years at $200 a month.

BUSINESS BUILDINGS.

New business improvements announced during the past week included stores for opposite ends of the city, namely at San Fernando, in the San Fernando Valley, and at the harbor. The first named structure will be of brick and is to contain two stores. It will be built by H. C. Robsahm on Reseda avenue. The other will be at Wilmington and is for Henry Meusse. Work is to be started this week on a two-story brick store and office building for T. Hagaman at Hollywood boulevard and La Brea avenue. The structure will be 100x125 feet in size and will contain eight stores and twelve offices. A building permit was issued during the past week for a two-story brick store and apartment structure to be erected by W. B. Glidden at Hollywood boulevard and McCadden street.

Wilshire.

FINE APARTMENT FOR WEST SIDE.

WORK TO BEGIN AT ONCE ON HANDSOME BUILDING.

Coronado-street Structure will Contain One Hundred and Forty Rooms—Will Follow Style of Tudor Gothic Period—Ground has been Cleared.

Work will be started tomorrow on a handsome and modern apartment house of 140 rooms projected by the Wilshire Hotel Company of this city on the west side of Coronado street between Wilshire boulevard and West Seventh street. The improvement is one of a number in contemplation by the same company, which was organized recently for the purpose of building income structures in Los Angeles, and of which E. J. Eisenmeyer is president.

The new apartment house was designed by Peoples & Cheney and is to be constructed by the Atlas Building Company. It will be of brick and fur stories high above a full basement. Architecturally it will follow the Tudor Gothic style, being faced with red pressed brick and trimmed with white stone. It will be of an "H" shape and will have extreme dimensions of 145x120 feet. Its cost, according to the projectors, will be about $110,000, exclusive of the site.

The structure will have an imposing entrance in stone and marble. The lobby will be 30x46 feet in size and is to be handsomely finished in mahogany. Adjoining it will be a lounging-room, a billiard-room and small parlors for the use of the guests. The basement, which will be high and well lighted, will contain a ball-room 42x55 feet in size, together with a utility dining-room and kitchen for guests, quarters for the servants and the heating plant of the building.

There will be forty apartments of four and five rooms on the four main floors. Each suite will be finished in mahogany and old ivory and will have a tiled bathroom. The conveniences will include steam heat, electric elevator service, vacuum cleaning and special kitchen appointment.

The site of the structure is 150x130 feet and is in the midst of the close-in Wilshire boulevard district apartment and hotel section, being only two blocks from Westlake Park.

Popular.

MANY DOUBLE HOUSES.

Builders in Increasing Numbers Constructing Duplex Residences That Afford Both Home and Income—Activity Growing In All Parts of City.

The construction of double houses and bungalows for investment purposes is playing a constantly larger part in the residence building activities of Los Angeles. It has come to be quite the thing also for builders of homes to erect double dwellings with the intention of living in one half and getting an income from the other.

Two double houses, each containing two five-room suites, are to be started at once by Fred Munsey at Third avenue and Sixteenth street. Laura C. Derby has had plans drawn for a ten-room double house at No. 1555 Gordon street. E. M. Yeafie will start a ten-room double house of two five-room suites at No. 1333 West Thirty-eight street within the next few days. Other residences of various types upon which work is expected to be started within a short time include the following:

Eleven-room house for O. E. Dutton, in Pellissier square; ten-room residence for A. C. Davis, No. 408 South Oxford; two ten-room houses for C. D. Wagner, Nos. 1823 and 1825 Virginia road; ten-room house for John Maltman, Temple near Ridgewood; eight-room house for G. W. Duncan, No. 2405 Eleventh avenue; seven-room residence for J. E. Botkin, No. 1021 West Fifty-sixth street; six-room house for John Petos, Maltman near Sunset; house court of one eight-room double dwelling, two six-room double dwellings and two two-room cottages for Lydia Mills, Nos. 1727 to 1737 Bellevue avenue.

Willey, No. 1301 June street; seven-room bungalow for John Snape, No. 6648 Sunset boulevard; two six-room bungalows for Elizabeth Marriott, San Fernando; six-room bungalow for N. E. J. Kubach Company. Excavations for the structure have been started. The new home of the "Ville" will be six stories in height and will cover a ground area of 142x133 feet. This is a beauty—7 artistically arranged rooms, den, breakfast-room, 2 nice bedrooms, furnace, beautiful pergola porch overlooking the street; double garage, grand view of the mountains. For quick action can sell for $4500, $2000 cash. Absolutely worth $6500.

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY.
$6500.

8-room bungalow in the very center of the Wilshire section, close to Ardmore and 3rd st., strictly modern and in perfect order; east-front lot, 50x165. This home cost the owner twelve thousand dollars, and we can vouch for it; is as good as new. Large living-room, dining-room, kitchen pantry, screen porch, two bedrooms with tile bath downstairs; large playroom, 2 bedrooms and bath upstairs. Mortgage $5000, balance must be cash. Don't look any further until you have seen this property at 50 cents on the dollar.

COLONIAL HOME ON THE BOULEVARD.
$12,600.

Why build when you can pick up a bargain like this? Located on Wilshire boulevard, between Western avenue and Windsor Square. From general appearance one would say that $20,000 would be nearer what it is worth; 10 rooms, 2 baths, all finished in eggshell enamel and mahogany; the exterior is white cement; large lot, double garage; in perfect order, quick possession can be given.

UNUSUAL WILSHIRE SACRIFICE.
$13,500.

Southwest corner of 7th and Ardmore ave., only 1 block from the boulevard; 110x135; improved with a strictly modern home of 10 rooms; finished in hardwood, and 3 baths. This property cost over $20,000 a short time ago. Liberal terms can be arranged.

CLOSE TO ADAMS.
$15,500.

No such bargain has ever been offered in this office in years. Brand new, strictly modern, white colonial home, located on the northwest corner of 4th ave. and 25th st., only 1 short block from West Adams. Lot 100x150, improved with a beautiful, 10-room home, 3 baths, sleeping porches, all new and ready to move into. The drapes all up and worth considerable money. We understand this property cost over $27,000 not long ago. The owner has left the city, so has no further use for it. Mortgage $10,000, balance of $5500 must be cash.

WILSHIRE BLVD., CLOSE TO VERMONT.
$21,000.

Dutch Colonial of 9 rooms, 3 baths, with library upstairs, only 3 blocks west of the Bryson apartments. Open for inspection by appointment only. This is an opportunity to own a beautiful home for the value of the lot. The property will be worth double in a few years. Furniture for sale. Possession can be given at once.

HARVARD BLVD.
$22,500.

Look at 2201 South Harvard blvd. 90x160, improved with a strictly modern white cement home of 9 rooms, 2 baths. This is one of the show places on this beautiful boulevard and is almost new. Our price is fully $10,000 under its actual value. Open daily from 1 to 4 p.m.

SHATTO PLACE, NEAR WILSHIRE.
$25,000.

In this very desirable section we are offering a most complete home on a lot 90x190, for $25,000. This is way under value, as you will readily agree upon inspection. The owner is leaving for the East and is willing to accept this sacrifice price.

ARDMORE, JUST OFF WILSHIRE.
$35,000.

Don't ask where it is, but come in and let us show it to you. The place cost over $50,000. East front lot, 95x150. We can assure you that this is one of the most elegantly finished and appointed homes in the Wilshire district.

PALATIAL MANSION.

Located on Figueroa street, close to Adams, one of the most palatial homes in the city; 20 rooms. We understand this place cost several hundred thousand dollars and it is just as good as new. The lot today is worth the asking price of the whole property. Just to give you an idea of the interior: The woodwork in the dining-room alone cost over $10,000 to install, and the balance of the home is in keeping. In a few years this lot should bring a fancy price, for we predict Figueroa the ultimate street.

conceived the idea ago, when she was with two pairs of beautiful English Longhair rabbits. One of the bunnies died and when the pelt was laid out, Mrs. Sherman got an inspiration. Why not make it into a fur? With a book on tanning to guide her she set to work and when the pelt was dried, cured and tanned, "Why, what a lovely white fox skin!" exclaimed Mrs. Sherman's friends.

Thereupon came a great burst of light. If a rabbit skin looked like a fox skin, and wore like one, why not start in competition with the foxes and beat them at their own game?

So Mrs. Sherman went to work collecting data and purchasing fancy bunnies. She learned all that could be gotten out of books on the subject, and that was very little, for there is a paucity of information on how to make a rabbit skin into a fox fur. But after two years of constant experimenting Mrs. Sherman has become an expert in her line, and has gotten together a collection of the finest fur-bearing rabbits in the Southwest.

Mrs. Sherman now owns more than 300 fancy fur-bearing rabbits and is constantly adding to her stock. There are big, glossy, white Himalayas, whose fur closely resembles the expensive ermine, and the tiny white Japanese bunnies with the coveted dots of black tails that make their fur an almost perfect substitute for ermine. The black and white Polish rabbits also resemble the ermine. The fluffy English longhairs make excellent "fox" furs, and wear better than the genuine article, while the big Imperial Blues make as good looking "blue fox" furs and stoles as one could wish to see. The English Lopears, with their smooth, brown coat, make up for all the world like a red fox—and get away with it, and the common New Zealand rabbits, whose fur au naturel, does not look like anything but what it is, when dyed black makes up strikingly with white, brown or gray fur in muffs and neck pieces.

SIMPLE PROCESS.

The work of tanning is quite simple. The hares are skinned and the pelts stretched out on boards to dry. After the salting process they are tanned, and the fur is then ready to be combed and cut for the size required.

"There are a number of advantages in buying rabbit furs," said Mrs. Sherman yesterday. "In the first place they are about one-third as expensive as the genuine furs, and they wear even better. Anyone can follow the fashion with rabbit fur and be dressed in the very latest mode at very little cost. An 'ermine' cape can be made of the Japanese rabbit fur and only an experienced furrier can tell it from the genuine article, and the cost is one-twentieth that of a real ermine cape. Even the brown fur of the ordinary New Zealand rabbit makes up into elegant motor robes and coats; you would not dream it was anything but expensive fur."

The new rabbit industry is not confined altogether to the sale of fur. There are other angles to the business. The rabbits' superfluous hair is plucked at certain seasons. This is especially necessary in the case of the English Longhairs, whose first growth of hair is cottony and of no value for imitation furs. This hair sells for $3 a pound to hatters, who use it in the manufacture of fine felt hats. Then, too, the meat is salable. It retails from 25 cents to 35 cents per pound. Last in the list of bunny assets, are the left hind feet, which are eagerly sought by negroes, who appear at killing time to beg for the good-luck charm.

MUCH INTEREST.

The rabbit fur industry is now only in its infancy, but local rabbit raisers are interested and the Rabbit and Pet Stock Association is enthusiastically forwarding the new undertaking.

Among the many Angelenos who are interested in the new project are H. W. Brown of No. 624 South Ditman street, who owns about 150 fancy fur-bearing rabbits, and Andrew Wilson, secretary of the Rabbit and Pet Stock Association. G. Burdick of Santa Monica has fancy rabbits to the number of 250 and is one of the originators of the rabbit-fur industry.

The local furriers are not enthusiastic over the new industry. F. Obrikat of the Obrikat Fur Company voiced the sentiment of the fur dealers yesterday, when he said: "It can't be done. No rabbit-fur industry is going to transplant the genuine fur industry. Rabbit pelts are not heavy enough to make good furs, and I do not believe an imitation fur will satisfy those who wish quality as well as appearance. We buy rabbit pelts, but it is not for the purpose of making them into furs. We send them East to hatters."

The only answer the sponsors of the new industry make to the furriers' "It-can't-be-done" argument is the production of books full of orders for the new "almost real" furs. The orders are from all parts of the country and total thousands of dollars.

Commerce.

GREAT BRITAIN BECOMES WORLD'S PELT CENTER.

THE fur trade, that pioneer associated with Indians and the great north woods, with straight-shooting gentlemen in raccoon-skin caps and with Astor millions, is no longer a yokel. It has come out of the tall timber and removed its habitat to the haunts of civilization. The United States, far from giving the world its skin clothes, imports yearly pelts worth millions of dollars more than the fancy-hide exports. This rustic business, in fact, has its seat in the most densely populated centers of Europe—England and Germany.

For a decade before the outbreak of the war the United States imported an average of $20,000,000 worth of furs a year, and exported $10,000,000 worth, on the average. Germany was the greatest source of supply, furnishing during five years immediately preceding the war $29,000,000 worth, as against $17,000,000 worth from Great Britain, $10,000,000 from Canada and $3,500,000 from Russia.

Then came the war and the great German markets were closed. Total fur imports into the United States fell from the $20,000,000 average to $12,000,000 in 1914, and slightly less than $10,000,000 in 1915.

But by the beginning of the fiscal year 1916 Great Britain had made the most of the opportunity created by the exclusion of Germany from the trade, and, during that twelve-month period, imports of furs into the United States again rose to the $20,000,000 average, with Great Britain furnishing most of the goods. And it is calculated the total imports for the calendar year 1916 were greater than those of any year in America's history.

All this hairy hide is not raised in London suburbs, however. Great Britain's traders draw on sources of supply in Africa, South America, Asia and colonies other than Canada, transshipping to the United States. Similarly, while Russia is a great fur-producing country, she has made a poor showing in exports to the United States, and it is stated a large proportion of the German pre-war shipments originated in Russia and Siberia.

Our export fur trade dropped to $4,000,000 in the fiscal year 1915, but with readjustment abroad there was created a greater demand for American goods, as well as a greater supply of the skins America buys, and in the fiscal year 1916 the exports total rose to $9,000,000, or nearly normal.

SINGED BY DEATH.

Electrician Touches High-voltage Wire; Still Alive.

Thomas Wilber, an electrician of No. 516 South Gates street, miraculously escaped death yesterday afternoon while working on the elevator of the Union League building, at Second and Hill streets. Mr. Wilber accidentally seized a 3000-volt wire while working around the dynamo that worked the elevator. But the only damage he received was a slight burn.

ACQUIRES GROVE.

A thirty-acre Valencia grove and country home on Telegraph road, Riverside, was transferred during the past week by Duke & Smith to D. Wiebers, of this city. Mr. Wiebers gave in part exchange a brick apartment house, with an adjacent residence property, near St. James Park, Los Angeles, paying the balance in cash for the grove. The consideration for the ranch is given at $60,000 and that for the Los Angeles property at $33,500. The deal was handled by W. A. & W. W. Ward.

FINDS SUBSTITUTE FOR A RECEIVER.

COURT TIES ACCUSED COMPANY OFFICER'S HANDS.

And Business will Proceed Under Temporary Arrangement Till Suit for Accounting, Return of Shares and Ousting of President and Secretary is Heard.

While Judge Jackson yesterday denied the application of stockholders of the Bankers Bond and Mortgage Company for a temporary receiver, the trial of the issues raised in the suit will begin Friday. Under a working agreement suggested by the court, it was ordered that H. C. Williams, president, shall issue no checks without the approval of the attorneys representing both sides; incur no obligations in behalf of the corporation; dispose of no assets, and shall not open the safe deposit box in which the bonds and other securities are kept, without the presence of the attorneys.

Emory C. Brace, the secretary, was stated by Mr. Williams to be in Chicago and Mr. Williams further said he did not expect Mr. Brace to return. It was said his property here is for sale and that his furniture had been disposed of.

The complaint sets up that the president and secretary issued to themselves stock worth $20,000 for services they did not render, and paid themselves salaries and expenses, the sum totaling $63,436.05. The expenses charged up, it is alleged, covered mainly sums expended for cigars, entertainment and traveling expenses from which the corporation derived no benefit.

A further allegation is that the capital has been impaired to the extent at least of $160,000 and that the corporation's business has been managed in an extravagant and careless manner. It is asked that an accounting be had, the shares of stock alleged to have been illegally issued returned and Mr Williams and Mr. Brace removed as officers.

MATRIMONIAL "AD" LEADS TO COURT.

SEPARATE MAINTENANCE SUIT AFTER CYCLONIC WOOING.

Revenue Service Man Who Specified His Wife Should be Thus and so Married Suddenly, by Leap-year Route, He Says. Charges Bandied.

The specifications under which Irvin C. Faulk, who is in the employ of the United States Revenue Service, proposed to get married were that the wife should be economical and anxious to have a home "free from debt and money for extraordinary circumstances," and would "agree with him in the matter of cooking," as he was following Dr. Tilden's ideas thereof.

Mr. Faulk did get married. The courtship was a cyclonic affair of two weeks and a leap-year proposal, the bride being Olive H. Faulk, and the medium through which the couple became acquainted, a "Cupid's Column," in a Pennsylvania matrimonial paper. In "Cupid's Column," Mrs. Faulk is alleged, in the answer filed yesterday to her suit for separate maintenance, to have described herself, naming her accomplishments. Mr. Faulk met her October 1, 1916, at Butler, Pa.; renewed the acquaintance at Pittsburgh on the 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th of that month, on which dates he says she discussed matrimony, and he says she proposed at Butler on the 17th. He consented and they were married at Newcastle.

The couple separated in this city January 9. Mrs. Faulk says her husband locked the door of their chamber and scared her so that she jumped out of a second-story window, falling twenty feet. Mr. Faulk, she alleges, has $10,000 in securities, and she demands permanent alimony.

Mr. Faulk says he has not that sum and relates that on the day of the separation his wife sought every opportunity to create a disturbance. She refused to cook or eat breakfast and threatened to jump out of the window, he declares. When he remonstrated, he says, she hit him "a vicious blow in the eye," breaking his glasses and cutting his cheek. She then went to the window, swung herself out and alighted in soft dirt seven feet below, according to his version.

The conduct of his wife, he declares, was part of a premeditated scheme and design to mulct him of his money. Mrs. Faulk is 29; Mr. Faulk, 42. She is a trained nurse, Mr. Faulk says.

WILL WAR DELAYED.

By Absence of Witnesses Who State They Know of Document a Woman Seeks to Compel Her Step-father to Produce in Court.

Because two witnesses who are supposed to know that Mrs. Emma E. Thomas left a will were not able to be in the Probate Court yesterday, when the legal battle of Mrs. Annette Froiseth, her daughter, to secure special letters of administration, came before Judge Rives for trial, the case was continued until the 23rd inst.

Mrs. Froiseth alleges her mother made a will and is seeking to have her step-father, Robert W. Thomas, bring it into court for probate. He testified his wife left no will. Mrs. Anna Wheeler testified she saw a will and heard it read.

Mrs. Thomas deeded her property to her husband and he had this deed recorded the day after she died.

Commenting on the case, Judge Rives said the only legal question before the court, as far as he can see, is the delivery of the deed. The latter was taken out of a safe deposit box by Mr. Thomas, the box being jointly used by himself and wife.

DRUG OR NERVES?

Woman with Mysterious Ailment Conceals Name from Police.

A "mystery woman" giving the name of Catherine Shaughnessy was treated at the Receiving Hospital yesterday morning, apparently for "nerves." When she was taken from a room at No. 618 North Alameda street, it was thought she had swallowed poison.

The woman, who is about 30 years old, declared she had not done so. She was apparently suffering from the effects of some drug, which she declared had been given to her in some wine. She steadfastly refused to tell her true name, stating her family would never recover from the stock if told she was ill.

BIG COUNTY TAXES IN THE BALANCE.

IN MOVE TO DEED TIDELANDS TO THE CITY.

Deputy County Counsel Warns Supervisors Some Owners of Harbor Property may Escape Payment of Sums They Owe and of Future Levies.

Calling the attention of the Board of Supervisors to the fact that certain owners or claimants of valuable tidelands at Los Angeles Harbor propose to deed the property to the city of Los Angeles in return for a lease to the lands for a long term of years, Deputy County Counsel Murphy yesterday made this statement:

"It may be that the city is acquiring something more than the mere naked title to these tidelands in consideration of the proposed long-term lease. If not, the city will get no benefit from the transaction until the end of the long-term lease. However that may be, it is possible that the primary purpose of the offer to the owners of these tidelands to deed the same to the city and take back a long-term lease, is to evade these back taxes due this county of nearly $200,000, and to escape future taxation."

It is understood one of the land owners owes $170,000 back taxes and that others owe large sums. The amount of county taxes involved is sufficient, Mr. Murphey states, to justify warning the Supervisors that this money will be lost if action is not taken to prevent it. If the proposed agreement goes through, the county will be deprived of all future taxes on these valuable tidelands, it is stated.

EXCITED ADVANCE IN PRICES SOUTH.

TRADE ENTHUSIASTIC OVER PRESIDENT'S ACTION.

Announcement of Break in Diplomatic Relations with Germany has Decided Effect Upon New York Market—Range at New Orleans on Hedge Basis.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 3.—There was an excited advance in cotton today upon the announcement of the break in diplomatic relations with Germany. May contracts which opened at 14.27 and had sold down to 13.93 on the early declines, suddenly jumped to 15.20, a gain of $6.35 a bale from the low point and a gain of $5.60 per bale compared with Friday's final quotation. That delivery closed at 15.10, with the general list excited at a net advance of from 90 to 108 points for the day. The announcement from Washington came as a relief from uncertainty, extreme nervousness and drastic liquidation from which the market had been suffering during the past two days. The trade seemed to be prepared for it and expressed its enthusiasm over the President's action by a quick upward turn in prices. The opening was steady at an advance of 14 to 23 points, but this bulge met scattering selling from commission houses and southern sources. The market eased off in consequence and the declines extended to a matter of 13 to 22 points toward the middle of the short session. It was at this period that the market suddenly turned firm and advanced rapidly. Liverpool was a particularly active buyer, two houses alone being credited with purchasing approximately 45,000 bales. Closing reactions of 8 to 10 points reflected realizing which was probably promoted by uncertainty as to the effect of the week's developments on southern spot holders.

TALKS OF MORALS.

Efficiency Association Secretary Says Clean-up is Needed.

Robert C. Barton, executive secretary of the Morals Efficiency Association, was the chief speaker at a meeting of the City Club yesterday. He made a statement of alleged vice conditions in this city and county and especially dwelt on the effect he says sweet wines have upon young girls. He stated taxicabs are in many cases used for improper purposes and that the Redlight Abatement Law is violated at numerous places in the county. He asked for co-operation in the association's plans for combatting the social evil.

Rev. Dana W. Bartlett, in seconding the request for support of the association, stated conditions here are not so bad as in former times and that the Redlight Abatement Law has proven a good weapon against vice.

SUDDEN RISE IN PRICES ON THE STOCK MARKET.

Response to Breaking off of Relations with Germany in Financial Centers is Spectacular—Bethlehem Steel Gains Thirty Points and United States is Also Most Buoyant.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The stock market's response to the breaking off of relations with Germany was a sudden upward rush of prices, many shares comprising the war class recovering from early declines of 2 to 5 points and finishing at net gains of 3 to 10, while Bethlehem Steel having at the outset, closed at a gain of 30 points with 10⅛ for the new (non-voting) stock.

More than 200,000 shares of Steel To United States Steel more than any other speculative favorite was due the buoyant rally of the latter part of the brief session. Steel opened at a maximum gain of 1¼ points, forfeiting more than 2 points on receipt of the news from Washington and carrying the balance of the active list down with it. On the rebound, however, the stock was absorbed with such ease and in such round amounts as to inspire confidence and bring about a general readjustment.

More than 200,000 shares of steel common changed hands, fully one-half in the extremely active last thirty minutes. Its maximum of the day was 104⅝ and its final figure 104, a net gain of 3⅝.

STRIKING REVERSALS.

Other striking reversals from the uncertainty and hesitation of the first hour included Industrial Alcohol, which advanced to 123¼ after declining to 111⅛; Central Leather at an extreme gain of 8¼, General Motors, 8; Republic Iron, 9; Texas Company, 10; Crucible Steel, 6, and Airbrake, 5. Coppers rose 2 to 3 points, Utah showing marked firmness, even when other stocks were manifesting irregularity.

Relatively rails were less prominent in the buying and covering movements, displaying some of yesterday's heaviness, but Reading, New York Central, Atchison and Northern Pacific finished the day at substantial advances. Total sales, 1,074,000 shares.

Bonds failed to keep pace with the stock list, all international issues, except American foreign securities, falling to lowest quotations yet reported. Railway convertibles and industrials eased 1 to 2 points. Total sales, par value, $3,350,000.

United States bonds were unchanged on call during the week.

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS.

All other developments of the week were eclipsed by the crisis which culminated today with the break with Germany. Prices, more or less erratic of recent days, were inclined to waver on receipt of the news, but rebounded with such strength as to convey the impression that support had come from the foremost financial interests. It is generally assumed that the bankers of the country have prepared so far as possible for any emergency. The European war has strengthened the resources of the United States to an extent never before deemed possible. As a result of the break it was expected that exports must necessarily experience serious curtailment for a time, but such loss would be likely to be neutralized by increased home demand.

There was only a slight reflection today of the new situation upon the market for foreign exchange. Rates on Germany actually hardened slightly with immediate easing off of remittances to Paris, while sterling held firm. International bonds were more directly affected, especially issues underwritten by American bankers for account of any of the Entente Allies registering lowest fluctuation since their first movement.

Railway issues will be guided by the course to be taken by the government. New bond issues to meet contingencies are expected to find ready absorption by banking institutions and investors.

IRREGULAR TRADING ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

UNION OIL RECOVERS AT THE CLOSE.

Associated Rallies—Mascot in Better Shape—Arizona Ray Advances—Other Mining Shares Weaken—Big Jim Loses—Home Preferred Soft.

Although trading on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday morning was very irregular, there was no exhibition of the weakness which was prevalent the two previous days. As a matter of fact, some of the leaders advanced. Union Oil after selling down to 121.00, recovered to 124.75, the same quotation at which it closed on Friday. Associated rallied to 69.75 and Mascot was stronger at 1.42. The mines, with few exceptions, were off. Arizona Ray was in better shape on optimistic reports from the company's property, selling at 12, but the Oatmans were rather wobbly. Thus Big Jim, the favorite in that group, opened weaker at 1.19, droped to 1.15 and then closed at 1.16½. United Eastern sold at 4.40 and United Northern and Lucky Boy were firm. San Francisco continued to move upward when the stock brought 4⅛ and bids were fairly persistent at that figure. It is expected that this bullish movement in San Francisco presages the early resumption of development work on the company's valuable property in Oatman and for the last few days shrewd operators have been picking up the stock.

Home Telephone preferred was softer and sales were recorded at 83.50 to 83.75. The common stock was offered at 55.00, with no interest shown in the security by traders. The feeling that the merger deal would be concluded in a short time has been given up by a great many brokers, who fear that the crisis with Germany will prevent any action by the Attorney-General of the United States for the time being. Los Angeles Investment was neglected and there were also no transactions in the bank or bond lists.

We have a crew of men getting the property in shape preparatory to the installation of our 20-ton mill. We have purchased most of the equipment of the mill. We expect to be financed within thirty days at the most, and I expect to start for the property within six weeks for the purpose of starting the installation of the mill.

I look for quite a raise in the value of the stock in the near future, principally because of our financial success and the early prospect of milling operations. Our capitalization is 250,000 shares, which means a larger interest to you on each share you buy than is usual in most mining companies and it means that we have the confidence the mine will pay us, and pay us well without resorting to the methods of making money out of stock sales.

Send your reservation for stock in at once while the price is still low, or write for information.

LOMBARD & SON., INC., Underwood Building, San Francisco, offer to lend 40% of the real value of irrigated Alfalfa, Vineyard or orchard farms in California where the security justifies loans of $45.00 to $50.00 per acre. Amortized or Rural Credit 20-year plan, moderate payments annually of principal and interest, an insurance against hard times; also 10-year plan with liberal prepayment privileges after two years. These long time loans are especially desirable on partially improved farms, or where owners desire to further develop by increasing acreage in Alfalfa, orchards or vineyards. Young vineyards or orchards require several years' growth before becoming profitable. These long time loans are peculiarly adapted to California. Describe farm fully in first letter giving legal description, number of acres in different crops, improvements, irrigation water supply, amount of present incumbrance. LOANS CLOSED PROMPTLY.

WHEAT PRICES SHOOT SKYWARD.

RISE OF FOURTEEN CENTS IN THE QUOTATIONS.

Excited Buying on the Part of Speculators Who had Overestimated Depressing Effect of Severance of American Relations is Chiefly Responsible.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Wheat prices shot skyward today after a drop of 6 cents. The rise following amounted to 14 cents, the greatest change values have ever shown in a single day since the beginning of the European war. Excited buying on the part of the speculators who had overestimated the depressing effect of a severance of American relations with Germany was chiefly responsible. The close was wild in wheat at 1.67¾ to 1.68¾ for May and 1.47¾ to 1.48¾ for July, with less trading as a whole, 3¾ to 7¾ above yesterday's finish. Corn wound up at a net advance of 1 to 1½ and oats with a gain of ¾ to 1. In provisions the result varied from 7 decline to a rise of 5. Demand for wheat on the ascent of prices largely came from houses that were said to have sold short millions of bushels before the notice was received of Germany's decision for a renewal of unrestricted sea war. Efforts to even up short sales of wheat and to get out of the market before the week-end were conducted on a huge scale by the minority who were caught on the bear side. Corn and oats, like wheat, displayed temporary acute weakness in response to the news of the diplomatic rupture with Germany. Provisions gave way as much as 57 in some cases owing to the disclosure of the stand taken by the government at Washington.

OIL PROFITS

Take advantage of a timely situation and get into oil—we are advising the purchase of some of the dividend payers, but are particularly advising the new oils—the ones that are on the point of "coming in."

We unhesitatingly advise the purchase of Los Angeles-Ventura

now selling at 25c. This company is operating 2000 acres in the Ventura-San Fernando Oil District—with the Standard Oil, Union Oil and Doheny as neighbors. Already $60,000 has been expended in development work. The company has two wells fully equipped. Well No. 1 is now down 2600 feet and has begun to penetrate the chocolate formation—the gas pressure on Oil Well No. 1 has penetrated the earth with such volume that when ignited lights the surrounding country.

The Los Angeles-Ventura Oilfields Company is incorporated for $2,000,000, par value $1.00—with $1,000,000 worth of stock in the treasury.

It's a buy at 25c, and we look for higher prices shortly.

The Present Situation

It seems that the most critical phase of the international situation has passed. Diplomatic relations have been severed with Germany. War may or may not be declared. It seems to be a foregone conclusion that even in the case of an actual declaration of war with Germany, which is not probable, there is no possibilty of real fighting. Under the circumstances, actual conflict would be practically impossible.

Under these conditions we desire to urge our clients to refrain from selling any of the proven stocks, particularly the gold mining issues. It is as certain as anything possibly can be that these issues will be in special demand after the present situation has adjusted itself.

Many investors will be panicky, and securities that are absolutely sound will be carried down many points below their fundamental worth purely in sympathy with a temporarily demoralized general market.

The stocks that are backed by actual ore reserves may be depended upon to show some remarkable advances over their present prices. The gold and silver stocks will be among those most favored, as both these metals are assured of a good market.

To those of our clients who hold Big Jim, we want to go on record at this particular time with the most positive statement that Big Jim stands today a real gold mine with ore reserves much in excess of the present market value of the stock. In the past Big Jim has withstood some severe shocks in the market and is now known to be one of the country's most seasoned metal mining issues.

The main shaft is now down to a depth of 596 feet. You know what the mine situation is; you know what the opening of the 600 level will mean to stockholders.

We strongly advise the immediate purchase of Big Jim at the present market, knowing that those who take advantage of the present low prices may be assured of realizing substantial profits within a short time.

Don't wait to write. Wire your order at our expense.

Pay Ore from the Grass Roots
BENDIGO
$45.00 a Ton

At the present price of copper this would be more than $100.00 per ton. This means that the Bendigo is one of the richest producing copper prospects in the world.

It means that about 90% of all the ore thus far taken out for development purposes has been SO RICH that it has been sold to the smelters.

It means that Bendigo has AVERAGED on its entire smelter shipments of more than 500 tons

It means that the gold values alone should pay the operating expenses of this mine.

I can show you original smelter receipts proving these statements.

CONTRACT LET FOR THEATER.

Superstructure of Splendid Upper Broadway Pile to be Started at Once.

The R. H. Arnold Company of this city was yesterday awarded the general contract for the construction of the magnificent theater and studio building of the Stability Building Company at Third and Broadway. Application also was filed yesterday morning by Albert C. Martin, as architect of the structure, for a permit to cover its erection.

The general contract for the big upper Broadway playhouse includes the construction of the walls, floors and partitions, and was let at a figure of $140,000. The Baker Iron Works was recently given the steel contract at $100,000, and the Pacific Coast Steel Company the reinforcing steel contract at $20,000. C. F. Weber has received the contract for the seats of the theater auditorium at $15,000. These, it is understood, will be as fine as any ever installed in an American showhouse.

Among other contracts yet to be awarded are those for marble and tile, plumbing, heating and power, and painting and decoration. The cost of the building as stated on the application for the permit is $500,000, which figure is not inclusive of certain appointments to be put in by Sid Grauman, as tenant of the theater.

Mr. Martin stated last night that no time would be lost in starting the superstructure of the splendid pile, the steel being now on the way to Los Angeles and the enormous amount of cement demanded being ready for the contractor in charge. The excavation, foundation and footing work has now been practically completed by the C. J. Kubach Company, this $30,000 contract having been finished twenty days ahead of the time specified for it.

The building, which is to be ready for occupancy next September, will follow Spanish lines and will cover a ground area of 120x196 feet. The Broadway facade will be twelve stories high and will be given over to studios. The theater portion will extend along Third street and will have a height equivalent to four stories.

OBJECT TO CODE.

Organizations Think the Ordinance Too Stringent.

The proposed new building code of Los Angeles, drafted by a special committee of architects and engineers working in conjunction with the municipal building department, and first introduced to the City Council in May of last year, is to come up for final hearing February 13. The code has been much discussed in building circles and the delay in its official consideration has been largely occasioned by the desire of the Council to give all persons interested an opportunity to present arguments for and against the measure.

The last postponement in the hearing was made to afford those obecting to provisions in the code a chance to present their opinions in writing. The time for filing such statements was up on February 1. Several communications were received by the Council and will be given consideration. One of these was from the Building Owners' and Managers' Association and the Los Angeles Realty Board, being signed by Dean Mason and F. W. Flint, Jr., for the former organization, and by P. D. Rowan and J. M. Best, for the latter.

The two organizations object to those provisions of the code which would tend to make the new building regulations generally retroactive. They assert that if a building at the time of its construction conformed to the ordinances, the owner should not, excepting in extreme cases, be compelled to make changes every time new provisions go into effect. If builders were expected to change their structures every time a new ordinance went into effect, they declare, no one could ever be sure that his work was done when he made an improvement. In cases where there is no question that an old-time building is a menace, the communication asserts, there should be special ways in which a remedy could be reached. Such cases, the organizations contend, should be handled strictly on their individual merits.

The same communication questions the advisability of allowing proposed changes in the height limits of various types of buildings to go through. The present regulations in this respect are sufficient, it is declared, and more stringent laws would make building unprofitable from the owners' point of view. Existing laws safeguard the safety of the public, according to the writers.

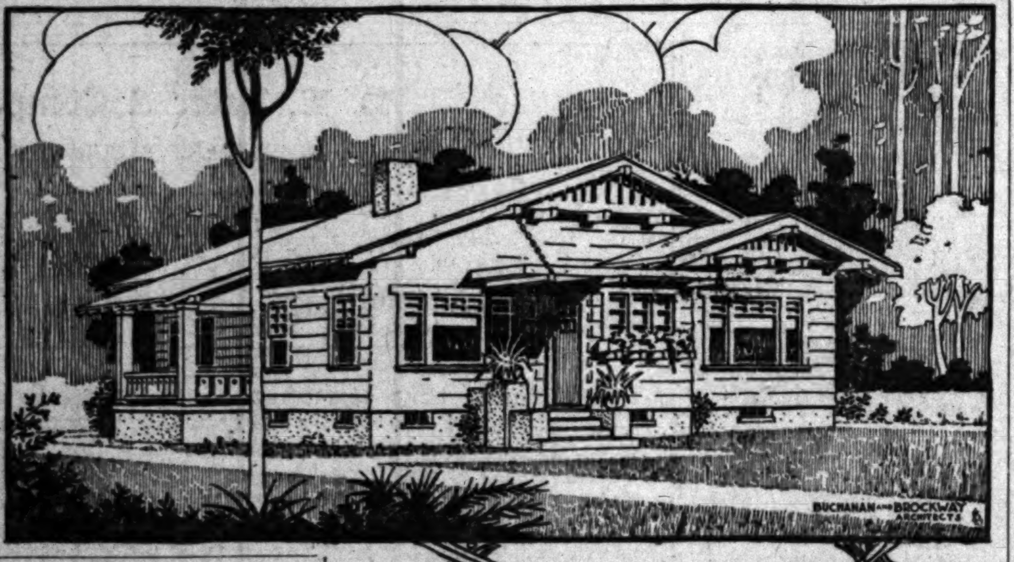
STORES LEASED.

A. G. Hemming, manager of the rental department of W. B. Merwin & Co. reports the leasing of stores in a new store building just completed at the northeast corner of Hollywood boulevard and Western avenue to following businesses: Hollywood Mercantile Company; Foot Hill Pharmacy; Poppy Restaurant; E. E. English, grocery; E. G. Erwin, real estate; Dr. G. C. Farmer; Foot Hill Tailor Establishment; John Petos, barber shop; R. D. Curran, jewelry and art goods, and to J. B. Wallich, shoe shop.

BUNGALOW COURT.

W. M. Knapp, owner of a large site on Maltman avenue near Sunset boulevard, has had plans prepared for a bungalow court of seven buildings which he expects to erect on that property. In the group will be six four-room bungalows and an eight-room double bungalow. W. A. Duncombe designed the group and has the contract for its construction.

Attractive Homes of Moderate Cost. No. 13.



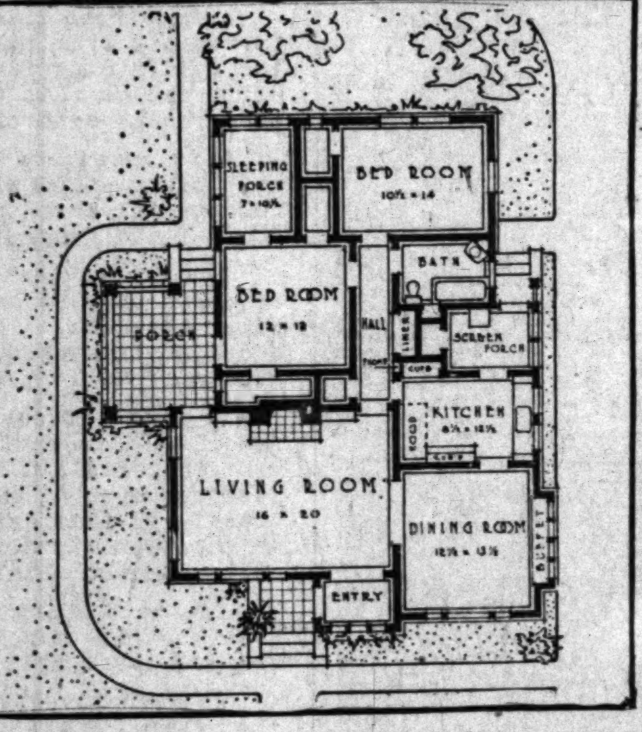
A CONVENIENT PLAN.

No Space Wasted in New Pasadena Bungalow—Simplicity Keynote.

A bungalow that combines economy and convenience of plan to a highly satisfying degree is illustrated in the "moderate-cost home" series today. The dwelling as pictured is now being built for a Pasadena owner. It was designed by C. W. Buchanan and L. C. Brockway of that city. The architects give its cost at from $2800 to $3000, depending upon certain details of interior finish.

The bungalow has gray walls and white trim and owes its charm largely to its simplicity. Projecting beam ends break the roof edge and the gables, but they are few and are placed where they will be effective. The roof is of the composition type and unadorned with the "horns" and other curlicues apparently considered so indispensable by many builders. The entrance consists of a small square of cement, sheltered overhead by a "hood," and having pedestals at the corners for potted palms or other plants. There is a larger porch at the side.

The projection of the dining-room beyond the living-room, it will be noted from the floor plan, gives space for a small entry, insuring a privacy that could not be realized by having direct entrance into the main rooms. The living-room, 16x20 feet in size, has windows on two sides, while a French window opening into the side porch will let in light from still another side. The dining-room is 12x13 feet. Back of it and in a direct line with it along its side of the house are the kitchen and screen porch. The two bedrooms, sleeping porch and bath are ranged around a hallway which practically bisects the house from the living-room back.



A convenient and economical plan.

This six-room bungalow was designed by C. W. Buchanan and L. C. Brockway of Pasadena. Its cost is estimated at from $2800 to $3000.

FACES NEW PIER.

Attractive Business Block Completed at Santa Mnoica Beach.

The new Looff pier at Santa Monica, one of the largest amusement projects of its kind in the country, will be completed in time for the opening of the summer beach season this year, according to those in charge of the structural work on the huge pleasure wharf. The pier, which parallels and is connected with the Santa Monica municipal pier, promises to be one of the great attractions of the west beaches. A considerable portion of it finished last summer and fall is now in use, having been improved with various buildings and amusement devices.

An attractive business building erected in anticipation of the crowd-attracting possibilities of the new pier has just been completed on Ocean Promenade, directly facing the new sea-going amusement structure, in the Looff Pier Tract. The site of the building is one of a number in the same shore subdivision sold recently by W. I. Hollingsworth & Co., as agents for the property. The building itself is of glazed brick front and handsome in design. B. J. Albers of Lankershim, the owner, has just leased it.

TO PLAN BANK.

A. C. Martin has been commissioned to prepare plans for a $100,000 banking-house to be built by the First National Bank of Oxnard on a new site recently purchased by that institution in the Ventura county city. The structure will be one of the finest of its kind in the smaller cities of Southern California and will follow classic lines. It will be two stories in height and 65 by 100 feet in dimensions. The walls will be faced with terra cotta. The interior finish is to be in marble.

TRADES APARTMENTS.

J. C. Floyd reports the exchange of the Argyle Apartments, No. 1835 Argyle street, Hollywood, owned by D. V. Houser and valued at $40,000, to Belle Mathew, who gives in trade, eighty acres in alfalfa, one-fourth mile south of Wineville, Riverside county, the property being known as the T. J. Barker Ideal Ranch. The trade is stated to have been on an even basis. Mr. Floyd represented both sides.

FRUITLAND ACRES.

The following sales of lands at Fruitland Acres in the San Fernando Valley are reported by the Janss Investment Company for the past week: To Ira A. Sprouse, five acres, $1000; to E. M. Taylor, eight acres, improved with three-room bungalow, $2000, and to J. S. Swan, fifteen acres, $3000. Each of the purchasers, it is stated by the company's representatives, will plant his land to potatoes.

COURT EXCHANGED.

Large Pasadena Income Property Traded for Uplands Citrus Grove and Cash Difference—Former Holding Consists of Twenty-three Bungalows.

One of the important transactions announced by local realty brokers during the past week was an exchange involving Bowen Court, in Pasadena, one of the largest and finest bungalow courts in Southern California. In the deal, the well-known Crown City holding was transferred by its owner and builder, Frank L. Bowen, to J. W. Stowe, the latter giving in trade a twenty-acre orange grove at Uplands, and paying a cash difference. Both sides were represented by M. T. Hildinger of the Flack Realty Company. The Pasadena property, according to the agents, went in at a valuation of $85,000, the citrus grove changing hands at a consideration of $65,000.

Bowen Court was one of the earlier improvements of its kind built in Pasadena and one of the first of large size to be built in this, the native land of the bungalow court. It consists of twenty-three bungalows, twelve of them single houses and eleven containing two complete apartments each. The site fronts on Colorado street and is "L" shaped, its extreme dimensions being approximately 350x150 feet. The large space inclosed within the buildings is laid out as a private park, one of the beautiful features of which is a Japanese garden.

The Uplands property is in ten-year-old trees and is highly improved, the buildings being new and modern. Mr. Bowen will hold it for investment, making still further improvements. Mr. Stowe will personally manage his Pasadena acquisition.

FLAT PROJECTS.

Several new flat projects were announced as ready to go ahead in different parts of the city during the past week. Work will be started within the next day or two upon a twenty-room flat of hollow tile construction for Miss Cora Lane at De Longpre avenue and Vine street, Hollywood. F. W. Murphy will start a twenty-room flat this week at No. 2123 West Sixteenth street. A twenty-room flat is to be started at once by Arthur White at No. 1722 North Vine street, Hollywood. Three flat buildings of sixteen rooms each are to be started within the next few days by the L. F. S. Syndicate for G. G. Detzer at Nos. 2162, 2170 and 2178 Highland avenue, respectively. Fact and Comment.

west Los Angeles is obvious. Northwest Los Angeles and its adjoining suburbs need a short route into the downtown district, and traffic arteries that open up new and comparatively undeveloped areas cannot but benefit all of Los Angeles.

One thing more these improvements will do, however, that has been largely overlooked. They will start such a wave of real estate and building activity as has not been seen here in several years. It is true that this activity will be largely confined, for a while, at least, to the territories immediately helped by the tunnel and boulevards, but this will not be for long. Real estate men and careful observers generally know and declare that the one thing needed to revive real estate and structural operations on a big, general scale in this community is some impetus that will "start things." Nothing else that could be imagined is so calculated to have this desirable effect as is this opening up of the sightly, but all too inaccessible northwest.

MUST PAY LICENSE.

Supreme Court Holds Railway Lying Wholly in Nevada, but Keeping Offices in California, is Interstate Carrier, Liable for Fee.

The Supreme Court, it was announced yesterday, has refused the writ of mandate prayed for by the Bullfrog and Goldfield Railway Company, to require Secretary of State Jordan to issue a license to a designated California agent upon whom process may be served.

It was alleged that a certified copy of the articles of incorporation filed in Nevada and a copy of the resolution adopted by the board of directors asking that such a license be allowed, as required by the California laws, had been presented to the Secretary of State, but no license fee as required from corporations doing business in this State was forthcoming.

It was shown that the line of the road was entirely in the State of Nevada, and the question to be determined was whether it was engaged in interstate commerce and liable for the fee. The general offices of the line were in the State, the meetings of the directors were held here, the purchasing department and the clerical force were housed here, but the management of the road alleged that as its track and rolling stock were in an adjoining State, California had no power to exact a license under the State laws.

The Supreme Court discharged the writ and if the road wants a duly recognized agent in California for legal and other purposes, it must pay the tax required of railroads doing business here, as the court holds it is engaged in interstate commerce.

Bethune, Prescott, Ariz.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the family residence. Dr. Hugh Walker of Long Beach and Rev. Herbert Booth Smith of Immanuel Presbyterian Church will officiate. The pallbearers will be Wesley Clark, Shirley Ward, F. C. Tyson, Edward Harding, Forrest Stanton and Ray Maynard.

Plenty of Everything Almost for the Picking

If you have a yard big enough for even a small garden, or if there is room in a nearby vacant lot, you can grow more than you can eat of your favorite garden things.

The most necessary things for garden success are seeds of proven quality, a piece of good soil, and a very little labor. Sunshine and rain will do most of the work.

FERRY'S SEEDS

are good seeds to plant. They are selected from families of seeds with known histories for strong, plentiful growth, sturdy development, luscious quality. They are pedigreed seeds, each kind grown in that particular garden spot of the world where that particular flower or vegetable gains its greatest perfection.

These seeds are sent to the Ferry greenhouses and trial gardens just outside of Detroit. There they are tested for quality and trueness to type. Only those that test out according to standard qualities are considered fit to carry the Ferry label or badge of quality.

Gardeners everywhere plant Ferry's Seeds because thus they are surer of success. Doubtful seeds are dear at any price.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in everyday life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

IT IS BETTER TO BUY A HIGH-GRADE USED CAR
THAN A CHEAP NEW ONE.

For Sale—1916 model touring cars below their actual market value. I have four of them of different popular models and were I a speculator in used cars I would be asking from a hundred to a hundred and fifty dollars more for each one of them. But as they were taken in trade on the new Chandler and as we have made our profit in the new car sale and as I want to move these cars at once so as to make room for future trades on new cars, I am selling them at prices that are right and adding a guarantee and service to convince you that I know them to be in good condition and can, therefore, afford to guarantee them.

FOR SALE—A FORD WITH ELECTRIC STARTER, generator, 5 demountable rims and casings and a 3-speed latest type transmission would cost you considerably more than I am asking for a late 1915 Studebaker light 5-passenger, 25-horsepower touring car, that has considerably more class than a Ford and can be operated at not over 5 per cent. difference in up-keep. This car honestly has not gone more than 6000 miles, and was traded in by Mr. Mutens of 638 W. Pico st., who needed a seven-passenger car and purchased a new 1917 Chandler. USED CAR DEPARTMENT,

EARLE C. ANTHONY, INC., 1010 S. HOPE.
New cars in appearance and used cars in prices.

That is why, the Earle C. Anthony, Inc., Used Car Department sold and delivered forty cars in January and 42 cars in December.

Five out of ten people inquire the first time they come in our door: "Where are your Used Cars?"

The whole secret of our success is there.

Lots of people would rather buy a good used car than a cheap new car.

But—they don't want a used car that looks like the wreck of the Hesperus,

And—they do want assurance that a responsible house stands back of their car and guarantees its mechanical condition.

Therefore—they are coming in increasing numbers to the Used Car Department of Earle C. Anthony, Inc., and buying Used Cars that have been handsomely refinished in the Anthony paint shop and repair shop, and that are backed by the Anthony Coupon Service system. And they get a car they can be proud of at a price they are glad to pay.

We have between 75 and 80 cars in stock most of the time, and the majority have been taken in within the last 30 days; there are some very attractive cars on our floor just now that have just come from our paint shop, and which will undoubtedly be sold this week. Come in today and look them over. Open Sunday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

THIS IS WHAT I CALL HARD LUCK. I HAVE just had my five-passenger Franklin overhauled and painted ready for spring and summer, and yesterday received word from my concern to go back to Chicago, so I must sell out. This machine cost $3800, so I went to several dealers and they said I should get from $850 to $1000, and that they could get that much within a short time, but I want to go at once, so I have put a price on it that will sell it quick, SIX HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS. It is in perfect condition, and, of course, has all the latest improvements, electric lights and starter, etc. The car can be seen Sunday at my residence, 759 OTTAWA ST.

SPRING SEMESTER OPENS TOMORROW.

INCREASED ENROLLMENTS AT Y.M.C.A. SCHOOLS.

Tourists are Sending Their Boys During Winter and Many New Courses will be Offered in the Various Departments to Attract Students.

Opening of the spring semester at the Y.M.C.A. schools will take place tomorrow. Increased enrollments are expected in the college preparatory, grammar grade and technical courses. Tourists who are spending the winter in Los Angeles and Southern California have arranged for their boys in the Y.M.C.A. schools.

Public speaking under Prof. A. W. Olmstead, coach of the Manual Arts debating team, is announced to begin Tuesday and to continue thereafter throughout the spring semester. Spanish classes under the direction of Louis Bobadilla also will begin at that time.

A post-graduate course of lectures on constructive accounting will be offered Wednesday by the accountancy school, with Frederick F. Hahn, Los Angeles representative of Haskins & Sells, public accountants of New York, as the instructor. In this course the unique plan of organizing a corporation, drawing up a charter, acting as directors and then going into bankruptcy and reorganizing the business will be adopted as a feature of practical instruction. The new semester in accountancy will open February 13. The enrollment in the accountancy school is now in excess of 100 young men.

Salesmanship courses will be offered February 15 under the direction of E. H. Hadlock. At the same time a novel course in Red Cross first aid work will begin, with Dr. R. G. Whitlock of this city as instructor. The latest methods of the national Red Cross Society will be followed in this instruction and the course is scheduled to continue for ten weeks.

Reports from the Y.M.C.A. auto school show a membership enrollment for January of sixty-two students, many of whom are from small towns and country districts in Southern California and adjoining States.

VETERAN TAKEN.

Man Long Associated With Growth of the City as Agent for Large Estates Dead—He Helped to Save Exposition Park's Site.

With a record of thirty-seven years in Los Angeles, during which he notably aided in the growth of the city as a tax expert and agent for large estates, Edward A. De Camp, passed away at his residence, No. 4612 Russell avenue, early yesterday afternoon. He was 74 years of age. Funeral serviceces will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the chapel of Pierce Brothers. Interment will be at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Mr. De Camp was born in Cincinnati and was a graduate of Annapolis. He served through the Civil War as a first lieutenant in the navy and was with Farragut's command when the latter went up the Mississippi River.

Associated with the late Randall Hewitt he was instrumentel in securing Exposition Park to the State when there was a movement on foot to place the property on the market as homesite land. He was also secretary for a number of years of the Sixth District Agricultural Association, managing the entries of Los Angeles in the State Fairs.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Myra B. De Camp, one son, Ray De Camp, of No. 4351 Russell avenue, and one daughter, Mrs. George A. Pfaffman of South Dakota.

Rominger Bill.

MOTOR VEHICLE OWNERS OBJECT

Will Oppose Measure Taxing Busses and Trucks.

Claim Big Investment will be Injured by Law.

Council to Draft Ordinance Regulating Jitneys.

"If the Rominger bill, now before the State Legislature, becomes a law it will operate to drive from the roads of California practically every motor-driven vehicle used for the carrying of freight and passengers and will be a decided retrograde step in the development of transportation. It will seriously affect land values in the suburban districts and work an irreparable hardship on both the merchants and ranchers, as well as seriously affecting tourist travel," said Watt L. Moreland of the Moreland Motor Truck Company yesterday.

"This law proposes to levy a tax of $50 on all trucks of one ton or less capacity; $150 on all trucks up to three tons; $250 on trucks from three to five tons, and $350 on all trucks of five tons or over. A similar bill, ostensibly aimed at the jitney bus, fixes a tax of $25 per passenger capacity on all vehicles carrying passengers, which means that an auto bus carrying seven-passengers would pay a State tax of $175 per year, in addition to the various city, county and small-town tax and license fees that are now exacted, which range all the way from $40 per year to $100, depending on the community through which they pass.

"That the move is inspired by interests that are feeling the competition of these vehicles is evident, for there is no denying the fact that the motor bus and the motor truck have cut deep into the freight and passenger-carrying business of the State, by reason of the fact that they afford a class of service that the railroads, steam or electric, cannot supply," said Mr. Moreland.

ON THE JITNEY.

"The attack is apparently made on the jitney, it being claimed, and with a great deal of justice, that these vehicles are not properly regulated and do not pay an amount of tax commensurate with the volume of business they are doing when the small investment they have in their outfit is considered, but nevertheless the interests that are trying to legislate the jitney out of business do not stop there; they are endeavoring to throttle a business that has exerted a tremendous influence on the development of the entire outlying country, and that has afforded transportation facilities for both passengers and freight that have been vastly beneficial.

"Los Angeles merchants are today doing a larger business with the merchants of the smaller communities within fifty miles of this city than ever before, because it is now possibel for a merchant to telephone to a house here and have an order of goods delivered the same day, where if this order had to come by rail it would take two or possibly three days to secure delivery and would entail a greater expense by reason of having to be handled three times.

BIG BUSINESS.

"The freight hauling business by motor truck has increased 40 per cent. each year since its inception till now it amounts to a tremendous volume running into hundreds of thousands of tons per month. The motor bus has further added to the attractiveness of California for tourists by reason of the fact that every beauty spot in the State, to which a good road runs is now available and each month this traffic is increasing.

"The several stage companies operating out of Los Angeles have in the neighborhood of $400,000 tied up in busses and freight-carrying trucks."

Owing to numerous complaints of jitney-bus drivers in the county outside of incorporated cities, the Board of Supervisors have asked the county counsel to draft an ordinance regulating the operation of jitneys. This is being done by Deputy County Counsel Faries.

The State Railroad Commission assumes jurisdiction of the rates, and the ordinance will fix the amount of the bond required by jitney-busmen, the number of passengers they may carry and make other regulations tending to safeguard traffic on county highways. These jitneys are as a rule operated in the cities during week days and hired for trips into the county on Sundays. Reckless driving and overloaded jitneys, not to speak of road hogs, are the principal complaints against them.

INSURANCE BANQUET.

The local employees of the Western Union Life Insurance Company partook of an eight-course banquet last night at New Christopher's at No. 741 South Broadway. G. W. Winter, vice-president of the company and Charles Timblin, assistant general manager, both of Washington, were present and spoke. Mr. Timblin is a member of the Washington Legislature. Other speakers were: B. F. Bernstein, supervisor of Southern California; H. R. Davenport, general agent for Southern California. Besides these the guests were H. R. Davenport, Jr., B. F. Nickey, H. H. Hadlock, F. H. Emery, J. T. Wygal, George Renaker, S. D. Garlick, J. J. Murray, J. E. Baumbaugh, R. A. Jatho and George H. Rice.

Released on Bad Check Charge, Man Is Promptly Rearrested.

Less than half an hour following the release from the City Jail of W. F. Magill late last night, when the local police were notified by the Cleveland police that he was no longer wanted in their city on a fictitious check charge on which he had been arrested here about a week ago, he was again under lock and key in the same cell and under the same charge.

Shortly following his release the local police received a telegram from Toledo, O., stating that they had just located Magill in the Los Angeles City Jail and wanted him for passing worthless paper in their city. Police Detective Kirby, who was sent out to arrest Magill, located and took him in custody near Fifth and Main streets.

DEATH CLAIMS A VETERAN EDITOR.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, Feb. 3.—John McGonigle, veteran editor, died here yesterday of pneumonia after a brief illness.

He was born in Virginia eighty-one years ago. In his early youth his family moved to Edina, Knox county, Missouri, where he had his first newspaper experience.

With the discovery of gold he crossed the plains in 1851, coming to California, from which time he established several papers, thus following the newspaper business for life. Previously conducting papers in San Benito and Monterey counties, Boise, Idaho and Salt Lake, he then came to this city, conducting a Democratic paper until a year ago when he retired to private life.

He is survived by four daughters, Misses Edith, Cora, Maud and Mrs. Margaret Day, and one son, Early McGonigle, and a brother, W. P. McGonigle of this city. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon from the old mission.

RADIO STATIONS CAREFULLY GUARDED

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 3.—Guards were assigned today to the point Loma and Chollas Heights naval radio stations and orders were issued by the naval authorities to allow no one except employees to approach the two reservations. The Chollas Heights station, recently commissioned, is about ten miles east of the city and the Point Loma plant is situated near the land batteries of Fort Rosecrans.

Admiral W. B. Caperton of the Pacific fleet today refused to make any statement relative to warship movements.

DAMAGES AWARDED.

A jury in Judge Monroe's court yesterday found that W. L. Benjamin, who alleged he had been assaulted by R. A. Walton, had been damaged in the sum of $1000. He asked for $5600. The row is said to have been precipitated by business matters, and while Mr. Benjamin declared the assault was unprovoked, Mr. Walton stated he had provocation when he struck. Attorney Mattison C. Jones said the case will be appealed.

BROTHER ALSO DEAD.

Richard N. Hull, aged 61 years, of Challis, Idaho, passed away yesterday in this city after a short illness. The funeral arrangements will be announced tomorrow. Mr. Hull was in this city settling up the estate of a brother who died at Jerome, Ariz., about two months ago. The death of this brother attracted attention at the time from the fact that, when his estate was investigated with a view to probating it, there was discovered the sum of $885,000 in cash. This sum had been derived from the sale of Mr. Hull's mining interests to the Clark estate. The money was found distributed in Los Angeles banks.

Los Angeles Harbor.

DOES NOT BELIEVE THAT "FISH STORY."

MEXICAN STORY COMES FROM THE OTHER SIDE.

Four Boats Left San Pedro on Saturday, a Week Ago, and it is Understood that They will Return During the Next Few Days. Manager Hopes it is True.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Feb. 3.—Reports from San Diego that the Mexican patrol launch Ensenada had been rammed by four fishing boats from San Pedro were received here today with skepticism by W. H. Wickersham, manager of the Fisherman's Fish Company.

The boats cleared from here last Saturday to fish on the high seas. For the past two years there have been a number of skirmishes between launches controlled by men who had a concession from the former government of Mexico giving them a monopoly. A toll of 2 cents per pound has been exacted from fishermen for all fish caught in Mexican waters. The concession was revoked by the Carranza administration, but Gov. Cantu still holds it valid.

The four launches reported to have rammed the Ensenada after their firearms had been taken from them by customs officials when they cleared are the Minnie, Jupiter, Ocean Queen and A. M. Z., valued at $40,000. Heretofore fishing boats have been able to evade the Mexican patrol boat while on the high seas, although attempts have been made on several occasions to overhaul them on the return trip home, when they are compelled to come close to shore in rounding the Coronado Islands, just before entering American waters.

Several San Diego boats have been captured, but the only San Pedro boat caught was the one belonging to W. R. Potter, who was thrown into jail at Ensenada about two years ago and his boat confiscated.

HAS THIRTY BULLET HOLES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 3.—The patrol boat Ensenada was reported today by the crew of the Gryme to have thirty bullet holes in her side. The report was telephoned from San Quintin to Ensenada and brought from there here. The disabled boat is beached at that point. From this point it seems that the crew of the Austrian-Slavonian boats which sailed from here last week had smuggled arms or were furnished them below. The boats were the Jupiter, Minnie, A. M. Z., and Ocean Queen, and put in here from San Pedro. They made search for the Ensenada and fired. The four launches are said to have gone south with the avowed intention of breaking the control of the Sandovals over fishing in Mexican waters. The Ensenada was manned by four soldiers of Gov. Cantu and a Lower California customs officer, besides the crew.

The Carranza government has revoked the Sandoval fishing concession, but by reason of power they have continued to control the fishing in Lower California.

The local customs officers scout the idea that the boats carried any arms and they say the boats were searched here and at San Pedro.

The local office has received no report of the attack on the Ensenada.

RESIGNS HIS JOB AS U. S. POSTMASTER

RECEIVED INTIMATION FROM POINT LOMA CHIEFS.

Gave Mail to Dr. Darrow and did not Send it Through Theosophical Homestead — Threat Made to Have Letters Come from Other Office is Effective.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 3.—S. A. Charpiot, whose name has been mentioned several times in the testimony of the divorce suit being brought against Dr. Fritz Sage Darrow by May Goodall Darrow, today resigned his position as assistant postmaster at Roseville, the Point Loma branch postoffice.

Charpiot's resignation was tendered to Postmaster A. E. Dixon when he learned that Frank Knoche and J. Davidson of the theosophical homestead at Point Loma had called upon Dixon and said that if the Point Loma mail continued to go through Charpiot's hands the homestead mail would not be handled through this station. As this means several hundred of dollars' worth of business to the Roseville office Charpiot resigned.

Charpiot was mentioned in the testimony of Dr. Darrow as the man, who, in delivering the mail from Roseville to the theosophical homestead, had kept Darrow's personal letters separate and delivered them to him personally after Dr. Darrow rented a box at Roseville in order that he might secure his mail without passing through the headquarters.

His name was mentioned again when it was stated that Mrs. Tingley had attempted to have Charpiot secure a divorce from his wife, who is not a theosophist. Since last August Charpiot has not carried the homestead mail to the students' headquarters, but merely to Tent Village.

TO POLL MERCHANTS ON ALL LIQUOR QUESTI

FOLLOWING the action of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce in asking its members for an expression of opinion on the liquor problem, the local chamber will be asked to make a similar poll. The matter will come up at the next meeting of the board of directors, probably Wednesday.

It is planned to have the members, excluding those who are directly interested in any angle of the liquor industry, indicate their attitude upon each of the following five questions:

1. Shall the saloon be abolished?
2. Shall the saloon be permitted to continue and sell liquors not containing more than 21 per cent. alcohol?
3. Shall restaurants, cafes and clubs be permitted to sell strong drinks?
4. Shall restaurants, cafes and clubs be permitted to sell liquors not containing more than 21 per cent. alcohol?

MANY SECRETARIES RISE FROM MEMBERSHIP RANKS.

Associations Elsewhere, Pulpits and Playgrounds of Many Cities are Served by Young Men Who Acquired Zeal and Skill at the Local Institution.

Training young men members of the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. to become secretaries of that institution and fill positions in various departments, also in other associations of the country, is becoming one of the important duties of the organization, according to a compilation just completed. More than a dozen young Los Angeles men have taken up Christian or religious work as a result of their contact with the Y.M.C.A. The latest recruit to the local secretarial force is Homer S. Gould, who will begin his duties as assistant boys' secretary February 1. Mr. Gould has been a member of the boys' department several years, and received his first training in Y.M.C.A. work as a member.

James P. Smart, boys' work director; W. Harry Silke, boys' secretary, and Wayne Stewart, assistant boys' secretary, also are graduates from the ranks of the membership. R. A. McKibben, assistant religious work director, and P. E. Stretch, assistant physical director, also have worked into secretarial positions from the membership. Both Mr. McKibbon and Mr. Stretch will attend the Y.M.C.A. training school in Chicago this year, to prepare themselves for larger opportunities.

A. Ray Petty, pastor of the Judson Memorial Church, New York, received his first training in religious work at the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. L. F. Foley, physical director of Lincoln High School, owes much of his ability to the training he received in the physical department of the association here. The same is true in the cases of E. S. Spaulding, boys' work director at Santa Barbara; Gerald Wrisley, boys' work director of San Jose; A. B. Morrow, who is in attendance at the Chicago Training School; T. H. Trask, field secretary for the Los Angeles Boy Scouts, and many others. Lynne E. Emett, who recently joined the staff of the Y.M.C.A. as office secretary, grew into the position through the membership and through the connection of his father, Edward H. Emett, with the association as religious work director.

In addition to adding new secretaries to its own staff, the Los Angeles association, it is stated, has trained many playground directors for Los Angeles and other California cities.

The tense situation, according to Capt. Huston, may hit baseball so hard that the parks may have to be used for training camps for troops.

"It will be well for the club owners to look ahead," he said. "For if the situation becomes as [illegible] promises, the game is sure to suffer. While it is too

TWO HUNDRED MILLIONS IN AUTO EXPORTS DURING WAR.

FROM the outbreak of the war until the end of last October this country exported $112,285,745 of automobile trucks, $76,672,133 of passenger cars and $37,745,739 of automobile parts (not including engines and tires,) a grand total of motor exports of $226,703,617. This showing is by an industry that is actually less than twenty years old.

In the year ended June 30, 1916, our exports of automobile parts, exclusive of tires and engines, amounted to $22,536,485, which was more than our exports of passenger cars and trucks together as recently as in 1912. In the last fiscal year exports of tires were $17,936,227, and of gasoline automobile engines, $2,636,862, compared with $4,963,270 and $1,402,334, respectively, the preceding year.

The startling growth of American automobile exports in the last six years is shown in the following table, the grand-total column including parts (except tires and engines,) as well as motor vehicles (year's end June:)

	—Passenger—		—Trucks—
	Number.	Value.	Number.	Value.	Grand total.
1916	56,231	$40,658,832	21,265	$56,305,542	$120,000,866
1915	23,880	21,112,963	13,996	39,140,682	68,107,818
1914	28,306	25,392,963	784	1,181,611	33,198,806
1913	24,293	24,275,793	993	1,737,141	31,253,533
1912	*21,757	21,550,129	...	....	25,657,294
1911	11,803	12,965,049	...	....	12,965,049

*—Includes passenger and commercial vehicles, no separate statistics compiled.

The feature of the effect of the war on our automobile exports, after the first temporary prostration of all exports, was the tremendous growth in truck exports and the relegation of passenger cars to second place. Thus, as shown in the table above, shipments of passenger cars in the year ended June 30, 1915, were over $4,000,000 less than in the preceding twelve months, while truck exports had increased from $1,181,611 to $39,140,682.

Tip O'Neill Swaps a Few Baseball Yarns.

Thinks War will Have Good Effect on Game.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

"Speaking about a 'world afire,' I would opine that this planet of ours is suffering from a conflagration at the present moment, judging by the temperature," remarked George Stovall, the "Firebrand," as he swabbed large clusters of perspiration beads from his managerial forehead.

This thing of being a "Firebrand" in cold weather is not without its advantages. It makes Stovall self-warming, and reduces the winter fuel bill. But there are drawbacks to being a human torch when the temperature picks up. This, combined with the natural heat, and the additional fact that the world is now burning brightly, combines to make Stovall about the warmest guy that ever came down the pike in February. When O'Neill shook hands with him yesterday, Tip jerked back his paw like he had laid it on a red hot stove lid. George slept in the family refrigerator last night, and this alone prevented him from being destroyed by spontaneous combustion.

Yesterday, while sitting on a block of ice, with an electric fan in each hand, he discussed some of his spring training plans between large gulps of precooled water.

To employ an overworked bromide, Stovall and his ball team are not going to spread their cards face up on the table. Instead they are going to do a lot of their work in secret. They hope to have a few aces up their sleeve when the regular season starts.

The Tigers are not going to be dragged away to any private training camp de luxe. Both Darmody and Stovall are democratic in their tastes and believe that a ball team belongs to the public. Three days a week, said public will be permitted to watch them work out at Vernon, but on the other three days, the Tigers will work behind closed gates.

On these veiled occasions, Stovall will drill his men in signal practice, and put them through certain plays which he has found to be effective in the majors.

Last season when the race was closest, the Angels won a critical game by a defensive play which Chance had drilled into his men at Elsinore, and which had never before been seen in the Coast League. Stovall has some just as effective, and he will spring them when the necessary situation arises.

"The fans will be given every opportunity to see the Tigers in action

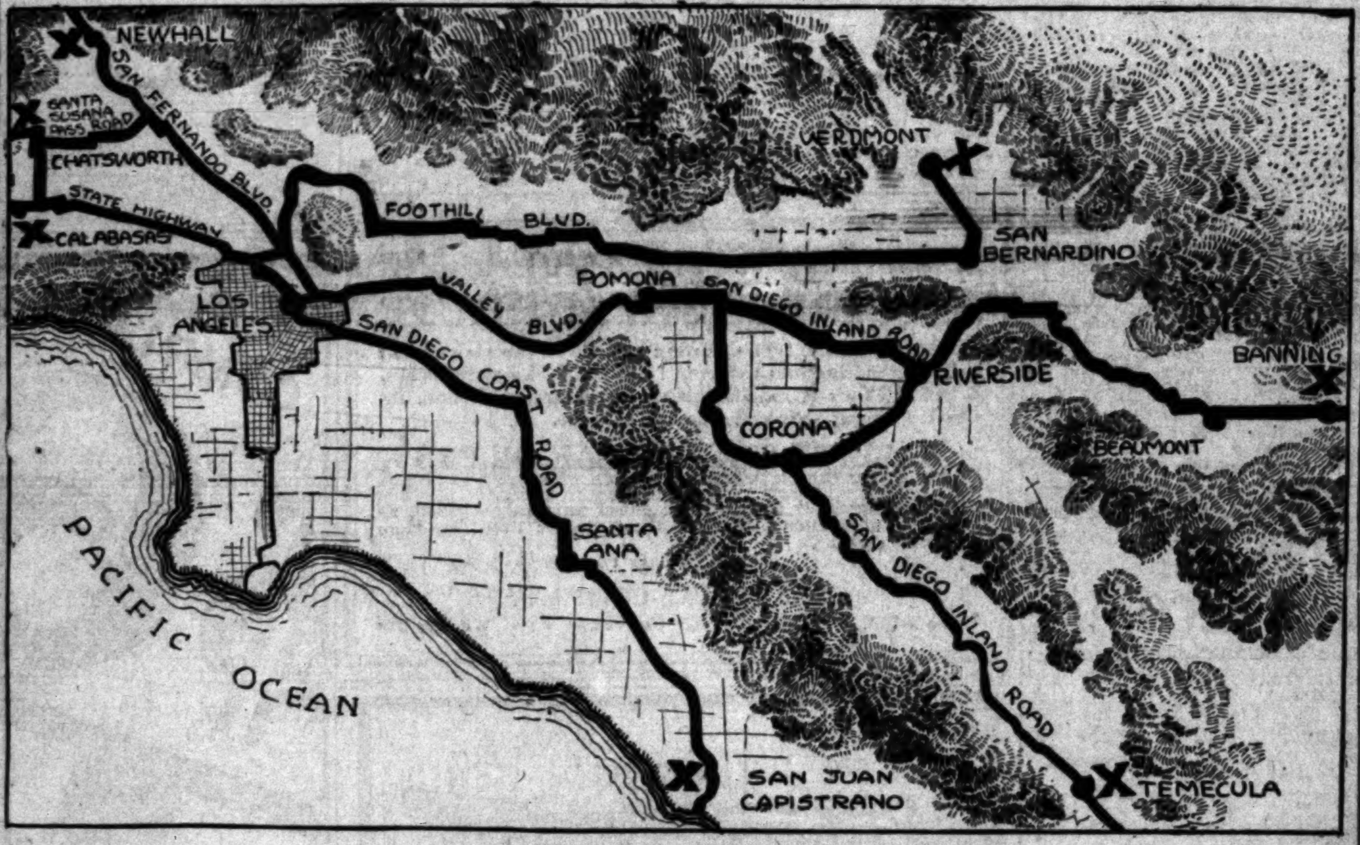
MOUNTAIN PASS CHECKING STATIONS WILL BREAK UP AUTO THIEF GANGS.

BY HARVEY E. WESTGATE.



Here's where you will have to give the "password."

At the seven checking stations which you will notice on this map, located at the only mountain passes leading into the valley portions of four counties, a deputy Sheriff will be stationed, night and day. As each machine approaches it will be halted and the motor number taken. If it happens to be a stolen car, the deputy will arrest the driver and telephone the Sheriff's office. If it isn't the driver will go on his way. This, it is believed, will prevent any stolen cars from leaving the territory in which they are taken, and go a long ways towards breaking up auto thief gangs in and near Los Angeles.

WITH the old Pacific walling in Southern California on the west, and the seven mountain passes leading to the north, south and east guarded by deputy sheriffs, automobile stealing in Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange counties for "foreign markets" is going to become a thing of the past. In the opinion of Sheriff John C. Cline, Chief of Police Butler and prominent officials and members of the Automobile Club of Southern California checking stations at the seven passes will turn the trick.

It will be a simple matter, they argue, to compel every man who drives a machine out of this territory to stop at these stations, and allow the deputy in charge to secure the motor number. Being provided with a list of stolen automobiles, the fellow who steals one and attempts to get away will be in hard luck.

UP TO SUPERVISORS.

Sheriff Cline declares the matter should be brought to the attention of the boards of Supervisors in the four counties, with a request that ordinances be passed and appropriations made, which would provide for the checking stations. The total cost each year, it has been roughly estimated, would not exceed $30,000, and last year more than $150,000 worth of machines were stolen in these four counties and taken out of this territory. Eight hundred thousand dollars worth of cars were stolen, and the $150,000 worth mentioned above simply represents those which never were heard from.

Both Sheriff Cline and Chief Butler have agreed to do everything in their power to see the checking station plan carried out, and it now looks as if the scheme, which was first proposed by A. E. Streeter of Van Nuys, will shortly be in operation.

MORE ARGUMENTS.

Sheriff Cline has brought forth several arguments not heretofore made in favor of the stations. He declares that in case of train hold-ups, stage and bank robberies, and, in some instances, in murder cases, the checking stations would be valuable, as the really dangerous criminals of today generally use an automobile in making their escape. With the stations in constant telephonic communication with the Sheriff's offices, as well as with those of the various police departments, it would be possible to round up such lawbreakers if they attempted to go through any one of the seven passes.

So far the only argument offered in opposition to the plan has been to the effect that "some people might object to being stopped for a moment, while the deputy secured the motor number, but Sheriff Cline disposes of this by saying that "any citizen who would object to a short delay, when he knew that by so doing he was assisting in protecting his own machine, as well as those of thousands of other citizens, wouldn't count. In fact, he wouldn't be a 'good' citizen."

COST TRIFLING.

Figuring the cost at $30,000 a year, even if paid by the 80,000 automobile owners in Los Angeles county alone, would make the "tax" less than 40 cents a machine. But as four counties would divide this expense, it would amount to less than 25 cents for each automobile owner. As a matter of fact, the checking stations would probably be paid for out of the general funds, and the cost would be so little that no one would feel it.

The seven passes where it is proposed to establish these stations are as follows:

Calabasas, Newhall, Chatsworth, Verdmont, Temecula, Banning and San Juan Capistrano. These passes are the only ones through which automobiles can "squeeze through," whether northward, southward or eastward bound.

"It would be the biggest step towards ridding this part of the country of automobile thieves that has ever been taken," said Chief of Police Butler. "Knowing they could not get away with cars, most of the thieves now engaged in stealing machines and driving them to other cities, would leave Southern California, or try something new.

"Also, it would be a mighty fine scheme to have seven deputies stationed at these mountain passes for other reasons than the one mentioned. In case of serious accidents, forest fires, or crimes calling for instant action, any one of these seven men could be called up and instructed to proceed to the point where his services were needed, even if he had to desert the checking station for a short time.

"The more I think about the plan published in The Times last Tuesday the more I am inclined to favor it, and I would like to see it put through at an early date."

SHERIFF JOHN C. CLINE HEARTILY INDORSES PLAN.

BY JOHN C. CLINE,
Sheriff of Los Angeles County.

THIS is the best plan yet proposed for putting an end to automobile stealing in Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange counties. I am heartily in favor of it and will use whatever influence I may have in getting the four boards of Supervisors to meet and agree upon an ordinance making it possible to maintain the checking stations at the points suggested.

With these seven checking stations constantly in touch with the offices of the Sheriffs of the four counties it will be possible not only to capture automobile thieves who attempt to leave this part of the country, but other criminals as well.

Suppose, for instance, a train has been held up, a stage stopped and its passengers robbed, a murder committed, or any one of an endless number of crimes reported, in which the guilty party or parties attempt to get away through one of the seven passes by means of an automobile. The men in charge of these stations would be notified at once, and as each would be a deputy sheriff he would have the power to stop the machine and arrest the occupants.

Compared with the value of the hundreds of automobiles stolen each year, which are driven out of the county and never recovered, the cost of maintaining these seven stations would be small, indeed.

It's a great scheme, and no time should be lost in securing the ordinances necessary to make the checking stations a reality. Surely no one would object to stopping for a moment to have the motor number of his car noted, and the few who would object to this trifling inconvenience wouldn't be worthy of serious consideration. I am strong for the checking stations.

F. R. CARROLL APPOINTED DISTRICT MANAGER BY B. F. GOODRICH CO.

Talking over big plans for the future.

F. R. Carroll, new district manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, is on the left, explaining to the heads of departments just how he desires the Pacific Coast business of the company to be carried on. From left to right the heads of departments are M. B. Bixby, branch sales manager; L. E. Nollar, superintendent of operation; L. R. Ulenhart, advertising manager, and G. S. Crackel, head salesman. Below is a picture of Mr. Carroll receiving a long distance telephone message from the head office in Akron, Ohio, in which some of the important details of his transfer to San Francisco were talked over.

OPENING the way to a larger field and greater activities, the announcement that F. R. Carroll has been appointed district manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, in charge of the Pacific Coast, follows the predictions of those acquainted with Mr. Carrol's work as executive of the Los Angeles branch. Since its inception about six years ago, Mr. Carroll has been in charge, and the expansive growth of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company's business in Southern California and Arizona is largely due to his energetic, aggressive and tactful efforts.

While one of the youngest Goodrich branch managers, his sound judgment and keen insight into local conditions, with his quickness to see and grasp opportunities for extending the sales of the Goodrich line, has easily placed him among the most successful branch managers of the Goodrich organization.

PRINTERS' INK.

Mr. Carroll is a strong advocate of advertising and believes that much of the success of the Goodrich company is due to its widespread publicity, backed, of course, by goods of real merit and its policies of fair treatment and fair prices to the customer.

Mr. Carroll took up his headquarters in San Francisco February 1, succeeding C. E. Cook, formerly Pacific Coast manager, who has been called to Akron, O., to assume a high post in the central organization. Mr. Cook, during his services on the Coast, proved himself a most valuable official, and through his genial, pleasing personality made innumerable friends, who are congratulating him on his promotion.

LARGE TERRITORY.

The territory that Mr. Carroll now assumes control of includes all of California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, and portions of Idaho, Wyoming, besides Australia, China, Japan and the Hawaiian Islands.

The Los Angeles branch organization tendered Mr. Carroll a loyalty banquet at the Alexandria on the night of January 26, at which time he was presented with a handsome watch as a token of the esteem in which he is held by the employees. In his speech of acceptance Mr. Carroll very gracefully acknowledged the gift, and in a voice which told of his deep appreciation, he assured them that their own co-operation had in a large measure been instrumental in his promotion, and he earnestly exhorted them to continue these efforts into the new regime.

RAPID GROWTH.

In January, 1911, the Los Angeles branch of the B. F. Goodrich Company was opened in a store on Pico, near Grand avenue, under Mr. Carroll's management. During the first year of his work here, he doubled the sales of Goodrich products in his territory, which was considered a very remarkable achievement, as the line had been previously carried by one of the largest rubber jobbers on the Coast.

Two years later it became necessary for the Goodrich company in Los Angeles to enlarge its quarters and they moved to Eleventh and Olive streets. About a year ago those quarters were found inadequate, and the large seven-story building on Broadway near Tenth was taken.

As Mr. Carroll will have the district management, he will frequently visit Los Angeles and will continue to keep a directing eye upon the activities of this branch.

NINETY-FOUR THOUSAND MILES IN THIRTEEN MONTHS WORLD'S RECORD.

CHANDLER
PARAC OIL

This car holds wonderful record.

Every day, rain or shine, this Chandler six, for the past thirteen months, has traveled 237 miles, and carried a big load besides. On Sunday it carries 1500 pounds of newspapers, The Times, and on week days from 800 to 1000 pounds of the same paper. Occasionally a trailer is necessary, and sometimes the roads are slippery, but regardless of the load, or the condition of the r oad, the Chandler makes the trip daily.

HAVING driven 94,000 miles in thirteen months, claim is advanced that J. A. Van Horn of this city has established a world's record. Don Smith, sales manager for Earl V. Armstrong, Inc., distributor of the Chandler six, sponsors the claim to supremacy. Mr. Smith's interest is due to the fact that Mr. Van Horn has driven a Chandler car in piling up his total mileage. Van Horn is engaged in the delivery of newspapers and transportation of passengers between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara.

Every morning, as soon as the papers are off the press, Van Horn loads them into his car and starts for Santa Barbara. On week days, his load usually weighs between 800 and 1000 pounds and on Sundays it weighs 1500 pounds. If there are passengers during the week, he puts the newspapers in a trailer. On Sundays the entire capacity of the car and trailer is needed for the papers. During the thirteen months that he has been on the job with a Chandler six touring car, he has used up seven sets of oversize cord tires. They have been returning an average of 12,000 miles to the set, which is said to be exceptionally good. His gasoline average has been fifteen miles to the gallon and his bill for gas during the period has amounted to more than $1200, it having been necessary to use more than 6000 gallons.

"When one begins to figure what it means to average 237 miles a day in a motor car for 395 days, the time I made my last calculations, the results become astonishing," said Mr. Van Horn. "I have been using a Chandler Six and I don't believe there is another car that would show the service of this car. My run has been made despite weather conditions and the time has been so regular that people living along the route, say they can tell the time of day by the passing of my car. The car has never missed a trip and it has not been in the shop for more than the ordinary service for a single minute.

"Of course the roads between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara are good. There are several stiff grades, however, and it takes a car with a lot of power and endurance to keep climbing those hills day in and day out, the way the Chandler has done.

"In the thirteen months I missed only three round trips, when a relief driver handled the car for me. If it were not for the economical operation of the Chandler, coupled with its reliability, I could not have succeeded. People say they don't see how I can make any money at such work. That is because they do not understand how cheaply the Chandler can be maintained."

Don't Get Stung!

BE SURE THE CAR YOU BUY IS PRICED RIGHT.

Dealer Declares Some Machines are Quoted at a Figure Which Allows Agent to Pay "Fancy" Price for a Second-hand Auto — Purchaser, However, Loses by the Transaction.

BY D. V. STARR.

THERE are so many factors which enter into the fair and proper pricing of an automobile by the manufacturer that only the more essential ones can be considered in an article of this length. However, as a basis for all considerations, the proper pricing of an automobile means that the purchaser is getting "value received."

In the earlier days of the industry it was the rule, rather than the exception, for the manufacturer to greatly over-price his goods. This was necessitated by the enormous selling cost which was incident to the introduction of a new and untried product to a more than skeptical public. Dealers had to have a broad margin upon which to work. Every device to induce the public to adopt the automobile as a means of transportation was tried. Horses, carriages and harness were often taken in trade, and at prices which represented more nearly what the owner paid for them than their actual worth. And this margin, which the dealer had to have in order to protect himself in such transactions, represented in reality no additional value in the automobile. It was simply tacked onto the manufacturers' cost, and hence the purchaser paid the excess without getting "value received."

MARGIN TRIMMED.

As the automobile industry approached a more stable footing, this margin was cut again and again. The manufacturer realized that the great buying public of the future would be those who had not maintained expensive stables during pre-auto days. He realized that the stability of his business depended upon reaching this vast bulk of the American people. And with this realization came the determination to appeal to these people on a business basis—i. e., to give them "value received."

To those manufacturers who have adopted this policy has come great success. One of the earliest to realize its advantages was Mr. Willys of the Willys-Overland Company. The establishing of factory branches in the larger centers of population and the close co-operation of dealers in surrounding towns have cut the cost of selling Overland and Willys-Knight cars to a minimum. In fact, the selling cost is now determinable as definitely as that of advertising and more so than the cost of raw material.

GETS FULL VALUE.

With this fluctuating factor reduced to a definite basis, the factory has been able to turn its energies to the bettering of the product and the reduction of manufacturing cost. And so it is today that a man can purchase a better automobile, representing a value dollar for dollar for what he spends, than was possible even three or five years ago at almost twice the price.

The buying public has been educated to know value when they see it. Today they purchase not only the car itself, but inquire intelligently as to the factory behind it. They want the automobile if it represents value, but they want the positive assurance that the manufacturer is there and will continue to be there, to back up his goods.

The enormous buying power of the Willys-Overland Company has enabled it to purchase the very highest grade materials at prices far lower than almost any other manufacturer. This makes it possible to price Overland and Willys-Knight cars at figures which represent real and absolute value.

GOOD TEST.

One of the surest ways for a purchaser to ascertain whether the car he contemplates buying is properly priced or not, is to take his old car to several different houses and have it appraised on a new model of approximate price. The representative, older and more conservative manufacturers will appraise his old car with only a few dollars difference between them, this small difference merely representing the variance in opinion of different experts.

But those manufacturers who still cling to the old methods may, and probably will, over-price the old car several hundred dollars in order to make a sale. When this happens the prospective purchaser should realize that the increased allowance for the old car merely represents an over-pricing of the new car upon which it is appraised.

Every purchaser of a new car should investigate thoroughly the factory behind the product and the policy of that factory in the pricing of its goods. We feel that the Willys-Overland Company in consistently following its policy of a "better car for less money" has built a solid foundation for the success which it has achieved.

CAR HITS MULE.

The Trojan horse had nothing on a St. Luis mule. A woman in St. Louis was driving a motor car recently and hit a mule. Her shoulder was dislocated in the collision but it is said not even the mule's disposition was dislocated.

SIGNAL HILL EASY, SAYS BEACH MAN.

Louie Dennie, manager of the Bixby ranches at Long Beach, lives at the very top of Signal Hill.

This is the particular hill that every intending purchaser of a motor car wants to see his car demonstrated on before he will make his purchase. Probably 99 out of every 100 cars sold in Long Beach and vicinity are required to negotiate Signal Hill before the car can be sold.

After seeing the difficulties, the failures, and how various cars were driven up the steep sides of Signal Hill, Mr. Dennie was in a position to select the one which showed to the best advantage. He bought a Dodge Brothers' motor car from C. B. Bellows, Dodge Brothers dealer in Long Beach, and had driven it, up to January 1, something over 10,000 miles without the car's ever having been in the shop.

"It is called upon night and morning to climb the steep grades of Signal Hill and has never been known to falter in its duty, even under the strenuous driving of this manager of the Bixby properties," said Mr. Bellows.

Cadillac
Standard of the World

Cadillac Prestige is founded upon reason

THE willingness of so many thousands of people to pay the Cadillac price must, of course, be founded on reason.

The refusal of so many other thousands to pay more for a car than the Cadillac price—notwithstanding their abundant ability to do so—must likewise be founded upon reason.

In one sense the question of price does not occur to them at all—what they want is the greater smoothness, the greater steadiness, the greater constancy and the greater comforts which the Eight Cylinder Cadillac provides.

They want the wonderfully swift acceleration; they want the luxury of traveling practically one hundred per cent. of the time on high gear.

They want the sturdiness and dependability; they want the day-in-and-day-out, year-in-and-year-out service and satisfaction which have always distinguished Cadillac cars.

Believing that the Cadillac meets their ideals of all that a motor car should be, is it not perfectly logical that the Cadillac should enjoy a larger ownership than any other truly high-grade car in the world?

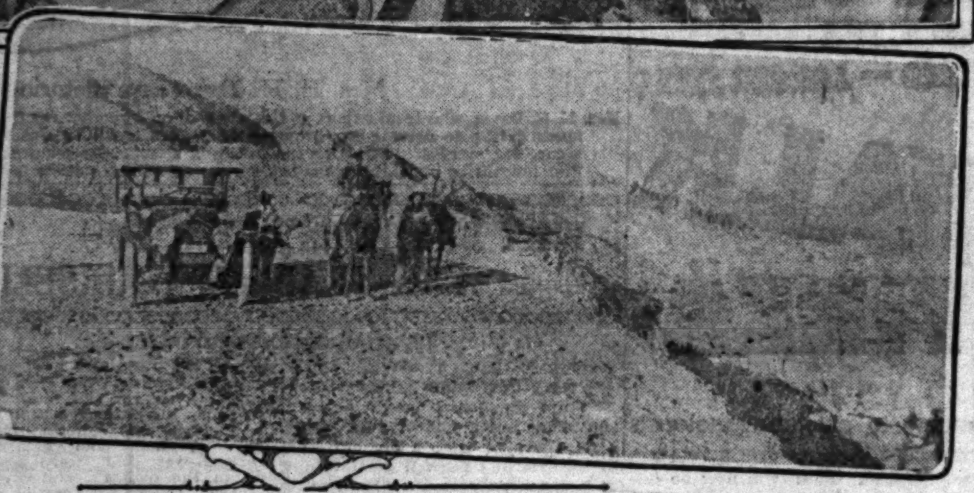
LOWER CALIFORNIA'S HIGHWAY SYSTEM IS NOW RAPIDLY NEARING COMPLETION.



Gov. Cantu taking lunch with his road builders.

Perhaps this picture explains why Gov. Cantu has so little trouble with government employes and those who recognize him as "boss" in Lower California. The Governor is shown here seated at the table with a score of his employes, in a thatched hut near the scene of road-building operations. In the picture he is the third man from the left—the little fellow with the moustache, the high forehead and the quiet, determined look on his face. Below is a sample of the country through which the long highway is being built, with a Packard, one of the most popular cars in Lower California, in the foreground.

WORK on the highway which Gov. Esteban Cantu is building to connect Mexicali and Tia Juana is rapidly nearing completion, according to Kenneth Walker of the Packard sales force of Earle C. Anthony, Inc., who recently returned from an interesting trip of inspection over the road as far as it is completed at present, in company with Gov. Cantu.

A delay of some weeks, which recently interrupted construction on the road, was caused by lack of dynamite for blasting on the last few miles of road which remains uncompleted. The embargo on the shipment of arms or explosives into Mexico prevented Gov. Cantu's engineers for a time from being able to secure dynamite to use in their road work. When representations were made, however, to the United States authorities as to the use to which the dynamite was to be put, the restrictions were lifted and work will soon be actively in progress.

INSPECTS ROAD.

The occasion of Walker's trip was to deliver the third Packard twin-six which Gov. Cantu has purchased for his personal use and for the use of his staff. Walker was for some years Packard dealer in Mexico City and naturally takes a keen interest in everything pertaining to the southern republic. Knowing this, Gov. Cantu invited Walker to accompany him on a trip of inspection over the new road as far as it is completed at present.

"No one could make the trip that I did and fail to be impressed with the remarkable work that Gov. Cantu is doing in Lower California," declared Walker last week. "When it is remembered that it is only two years ago that the only means of communication between Mexicali and Tia Juana was by rough bridle paths through rugged mountains, the change that has been worked is marvelous.

"The road has been completed east from Mexicali for forty-six miles. East from Tia Juana sixty miles has been completed. Only four miles remained at the time of my visit to be finished. This stretch involved some heavy rock work and it is this portion that the recent order permitting the shipment of dynamite will enable Gov. Cantu's engineers to rush to completion.

NO STEEP GRADES.

"The road from Mexicali to Tia Juana will be only 110 miles in length, I was informed by Senor Aldunzin, chief engineer on the project. No grade on the road will exceed 6 per cent., and the curves are all of ample radius. The road from El Centro to San Diego on the American side of the line is some twenty miles longer than Cantu's new road will be when completed.

"A banquet was held in honor of the Governor's visit at the big road camp in Canyon de Llanos. Gov. Cantu made a very earnest after-dinner talk, during which he outlined very clearly his five chief aims for Lower California. Good roads, schools, inculcation of patriotism, freedom from political persecution and the hope that the province of Lower California might play its part in the reunification of a peaceful and prosperous Mexico, are the objects of Gov. Cantu's administration, and he certainly seems to be well on his way toward attaining them.

GOOD TIME MADE.

"We covered the forty-six miles back to Mexicali after the banquet in just two hours and ten minutes in the Packard, which is good evidence that the new road will give Gov. Cantu quick communication between Mexicali and Tia Juana when it is completed. There is one stretch of bad sand near the Laguna Salada, but I was informed that the engineers plan to remedy this by the application of oil."

AUTOS CARRY MORE THAN RAILROADS.

Automobiles are giving a greater the entire steam railroad system of the United States or all the urban and interurban electric roads, according to Alfred Reeves, who recently addressed the highway engineering meet held by the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In support of his statement, he quoted figures showing that the steam railroads carried 1,053,000,000 passengers in 1914, with little increase in 1916, an average distance of 33.6 miles, or a total of 35,250,000,000 passenger-miles, and earned a revenue of $700,400,000 on this service. By comparison, the 3,250,000 passenger automobiles now registered in this country, averaging 5000 miles a year and three passengers per car, gave a service of 48,750,000,000 passenger-miles, worth $975,000,000 on the railroad basis of 2 cents per mile, or $200,000,000 more than the railroad passenger service.

The street and electric railroads carried 9,500,000,000 passengers in 1912 (the latest year for which official figures were at hand.) The average distance traveled was four miles, making 38,000,000,000 passenger-miles. This produced a little more than $500,000,000, averaging 1 1-8 cents a mile. At this rate of fare the automobiles rendered a service this year of $598,500,000, or $98,500,000 more than the street railways.

Mr. Reeves further said that the 250,000 commercial vehicles in the country, averaging fifty miles a day, half the distance with average load of two tons, give a total of 3,750,000,000 ton-miles annually. Taking 20 cents per ton-mile as a fair average cost of hauling by horse-drawn vehicles on the public roads, this is worth $750,000,000 a year.

Thus the total passenger and freight service given by motor vehicles is worth $1,725,000,000 a year.

NORTHERN TOURIST FINDS CAR READY.

W. E. Parsons, a prominent hotel proprietor of Spokane, Wash., believes in preparing in advance for thoroughly enjoying his winter's solstice in Los Angeles. While making arrangements for a few months' stay in a warmer clime he disposed of a car that was one of the highest priced on the market, and placed an order for a four-passenger National cloverleaf roadster to be delivered to him here.

Upon his arrival, a few days ago, he called at the H. C. McVey Company and asked if they had had any advices from the National factory about a car for him. He was told they had and moreover the car was in the garage awaiting his order. It is a six-cylinder, Highway model and an exceptionally handsome creation.

BATTERIES FOR ALL MAKES OF CARS TO BE MADE HERE.

LOS ANGELES, celebrated the length and breadth of the land because of its superb automobile facilities, soon is to be the home of another motor-vehicle industry, one manufacturing storage batteries for use in all makes of gasoline and electric cars and submarines, and for starting or ignition purposes.

It will be a strictly "Made-in-Los Angeles" product, and will be the only storage battery built "from the ground up" in the West, it is claimed.

The Hobbs solution or electrolyte, widely and favorably known to users of electric cars, especially [illegible], and to users of gasoline-powered automobiles and auto trucks. The new corporation has as its president, A. A. Hobbs, the inventor of this electrolyte, and it has been incorporated as the Hobbs Battery Corporation, with a capital stock of $100,000.

It is the intention of the company to erect a factory in or near Los Angeles, and to have many service stations. Quite a few men of means and practical experience have used the Hobbs electrolyte and know its possibilities. They are interested in the new organization and were quick to recognize the enormous benefits to be derived from a Los Angeles-built battery using the Hobbs electrolyte, and are prophesying a glowing future for the patriotic local organization.

"Mr. Hobbs has been experimenting with batteries and solutions for the past twelve years," said Claire Snively. "He perfected both to his satisfaction after he came to Los Angeles, and has not only satisfied himself and his associates, but hundreds of others, clients and nonusers, that he can turn out a battery that will have 25 per cent. more efficiency than any battery made."

The officers of the new corporation are: President, A. A. Hobbs; vice-president, George B. Andrews; secretary and advertising manager, Claire E. Snively; treasurer, Fred E. Andrews. The board of directors include these officers and H. V. Andrews.

KANSAS AROUSED OVER ROAD PLANS.

So aroused is Kansas in general over the subject of good roads that the position of chairman of the Committee on Roads is one of the most popular ones in the Legislature this season. Several bills affecting good roads work are to be introduced.

The Topeka (Kan.) Automobile Club, however, is urging amendments rather than an entirely new law. One of the amendments to the Hodges law now in effect probably will be a redistribution of the expenses of roads, making the county pay half, the township one-fourth and the benefited district one-fourth.

NEW LAW SCORED.

The Egan Good Roads Act, recently approved by voters of New Jersey, went into effect January 1, and as a consequence all State moneys derived from motor car licenses, fees and penalties are withheld from distribution among the counties of the State. In view of the apparent inadequacy of the act the new Legislature is expected to take steps to alter its provisions, with the probability that it will be abandoned and a new plan taken up.

HUDSON SUPER SIX

THE NEW ARISTOCRAT

Among city models, in the artist's eye, the Town Car reigns supreme. It has no seasons. Summer or winter, or any occasion, its position is that of the autocrat. It is also the comfort car.

So the Hudson Company, for their Super-Six, designed a Town Car masterpiece. They employed craftsmen of international repute. Men who always have held top place in coach building in America. They employed artists whose motor car bodies have sold as high as $10,000 each. And this Town Car model is the superb result.

There are eight luxurious bodies brought out for the Hudson Super-Six. All are built to match the supremacy of this patented motor—the greatest in the world. But only 300 will be equipped with this Town Car body this season. So the model will be exclusive.

This car will stand out anywhere as exquisite and distinctive. It marks the maximum in style and elegance. The price is but $3075 at Los Angeles. High-grade Town Cars heretofore have cost nearly twice as much. Immediate delivery is possible.

OWEN MAGNETIC

Experimental? No!

The magnetic transmission of power as applied and used in The Owen Magnetic Automobile is not new in any sense of the word.

There is no part of the modern, highly efficient gasoline automobile which is not antedated by the transmission unit used in the Owen Magnetic, both as to principle and structural details. The very heart of the gasoline motor car, the gasoline engine, is a mere infant as compared to the magnetic, or electrical, conveyance of power.

Complicated? No!

Even the adoption of the magnetic transmission to the automobile is not new, for the first Owen Magnetic Automobile was put in commission nine years ago and is still giving faithful service after having been driven some 200 thousand and odd miles.

In the Owen Magnetic, all the functions of the change-speed gearset, clutch, engine starting motor, electric generator, and flywheel are performed many times more efficiently by the simple and sturdy Owen Magnetic transmission unit.

It Is Simplicity Itself

If you are interested as a prospective buyer of a high-class automobile or merely a curious skeptic, we are always willing to explain and demonstrate the wonderful performance we claim for the Owen Magnetic.

The Owen Magnetic may be had in two chassis sizes and nine body styles, painting and trimming to your specifications. Special body styles on order.

DEALERS SNOW-BOUND ON WAY TO CHICAGO.

AMONG the local automobile dealers who attended the great Chicago automobile show last week were F. A. Hartwell and H. A. Burgess, general manager and sales manager, respectively, of the Hartwell Motor Company, local distributors for the Jeffrey line of pleasure cars and motor trucks.

Accompanying these men was L. H. Bill of San Francisco, general manager of the Jeffery factory until it was taken over by the Nash Motors Company. Mr. Bill is president of the Fageol Motor Company of San Francisco, and two of their beautiful cars were on exhibition at the Chicago show, including the $9500 Fageol chassis, which is without a doubt the highest priced car in the world.

These two cars were built in the Fageol factory at San Francisco, where it is planned that this wonderful car will be manufactured, competing with the highest priced and best known foreign cars.

Leaving here last week in plenty of time to reach Chicago, these gentlemen encountered unforeseen difficulties which furnished them with some experiences which they had not bargained for, as a telegram was received from Mr. Hartwell stating that they had been snow-bound in Medicine Bow, Wyo., for more than sixty hours.

This trip proved to be a regular reunion for Mr. Burgess, who formerly was the district manager of the Jeffery factory for different territories throughout the Middle West and East, and on every hand he met many of his old friends among the automobile dealers, as well as many of his old associates at the factory.

This show, which is the great dealers' show of the year, furnished many surprises, according to Mr. Hartwell, as there were several new cars on exhibition for the first time, as well as an enormous number of accessories, which would make a great show in themselves.

The Jeffery line was well represented, and occupied Section B-3, just at the right of the main entrance to the Coliseum. Included in this exhibit was a specially finished Jeffery six roadster, in carmine, with white wire wheels; a Jeffery six sedan, which proved of special interest to thousands of the visitors; a Jeffery six touring car and a specially finished white enameled show motor, mounted in an attractive manner, and which continuously was the center of an admiring and curious crowd.

Charles W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors Company, who are now the builders of Jeffery cars, was very conspicuous about the Jeffery exhibit, and showed a keen interest in the inspection of the exhibits of all cars and accessories, and especially in the wonderful "chassis" which the Fageol company had on exhibition.

Before organizing the Nash Motors Company and taking over the Jeffery factory, Mr. Nash was president of the General Motors Company, and had been connected with the automobile industry almost since its inception.

ALL SPACE GONE.

For the first time in the history of the Louisville (Ky.) Automobile Dealers' Association all show space has been disposed of more than six weeks before the show is to be held. The organization now is trying to make arrangements to accommodate those who were late in placing applications for space.

Mrs. E. H. Davis says motoring cures "nerves."

Mrs. E. H. Davis, who is an expert at the wheel of an Apperson chummy roadster, declares it does not much daring to drive a car properly as it does a willingness to learn how. In fact, she says, mo a cure for "nerves." Directing the course of a large car requires the exercise of all the senses and first few thrills of learning are passed, the stimulating effect is apparent at once, she says.

WHY BUY FURS WHEN YOU CAN TRAP 'EM YOURSELF.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BISHOP, Jan. 11.—When Mrs. Nora Cox wants a new set of furs she doesn't go to a store and count out a pile of gold, write a fat check or have a big bill sent to her husband for teh gratification of her heart's desire. She merely walks across the pasture to Bishop Creek, less than a 100 yards from her home, and helps herself to a valuable muff or collar or even coat. Her conscience doesn't trouble her about the cost, either, for there isn't any, meaning cost, not conscience. Mrs. Cox has a system that beats all others. She not only slashes the high price of furs, but eliminates it entirely—which is going some in these way-up days!

How does she do it? Everybody's asking at once! Why with her little steel traps, which she knows how to use. Mrs. Cox and her husband, Robert Cox, live on her father's place, the Powers ranch, at the western edge of town. Through it runs the rippling trout stream, and along the stream run many minks and other fur-bearing critters. The fur of the Owens Valley minks is as fine and long and glossy and precious—yes, that word goes!—as any in the country, and Mrs. Cox catches enough of them to supply herself all the winter garments she wants. She has learned the secrets of the game and finds it a simple and easy matter to lure the wary animals to a fate which makes them both useful and ornamental. And she has a good deal of fun out of it, too.

Not only does this unusual woman trap the minks, but she skins them, cases and cleans the pelts, and gets them ready for the furrier. She enjoys the bit of excitement and does the work so well throughout that she is complimented with flattering offers for the skins. She isn't trapping directly for money, however, but for beautiful furs for her own use and the incidental sport and pastime, and never sells any. Recently she was tempted with a bid of $125 for a collar and muff and refused it. A pretty price, she admitted, but the furs look prettier to her. There are six minks each in the muff and collar.

Mrs. Cox, a native daughter, has passed nearly all her years—never mind, they aren't many!—in the locality where she is succeeding in a field unique for one of the gentle sex to invade. She is a fine shot, has her own guns, and is always ready for a hunt in season, whether for big game or small. Her uncle, Joseph Burdick, is a professional trapper, now operating in Fish Lake Valley. He was for years in the government service as a destroyer of predatory animals. Yes, he showed and told Mrs. Cox a few things about trapping, and she looked and listened.

MT. HOLLYWOOD ON HIGH IS EASY FOR HILL CLIMB

FAST upon the heels of its record trip to Lookout Mountain in high gear, along came another prospect and asked that the Dort be taken over Mt. Hollywood in high gear—and the Dort mastered the stiff grade to the entire satisfaction of the challenger, too.

"Stunts are getting scarce," says L. A. McConnell of the Leach Motor Car Company, distributors of the Dort. "Stunts that give us food for thought—material that provides tests for the Dort. We have now climbed most every grade in Southern California in high gear in the Dort, a feat that is without a precedent for a four-cylinder car, and, contrary to most cars with hill-climbing proclivities, the Dort offers the ideal for boulevard use, as it is not geared so low that the engine races at high speeds. The powerful motor of this car will take it any place, as was demonstrated by the gruelling tests of two cars which penetrated farther into Mexico than any other privately-owned motor cars.

"On a record nonstop run of 1002 miles over some of the worst roads in Southern California, covering the distance in forty-eight hours with gears sealed in 'high' by the A.A.A. representatives, the car again proved its durability and dependability. And its hill-climbing ability was again demonstrated by covering the Elysian Park grades in high, and then duplicated with a similar feat over Lookout Mountain, and now adding another feat cap with the high-gear Mt. Hollywood and back Griffith Park.

"We would appreciate portunities to show what can do. Any suggestions of the public will meet hearty approval. The proven itself not only a breaker for high-gear work sales as well, and this car, to the public three months ranks among the best advices received from cisco indicate that it is corded the same hearty there which it has received Angeles."

"Beauty, comfort and sanitation of the best seem to be back of everything," he said. The cultivation of ground near the foothills reminds him of parts of Italy and Switzerland.

"I see that you have a traffic problem here, as other large cities have and of course you will have to solve it in your own way. We have it just as bad in Detroit, if not worse," said Reeder.

"California should have more manufacturing than it has. It seems to me that you ship too much material away from here to be manufactured elsewhere.

"I understand that you can have very cheap power here. Why don't you make use of it? It's manufacturing that makes pay rolls. No section can become truly great in a business way without manufacturing," he said.

WHY NOT HAVE A "SMART" DELIVERY CAR, ASKS DEALER.

IF YOU were a merchant which would you rather have, the ancient or the modern? Would you take the two-mile-an-hour ox team or the twenty-five-mile-an-hour motor delivery?

In every commercial house the delivery vehicle is the hand that reaches out to the merchant's trade. It is the point of contact between the merchant and those upon whom he depends for success.

Nowadays business is a strenuous fight in which every weapon is brought to play. In consequence it is mighty important that the delivery vehicle — that all-important point of contact between the merchant and his customer, that everyday advertisement of his store—should make a distinctive impression.

Those are the points, at least, that Harold L. Arnold believed in when he selected the Vim delivery car for sale to the live business firms of Southern California.

The quiet, genteel appearance of the Vim delivery car, its clean, flowing lines, enamel finish and snappy, responsive performance, convinced Mr. Arnold that the Vim as a delivery car would make a distinctive impression and would advertise any business firm that put it on the streets.

One of the particular points that the owners of Vim delivery cars have been reporting to Mr. Arnold is the fact that the Vim opens up a vastly wider territory and therefore develops new business, besides saving time over former methods. Time saved in business can be employed in soliciting additional business, and, therefore, the benefits of a Vim delivery car might be likened to an endless chain; in fact, some firms in Southern California have found this chain idea works out so nicely that Mr. Arnold has had as many as eleven repeat orders from one concern. More business for them has meant more Vims purchased from Mr. Arnold, and, on the other hand, every Vim purchased has meant more business for the concern who bought the Vim.

That is co-operation on a modern business basis that works to the good of both concerns—the purchaser and the seller. Word of mouth advertising has proved so successful with the Vim that Mr. Arnold maintains a special department exclusively devoted to Vim business.

BALDWIN LIKES NEW TAG SYSTEM.

J. V. Baldwin, president of the J. V. Baldwin Motor Car Company, likes the new license tag system recently adopted by the License Bureau of this State.

The new system has many advantages, one of which is the manner in which a stolen car may be traced to its original owner. The license of every car of this State is listed by this system and checks with the number of the motor. Thus, if a car changes hands two or three times, or if it should be stolen, the original owner and those who previously held possession of the automobile may be traced with ease. By this plan it is hoped that the number of cars stolen each year will be greatly reduced.

Undoubtedly the Industry's Crowning Achievement

From your point of view this announcement is most important.

For herein we set forth the achievement toward which this company has aimed for the last eight years.

This achievement in a word is the completion of our gigantic organization to a point where we can make and market a complete line of automobiles under one head.

This means tremendous economies—much greater than ever before.

This means the elimination of all waste, all lost motion and much greater factory efficiency.

This means an even higher grade of cars at much more attractive prices.

All of which means a substantial saving for you on the next car you buy.

For now and for the first time in the history of the automobile business we as one single organization offer the public a full and complete line of automobiles.

This concentration—this greater efficiency—this more effective means of pulling together is going to set a new standard of low priced high-grade automobile values.

For we operate on the basis of—

—one executive organization
—one factory management
—one purchasing unit
—one sales expense

—one group of dealers to plan, produce and sell all Overland, Willys and Willys-Knight models.

Buying power is concentrated. Costs are distributed over all these cars. The savings are enormous.

As a result we are producing cars of exceptional quality—and marketing them at unusually low prices.

Every car is built to a rigid standard of performance, comfort and appearance.

The new models are listed in this announcement. They include Overland models from the snappy comfortable $665 Light Four to the beautiful Light Six Sedan at $1585.

They include also the big, handsome Willys-Knights from the Four at $1285, to the super efficient Eight at $1950.

These new models establish price records, value records and performance records which we believe will prove to the public conclusively that the vast economies of vast production are the key note and manufacturing secret of the greatest value for the least amount of money.

FLEET OF FOUR NEW CARS SOLD TO PROMINENT SANTA BARBARA PEOPLE.

LAST Wednesday morning, four Woods Dual Power cars, the first to be shipped here from the factory, were delivered to purchasers in Santa Barbara by the Turner-Whitford company, distributors in California for the Woods product.

The purchasers are: Mrs. S. A. Keeney, society matron of Montecito and Santa Barbara; Franklin Ritchie, well-known actor and director for the Lasky Feature Film Company; Mrs. Helen T. B. Crocker, society matron of New York and Philadelphia and O. C. Linsley, former sales manager for the Studebaker corporation in New York and Portland, Or.

Ritchie was starred in the Clansman and when on the legitimate stage played opposite Maude Adams, Ethel Barrymore and Nance O'Neil. Two years ago he deserted the speaking drama for that of the celluloid. Ritchie bought the car and made a present of it to his wife.

Mrs. Keeney has driven an electric car for several years and after a demonstration of the Woods Dual Power she expressed the desire to be the first woman in Southern California to own and drive this new type of car. She is, because she drove the car that she purchased on the first leg of the trip to Santa Barbara from Los Angeles.

Mrs. Crocker is of the well-known family of eastern newspaper manufacturers and is one of those who since the war has come to appreciate Southern California as a resort, both in summer and winter.

The sales in Santa Barbara are worthy of note by reason of the fact that the demonstrator was driven over a road from Los Angeles and by way of Camarillo and Ventura that was considered impassable. After leaving Camarillo the Woods Dual Power plowed through mud that was hub deep for more than eight miles and where other cars, including one unloaded truck, were unable to get through. The demonstrator had not been in Santa Barbara twenty-four hours before it had been sold.

The sales in Santa Barbara were made through D. L. Whitford of the Turner-Whitford Company. He said: "The Woods Dual Power car is fast coming to the front as the logical car for town and country use. On a recent trip from Los Angeles to San Francisco, the average consumption of gasoline was a little better than one gallon to a fraction more than twenty-three miles."

New cars make hit at Santa Barbara.

Prominent citizens of beautiful coast city purchase four Woods Dual-Power cars. Picture shows machines lined up in front of the Turner-Whitford headquarters in Los Angeles. Mrs. S. A. Keeney, one of the purchasers, shaking hands with D. L. Whitford just after closing a deal. The other three cars went to Franklin Ritchie, of the Lasky Feature Film Company, Mrs. Helen T. B. Crocker, society matron of New York, and O. C. Linsley, formerly of New York and Portland, Or.

MILLIONS TO BE SPENT FOR ROADS.

The government of the province of Quebec will have $20,000,000 for good roads this year. A bill to amend the Good Roads Act, and containing this provision, was passed recently. In 1912 the government borrowed $10,000,000 for roads. Last year it borrowed $5,000,000 more. Under the new law municipalities pay half the cost of provincial roads within their boundaries. For municipal roads the government may pay a subsidy of not more than $400

WHO'S WHO IN AUTO WORL

Andrew Lawrence Riker.

One of the best known men in the automobile world. He has nently identified with the industry for many years.

AMONG the names that stand out from the crowd in the automobile industry, that of Andrew Lawrence Riker has a particular distinction and interest. Born in New York City of an old and distinguished family and educated at Columbia University, he early devoted himself to electrical and mechanical engineering. He became prominent in the electrical development of the country as a designer of motors and dynamos. The Riker Electric Motor Company, of which he was president developed the first toothed electric armature.

It was in 1884 that Mr. Riker built his first self-propelled vehicle, an electric tricycle. The following year saw a four-wheeled electric motor car of his design running on the road. The earliest automobile road race held in America was at Narragansett Park in September, 1896. Both gasoline and electric cars were entered. The first heat was won by the Riker electric car with A. L. Riker in the driver's seat. This car also made the best mile of the race, in two minutes and thirteen seconds. At the end of the racing, which continued for several days, the first prize was given to the Riker Electric Motor Company.

RECEIVES MEDAL.

In 1900, the French government awarded Mr. Riker a medal for merit in motor car design.

In 1901 at the Long Island speed trials, Mr. Riker, driving his electric car, set up a mile record for sixty-three seconds. This record for electrically-driven automobiles stood unbroken for ten years.

In 1902, the Locomobile Company of America decided to manufacture gasoline cars. With the end in view of obtaining for this new field of work the most expert and authoritative advice, the Locomobile company selected Mr. Riker as vice-president and chief engineer. He designed the first four Locomobile and had it running in May of 1902. This car participated in the Boston-New York reliability run conducted by the Automobile Club of America in the fall of the same year, and a year later Mr. Riker personally drove this car in the famous endurance contest to Buffalo.

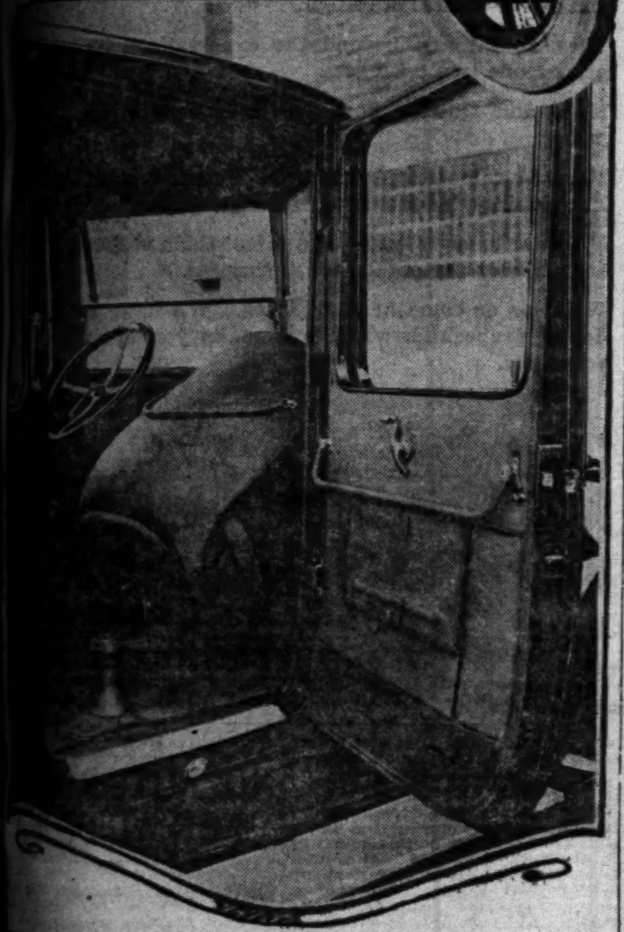
NEW FRANKLIN BROUGHAM ONE OF THE MOST DISTINCTIVE CARS IN CITY.



A car that pleases the women folks.

...have the new four-passenger Franklin brougham, a car that is ...ing crowds of women and men, too, at the showrooms of Ralph ... The picture below shows how easy it is to tip up the front ...wing passengers to reach the rear seat.

A[N e]xample of the four-pas... inclosed car that is not ...convertible type, Ralph ... is showing the new ...ougham, which is one of ...stinctive cars of the class ... received in Los Angeles. It is claimed this car is the ... development in inclosed car ... and Mr. Hamlin, who at... the national automobile show at New York City, says it received universally favorable comment from engineers and designers representing the most prominent car manufacturers in the country.

The V-shaped glass front, which was originated by the H. H. Franklin company, is a feature of the brougham. The double windshield is employed and no matter how heavy may be the rain it is impossible to destroy the driver's view of the road. The V-shaped front is said to offer an additional advantage for night driving. The rays of the lamps from a car approaching in the opposite direction do not blind the driver as when the windshield is straight.

The seating arrangement is designed to be as convenient as possible. The right front seat is jointed at the base, so that when the passengers enter the car it is easy to push this seat forward and leave the door entirely unobstructed. The seat base works on a swivel, so that the occupant may face those in the rear seat if desired, or may occupy the customary position. The interior fittings of the car are especially luxurious. Gray motor cloth is used for upholstery and there are all the little niceties about the equipment that go toward making it complete.

EFFICIENCY HELD MAGIC WATCHWORD.

"'Efficiency' is the magic watchword that opens the door to success in any business," says Walter Calbert Fertig, general manager of the United Motors Company, California distributors of the new one-ton Ford truck Olson equipped. "I regard our new truck as the very embodiment of the spirit of modern business.

"In these days of keen business competition the man or machine who renders the greatest service at the lowest cost is very much sought for. The Ford truck, Olson equipped, offers an incomparably efficient, always-dependable means of transporting loads of one ton and over at a lower cost than has heretofore been possible—lower from the viewpoint of initial cost, operating expense, cost of maintenance and extent of depreciation. This truck is standard in every respect, being the output of two of the largest manufacturers of automobiles and parts in the United States. It has a wide safety margin of load excess, the bearings being guaranteed to five tons' load weight."

AUTOMATIC SIGNAL TO BE MADE HERE.

An automatic signal, which turns to the right or left with the first slight turn of the steering wheel, thereby giving due notice that the driver is going to the right or left at the first corner, is the invention of William A. Vinson and Rodney N. McClure of Los Angeles. Instead of a metal arm, a light is used at night. A patent has just been granted to the inventors, and they expect to manufacture it here and place it on the market in the near future.

We Announce with Great Satisfaction that J. V. Baldwin Motor Co. Represents the Mitchell

John W. Bate's Club

The Night Work Done on Mitchells

An experimental room in the Mitchell factory is known as John W. Bate's club.

Here, after hours, for many a year, he has worked on the features you get in the Mitchell.

You see the results in hundreds of extras. You see it in 100 per cent over-strength. You see it in countless added values which are paid for by factory economies. But let us impress on you the principle which lies back of all.

Nothing Is Easy

Every motor car maker believes in efficiency. But it means an enormous investment, both of time and money. In the Mitchell it meant building and equipping an enormous plant to this end. It meant supplanting old machines with new. It meant years of study, years of training men to build every part economically.

It meant that 98 per cent of the car, including luxury bodies, had to be built in this plant. It is very much easier to buy these things than build them.

It has cost us millions of dollars. It has cost Mr. Bate a dozen years, working night and day. It has cost many an able helper such work as few men perform. That is why the Mitchell excels in efficiency, and in all that efficiency brings you.

Three Years to Attain 100% Over-Strength

This year, for the first time, we announce double strength in every important part. It has taken three years to get this standard, from a 50 per cent margin of safety.

To you it means a lifetime car, according to the evidence. It means safety, small upkeep, minimized repairs. To Mr. Bate it means new tests and standards for every vital part. To us it means, with present steel prices, a vast extra cost.

Many parts are built oversize. Parts which get a major strain are built of Chrome-Vanadium. Over 440 parts are built of toughened steel. We pay for steel as high as 15 cents per pound.

But the result is marvelous endurance. For instance, not a single rear spring has broken since this standard was adopted. And that was two years ago.

TWO SIZES

Mitchell—a roomy, 7-passenger Six, with 127-inch wheelbase. A high-speed, economical, 48-horsepower motor. Disappearing extra seats and 31 extra features included.
Price $1585, Los Angeles

Mitchell Junior—a 5-passenger Six on similar lines, with 120-inch wheelbase. A 40-horsepower motor—¼-inch smaller bore than larger Mitchell.
Price $1275, Los Angeles.

Also all styles of enclosed and convertible bodies. Also demountable tops.

Many Extras Free

We include in the Mitchells every desirable feature we know. There are 31 extras which cost $4,000,000 on this year's Mitchell output. And they are things—like a power tire pump—which nearly all cars omit.

We have this year added 24 per cent to the cost of finish, upholstery and trimming. And that to a car which long has led in beauty and in luxury. The savings made in our new body plant pay for all these added touches.

You get these things at the Mitchell price because of our efficiency. Because John W. Bate has cut our factory cost in two. In this respect, among fine cars, the Mitchell stands unique.

See what this plan has accomplished. See what it means in values which rival cars don't give. One hour's study of the Mitchell cars will win you to the Bate idea.

Also A $1275 Six

Note that this year—to meet a wide demand—we bring out Mitchell Junior. A slightly smaller motor—a little shorter car. And a lower price than the 7-passenger Mitchell. But more powerful and roomy than most 5-passenger cars. So men can get the Mitchells now in either size they want.

BUYERS IN KEEN CONTEST TO GET INCLOSED CARS.

WHAT'S a dealer going to do when he has a limited number of inclosed cars on hand and several customers insist upon having the very cars of which he has the least?

Greer-Robbins Company, with but two Hupmobile sedans on hand, experienced this embarrassing situation during the past week. As a result, telegrams were hurried to every outlying dealer and also to San Francisco, in a frantic endeavor to supply a demand that came all of a sudden. There have been a number of Hupmobile sedans sold this season by the local company, a larger sale being prevented by lack of the ability of the manufacturer to ship more.

Mrs. J. Sturgis, No. 2841½ South Hill street, was one of the fortunate ones. Another was C. L. Wallis, 602 South Harvard. Both appeared upon the Greer-Robbins company's floor on the same day, with only one sedan remaining. A spirited contest developed between I. J. Koerner, representing Mrs. Sturgis, and E. L. Robbins, attending Mr. Wallis. Koerner won, but P. H. Greer, president of the company, saved the day by telegraphing the Hupmobile distributor at San Francisco, F. J. Lins Company, and a sedan was loaded on the steamship Harvard Wednesday afternoon, reaching San Pedro in time for delivery Thursday.

Mrs. Sturgis is heavily interested in Ventura county ranch land and makes her home permanently in this city. Mr. Wallis is in the mining business and also a resident of Los Angeles. Mrs. Sturgis has driven one of the early models of Hupmobile coupes and was attracted by the neat lines and increased power of the new model. This is the type of sedan that recently made the transcontinental trip to the Pacific Coast, the only sedan ever known to have been used for so long a journey.

SHIPMENT IS HELD UP BY DEEP SNOW.

Nebraska youths may be having an enjoyable winter, due to their State being well covered by a mantle of snow, but this condition is not one that brings rejoicing to the Irving Motor Car Company of this city. The reason is that because of conditions there is a three-carload shipment of Cole cars snowbound some place in Nebraska and all efforts so far by the railroads and the Irving company toward getting the shipment to its destination have been futile.

James L. Irving, president of the local company, is now at the factory of the Cole Motor Car Company in Indianapolis, arranging for an increased allotment of cars. Ed H. Harris, sales manager, says they are sold out completely and there is no hope for relief until the waylaid shipment in Nebraska gets through.

A number of eastern tourists, now in the city, placed orders with the factory for delivery of their cars in Los Angeles, and they, too, have been unable to obtain their purchases. This season's demand for Cole cars has surpassed all others in this territory and Mr. Irving is seeking to impress upon the factory the need for early deliveries, to be prepared against the expected spring requirements.

WHY NOT USE NON-SKIDS ALL THE TIME? DEALER ASKS.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT made by the Keaton Tire and Rubber Company, makes it possible for every automobile owner to equip with Keaton non-skids without having to lose anything by discarding his present tires.

The Keaton company offers to take in trade, any make of tire, making the motorist a liberal allowance, so that they will not suffer any loss.

In explanation, Mr. Tormey, manager of the Keaton company, states that they have made arrangements whereby they can dispose of the second-hand tires they secure by this trade-in proposition, and the offer they make will be continued only a short time to give the automobile public a chance to equip with Keaton non-skids, which carry a factory guarantee against skidding.

There is no reason why a non-skid tire shouldn't be used the year around. Even in the summer time, you must contend with wet streets, due to sprinkling, especially here in Los Angeles, where they flush the streets during the night. Then again, when one is touring on mountain roads, the unexpected is what one must safeguard against. Many a motorist has experienced a creepy feeling when he rounds a turn and finds that water has trickled across the road, making it very dangerous.

There is hardly a user of automobiles that hasn't found that a non-skid tire was an asset when touring along close to the coast, where the heavy dews and fogs make traveling conditions dangerous.

Another good point in favor of the non-skid is it gives an added traction when climbing even on dry surfaces, and the same can be said about the efficient non-skid when applying the brakes.

Even on dry pavements, with Keaton non-skids, a car can be stopped in half the distance that it can be with ordinary smooth tires.

Discriminating buyers of advertising space have found by experience that they can cover Los Angeles and surrounding territory by using the Los Angeles Times alone.

The Los Angeles Times' prestige and popularity among the masses and the classes attach to and color the trade announcements of its patrons and invest them with business-getting and business-holding qualities.

HALLER ALSO CLAIMS BAXTER HILL RECORD.

IT WAS approximately six months ago that Ward Haller drove an eight-cylinder Apperson touring car, containing five passengers, up the celebrated Baxter-street hill in second gear. Haller claims that was the first, and, to the best of his information, the only time this feat has been accomplished with five passengers in a car.

Occupants of the residences on the hillside are given as his authority and they usually come out in numbers every time the drive is made up this grade. Ever since the hill was paved there have been predictions of an accident "some day," and evidently they do not care to miss the opportunity of seeing it when it occurs.

Among the occupants of the Apperson that Haller drove were F. A. Young and A. B. McCallister, partners in the firm of Young & McCallister. Both were interested in the purchase of an automobile. Mr. Young resides on Echo Park avenue and it was he who directed Haller's attention to the Baxter-street grade. As the direct result of the car's performance on that occasion both Mr. Young and Mr. McCallister bought Apperson cars.

The sequel to the demonstration was recorded a few days ago, when P. R. Chase and A. E. Benson, both friends of Messrs. Young and McCallister, also purchased Apperson cars. Mr. Chase and Mr. Benson both said they had heard their friends talk so frequently of the wonderful hill-climbing ability of the Apperson, and recount the story of what convinced them to make their selection with such emphasis, that they were convinced they should buy the same kind of car.

Another passenger on the same trip was A. G. Harris of Mountain Spring ranch, and he also bought an Apperson, so Haller can trace five sales directly to this one performance.

LIGHT TWELVE IS WELL ON ITS WAY FROM KOKOMO, IND.

DUE to arrive in Los Angeles the last of this week, the first Haynes "light twelve" destined for this section of Southern California is well on its way from the factory at Kokomo, according to Froman Speers of the Bekins-Speers Motor Company, distributor in Southern California for the Haynes.

So great has been the demand for the new Haynes twelve-cylinder product that the factory has been put to it night and day, and in connection with the making of other models, to keep pace with orders.

The new Haynes is declared to be a worthy big brother of the "light six." It is a light-weight car, containing a powerful, smooth-running twelve-cylinder motor and is said to have no vibration. It is claimed for it that it may be handled in the thickest of traffic without changing gears.

The motor is of the high-speed type, with valve-in-head construction and removable cylinder heads. Aluminum pistons are used. The five-passenger touring car and three-passenger roadster have a wheelbase of 121 inches, and each weighs 3100 pounds. The seven-passenger touring car has a wheelbase of 127 inches and weighs 3200 pounds.

DEALER COMPARES MOTOR CAR WITH WIFE AND SERVANT

RARELY has a man's motor car been likened to his wife. Here is the latest conception of Harold L. Arnold, and it is so original it is worth reading:

"A man's motor car, like his wife, is his companion and the sharer of his hours.

"At times capricious, often to be coaxed and petted into going his way, yet ever beautiful in his eyes. Just as with his wife, so with his car, for a man extols all good qualities to his friends, condones all faults, and if he has troubles keeps silent concerning them.

"A business man's delivery car is like his family servant. The one bears his meals to him, the other helps him gather the wherewithal to supply them.

"So, too, the servant, as the delivery car, must ever be willing and ready to do the task at hand.

"Worry, trouble or annoyance would cause the master to discharge the servant—the owner to sell the delivery car. The one brings him business, while the other assumes the burden of his guests and makes their stay a pleasant one.

"The servant is a necessary expense to a household—the delivery car to a business. They are counterparts of each other—the one at home—the other in trade.

"Such is the part a Vim motor truck plays in the commercial field. Arduous labor is its lot, unremitting effort is its sphere. With a silent sturdiness of strength it ever performs the labors required of it, and uncomplainingly and untiringly lightens the load of earning the daily bread."

The Portland Automobile Club has been made the Oregon State Motor Association. Hereafter the organization is to be State-wire in its scope and have a director in every county of the State and members from all parts of Oregon. The principal objects will be road marking, maps for the use of members and the promotion of progressive highway legislation.

MAKES OLD ONES LOOK LIKE NEW.

When A. F. Smith telephoned to John T. Dye, dealer in new and used automobiles, and asked how many cars he could furnish for the big Firestone parade, he was told he could have any number he wanted, from one to a hundred.

"Send over twenty-five of the best ones you've got," said Smith, and Dye forthwith booked the order.

When it was about time for the parade to start, Smith approached Dye in front of the Alexandria Hotel, and asked him where the twenty-five cars were.

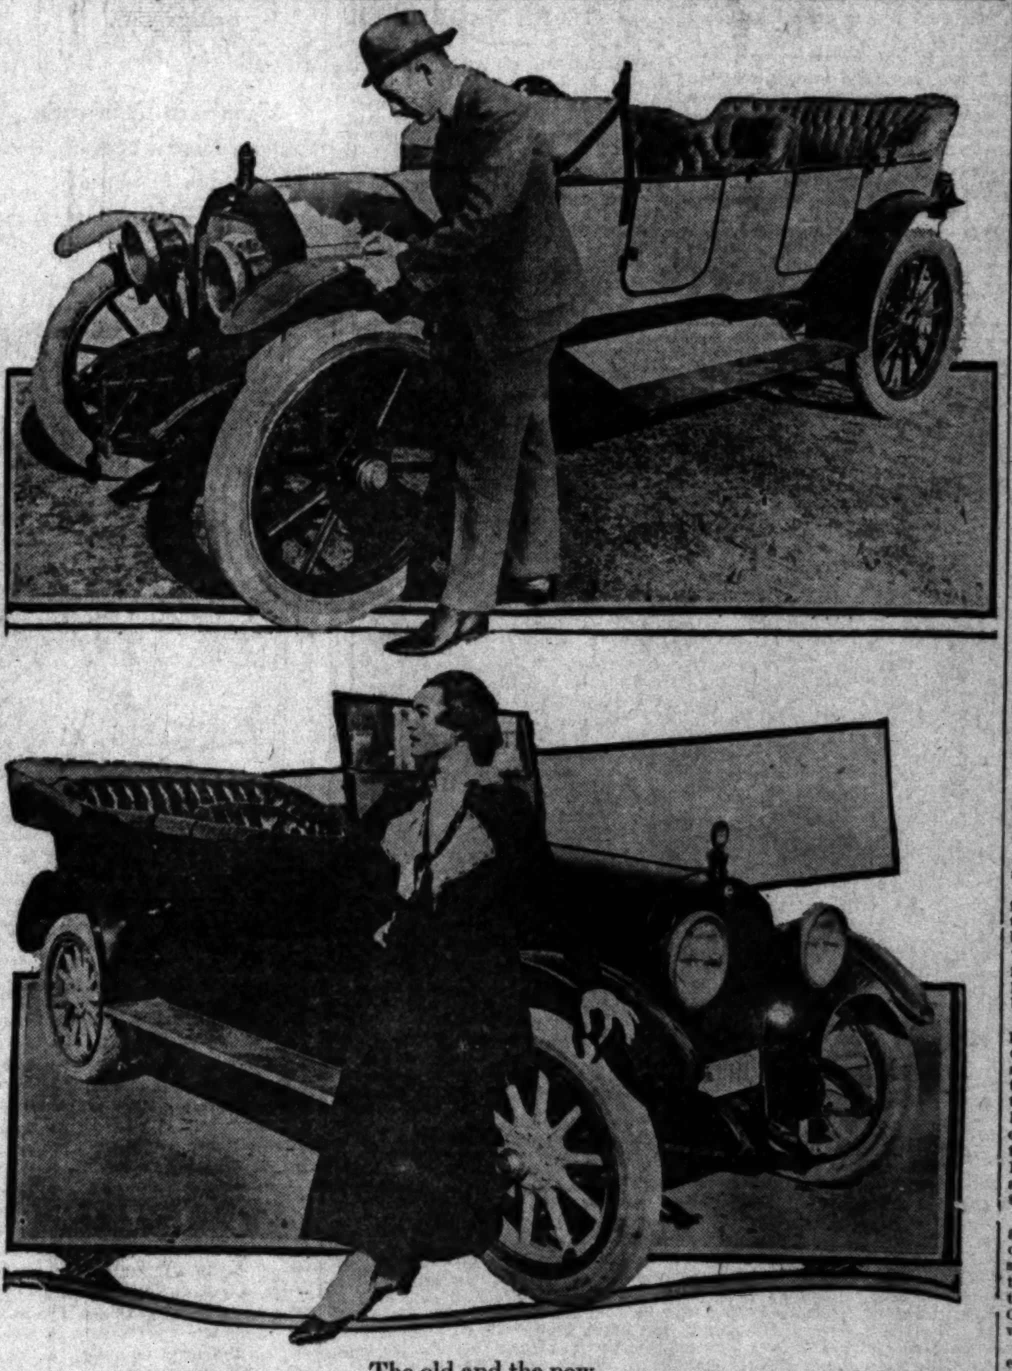
"Right here," said Dye, "and over there, and all up and down both sides of the street."

Smith looked again, and then admitted that he had failed to recognize the cars as second-hand ones. "They look like new to me," said Firestone Smith.

"That's because we know how to 'doll' 'em up," said Dye, and Smith agreed the drinks were on him.

TEXAS PROSPEROUS.

Texas gained 61,632 registrations in eight months during the latter part of 1916. Most of this gain was in the rural districts. Altogether Texas had 191,275 registrations up to December 1, the latest date at which figures are available Among others of the Southwestern States, Oklahoma had 50,849; Arkansas, 15,423; Louisiana, 16,837, and New Mexico, 3228.



The old and the new.

The old 1910 Lexington shown here has traveled 200,000 miles, including several trips across the continent, and it's still going, too. Eugene Martin is shown with pencil and paper figuring out the mileage of the veteran. Below is one of the new Lexingtons, with Olga Gray, who takes the part of the vampire in plays produced by the Famous Players, at the wheel. The Minute Man six, it is claimed by Mr. Martin, is making a big hit everywhere.

WELL, WELL! HERE'S ANOTHER RECORD FOR BAXTER-STREET HILL.

Going against time up Baxter-street hill.

From a standing start, with the rear wheels on a line with the street car tracks at the bottom of Baxter-street hill, a Chalmers car was sent to the top in second gear last Wednesday morning in thirty-three seconds. With the word "go," the driver started the car in second gear, and increasing the speed until the last incline of more than 29 per cent. was reached, the Chalmers forged ahead. The distance is 800 feet, the car averaging better than twenty-four feet per second for the entire distance. The first incline has a grade of 11 per cent.; the second incline a grade of 18 per cent., and the final climb is on a grade of better than 29 per cent. The picture shows the car on the steepest part of the hill.

BAXTER street hill has been the scene of many an automobile test of one kind or another. Virtually every caper that versatile publicity men and clever drivers suggest has been attempted. Few have succeeded. More have failed. Three stunts, it is believed, remain to be accomplished: making the top in second gear from a standing start, making the top any old way in the shortest time, and reaching the top by hook or crook on high gear. While it is generally admitted that the latter feat will never be performed, Tom Herndon, in charge of the Chamers service department of Greer-Robbins company, determined to do the first and set the pace for the second.

With the rear wheels of a five-passenger Chalmers at the edge of the street car track, the gear set in second and the engine stopped, Herndon started the motor and, in second gear, reached the first climb, Vestal avenue, at twenty-five miles per hour. He reached the crest without touching the gear shift, completing the ascent at fifteen miles per hour.

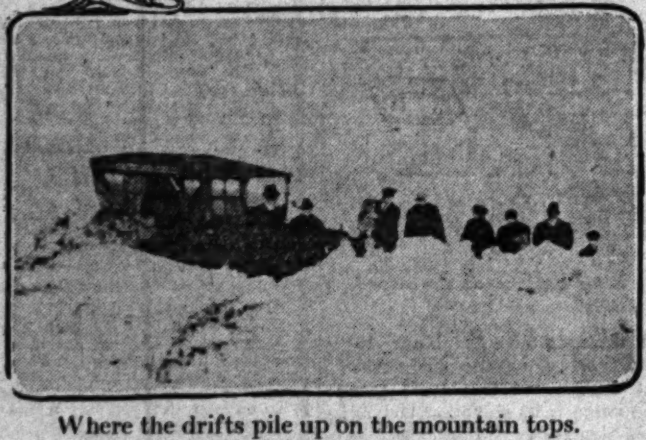
SOME SPEED.

Returning to the foot of the hill, with the car resting in the same place as before, Herndon started to mount the grade a second time, not with any idea of establishing a record, but merely to set the pace for those who believe they can do better. In exactly 33 seconds he had reached the highest point.

"This is the first time either of these stunts ever has been attempted and accomplished, as far as I know," said Herndon, who is one of the most experienced Chalmers drivers on the Pacific Coast. "I had been told that only three makes of cars in Los Angeles had made the Baxter-street grade in second. I knew that the Chalmers could do that. But, to make the grade from a standing start, in second, was quite different. Well, we did that on Wednesday morning in the presence of reliable witnesses. That test was followed by a time test, resulting in making the summit in 33 seconds. I am confident I can lower that time by five seconds, at least, but I leave it as a pace setter."

For 200 feet Baxter street is an 11 per cent. grade; from that point to Vestal avenue, it is 18 per cent. and from there to the top 29.3 per cent. The total distance, from the center of Echo Park avenue to the gate at the top is 800 feet Herndon's rate of speed was slightly over an average of 17.72 miles per hour.

Now, the Chalmers salesmen of the Greer-Robbins company have set down in their notebooks the fact that there are four cars that can easily nogitiate the Baxter-street hill in second, but only the Chalmers has done it so far from a standing start, and none in less time than the Chalmers.



Where the drifts pile up on the mountain tops.

Roy Scott knows what it means to buck snow drifts. "Scotty" drives a stage between Los Angeles and Taft, and when he reaches the top of the range he declares he is glad his car is equipped with Goodyear non-skid tires. Starting January 22, he has been making 145-mile trips on time, although a portion of the route is covered with snow, slush, mud or ice, as the case may be. In a letter to the Goodyear company "Scotty" writes that he hasn't used a chain so far this winter, as the non-skids answer every purpose.

SOCIETY WOMAN PRAISES NEW CAR.

Receiving what is probably one of the most distinctive cars of the closed type ever seen on the Pacific Coast, Mrs. Ida M. Murphy, well known society woman of Santa Barbara, was unusually happy over her Christmas present of a special Hudson super-six limousine.

According to Harold L. Arnold, distributor of Hudson motor cars for Southern California, this car already is acknowledged as being in perfect accord with the elegance of this leader of society and her beautiful home.

Mrs. Murphy, in looking for a closed car, decided on the Hudson super-six as being the one automobile that would perfectly fit her environments, she said, and a special order was therefore placed with the Hudson factory for a super-six limousine of unusual, but beautiful, design.

The body and running gear is of French gray, the top, fenders and dust guards being trimmed with jet black. It is doubtful if an automobile ever attracted more attention for its beauty alone, than this Hudson super-six of striking color scheme and inviting luxuriousness.

Never Met Him.

MRS. CANTU DENIES PUBLISHED INTERVIEW.

THE attention of The Times has been brought to a statement purporting to have been made to a local automobile dealer by Mrs. Cantu, wife of the Governor of the northern district of Lower California, and published in the pink section of last Sunday's editon. This statement, in which it was intimated that Mrs. Cantu had left Lower California because of unsettled conditions and possible trouble, was never made by her.

No one was more surprised to read the article in question than Mrs. Cantu herself.

On her behalf, and in order to do full justice to herself, as well as to her noted husband, who is now doing much to promote and maintain peace and harmony in and foster the development and best interests of the country under his jurisdiction, The Times wishes to state that not only as a matter of fact was the purported interview never held, but Mrs. Cantu does not even know the dealer to whom it is alleged to have been made. Mrs. Cantu is sojourning here on a merely temporary visit, and expects to return to her husband in the near future.

TRUCKS DELIVER STAFF OF LIFE.

Large bakeries throughout the country are gradually adopting the Autocar in their delivery service, is the statement of R. C. Hoadley of M. S. Bulkley & Co., distributors in Los Angeles territory for the Autocar.

Within the last week the number of Autocars that have been sold in this territory to bakers was increased to twenty-three, and this number represents sales that have been made in less than a period of four years.

The Autocar will carry from 1500 to 2000 5-cent loaves and there are bakers who declare that it pays to operate an Autocar with a load of 1500 5-cent loaves. The bread is packed in crates and the pies and cakes in small woven wire cages.

DEALER FINDS IT PAYS TO KEEP USED CARS IN TRIM.

THAT it pays an automobile dealer to have his used cars in shape was proven to the satisfaction of W. D. Dunham recently.

Last week M. W. Everhardy of the Palace Market company, which has a large fleet of light delivery cars, wanted to put another one into service, and he went to W. D. Dunham, the authorized Ford agent on West Seventh street, for one of the new Fords.

Mr. Dunham did not have one of the new cars in stock, but showed him one of the cars which he had taken in on a deal, and because of the fact that this car had been put in such good condition, Mr. Everhardy bought it on the spot and put it into immediate service.

"Mr. Everhardy has had his work done in my shops ever since I opened up," said Mr. Dunham, "and I know that he is exacting in the care of cars. For this reason I decided when I opened here that I would set a standard for the work in my shops and service given on my cars, and I find it just as easy and a whole lot more profitable to keep everything around in ship-shape and first-class condition."

Of the 759 automobiles imported into Java in the last six months, 668 cars came from the United States, fifty-three from Italy and thirty-two from The Netherlands.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

Introducing-
"THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA"

On January the First, and at the leading automobile shows, we introduced what we sincerely believe to be the most beautiful car in America.

This, we admit, is a bold and sweeping statement.

It is probably the most sensational announcement that has ever been made by a manufacturer of medium priced automobiles.

But we mean precisely what the words imply, and only ask that you reserve final judgment until you have seen the New Paige with your own eyes.

It is not our purpose, in this advertisement, to describe one single detail of the latest and greatest Paige Achievement.

We merely invite you to visit the nearest Paige Representative—key your expectations up to the very highest pitch — and determine for yourself whether or not we have been guilty of exaggeration.

A moment's reflection, however, must convince you that we would not and could not make any such claim unless it were substantially correct.

Our entire reputation and position in the motor car industry depend upon the accuracy of our public utterances.

Knowing this, it is not likely that we would voluntarily assume responsibility for a statement which could be refuted to our everlasting discredit.

If, though, you are still inclined to doubt, please remember that Paige has been one of the truly creative factors in the motor car industry.

From the very beginning our body designs have been absolutely unique and refreshingly distinctive.

If imitation is the most sincere form of flattery, we should indeed feel elated, because it is generally admitted that Paige designs have served as the models for practically every quality car in the industry.

Nothing could more strikingly emphasize the fact that Paige has always built beautiful cars — and can be logically expected to produce — "The Most Beautiful Car in America."

So far as the mechanical features of our product are concerned, you need only consult the thousands of owner records which have been established during the past seven years.

The Paige motor and chassis are world famous. They have been developed by the ripest engineering genius that the industry affords.

In them we have incorporated every improvement, every refinement, that could possibly increase the efficiency of a smooth running, ever dependable motor car.

As we have said time and time again, you can only expect to get out of an automobile precisely what the manufacturer puts into it.

There is no substitute for basic quality. To build the truly great things in this world one must work with his Heart quite as well as his Hands.

But for the present, we are going to say no more.

When you—and other Americans like you—stand before the latest and greatest Paige achievement, our case will be in the hands of the Jury.

So, please remember this advertisement at that time—every word of it—and determine for yourself whether or not our claims are justified.

In justice to your own interests, make it a special point to see "The Most Beautiful Car in America."

Velly Well!

THE "I" IS SILENT, AS IN ST. PETERSBURG.

"SO THAT'S the new Velly, is it?" asked the oldest inhabitant of Fillmore recently when he "espied" a new Velie five passenger being driven through that town recently.

"I wish a demonstration ride in the Vellay," said a lady in talking over the phone to one of the Lord Motor Car Company's Velie salesmen.

"And how many cylinders has the Veelieay" said another.

Velly, Vellay, Veelieay, Veelye—all mispronunciations of the simple word Velie, which should be pronounced just like it is spelled—V-e-l-i-e, with a long e in the first syllable, a silent i and a long e on the end—Veelee. Now try it.

"The Velie is an American made car," said P. A. Lord yesterday, "and is made by Americans, but from the various ways its name is mispronounced by prospective purchasers, it would seem that the distinctive lines of the car lead people to think it of foreign manufacture. It is true that before the 1917 model was designed, the Velie Motors Corporation sent a corps of designers to Europe to study the design of the best foreign makes, but the car is as distinctively American as it is possible to make it.

"The Velie differs decidedly from the ordinary car in appearance, but its beautiful lines are entirely original, they are not copied from any other body style, either American or foreign. Its full rounded radiator, crown fenders, smartly tilting windshield and flowing lines from radiator to tonneau were designed after all regard for the prevailing fads had been cast out and the best principles of the fine art of body designing had been called into use."

HERE'S HOW THEY DO THINGS WHERE THE CADILLACS "GROW"

MECHANICAL perfection, or a condition that is as near that as possible, is a requisite demanded of all mechanics in the Cadillac factory, is the statement of J. E. Brown, local manager for Don Lee, distributor in California for the Cadillac.

Experience has proven that the mental and the physical condition of the Cadillac mechanics is one of the prime assets of this immense Detroit plant. "Without this the Cadillac would not be what it is," said the Los Angeles manager.

The Cadillac factory rules prohibit any mechanic working two consecutive nights overtime, and no workman is allowed to work on Sunday unless conditions make this imperative.

A mechanic may make a mistake not to exceed .0006 inch, learn his error before he has completed his work, report to the foreman with the injured metal and get other to replace it, without being discharged. If the work with the wrong dimension is turned in by the workman, however, as perfect it is a case of the "blue envelope."

Corresponding dimensions in Cadillac cars vary by an amount less than the difference between their limits. To pass inspection the diameter of a Cadillac piston cannot be larger than 3.124 inches or smaller than 3.123 inches.

The human hair comparison and the visiting card have been used for a long time and have never failed to impress. One-thousandth part of an inch is one-tenth the thickness of a visiting card and less than one-half the thickness of a human hair.

How Is the Hupmobile On the Hills?

When you ask about Hupmobile hill climbing there's a thought in the back of your head, perhaps, about costlier cars.

You wonder if the Hupmobile will do as well.

We are quite serenely sure that it will—and that in many a case it will do better.

The Hupmobile is not a car with one or more virtues overly-developed at the expense of others.

It is not an abnormal hill climber or abnormally swift in acceleration, or abnormally flexible—or abnormal in anything.

If it gives a fine performance in one direction, it will give an equally fine performance in every other.

And in that sense of the word it is a wonder on hills.

If it were an abnormal car to the extent of having any one virtue outshine another, we should say that that one virtue is its pulling or lugging power on high gear.

That quality in the Hupmobile does stick out with decided prominence in a hill-climbing demonstration.

Gladly — eagerly if you like — will we give you overwhelming evidence on that score.

And if you wish the evidence to compete against the behavior of costlier cars—we will gladly accede to that, too.

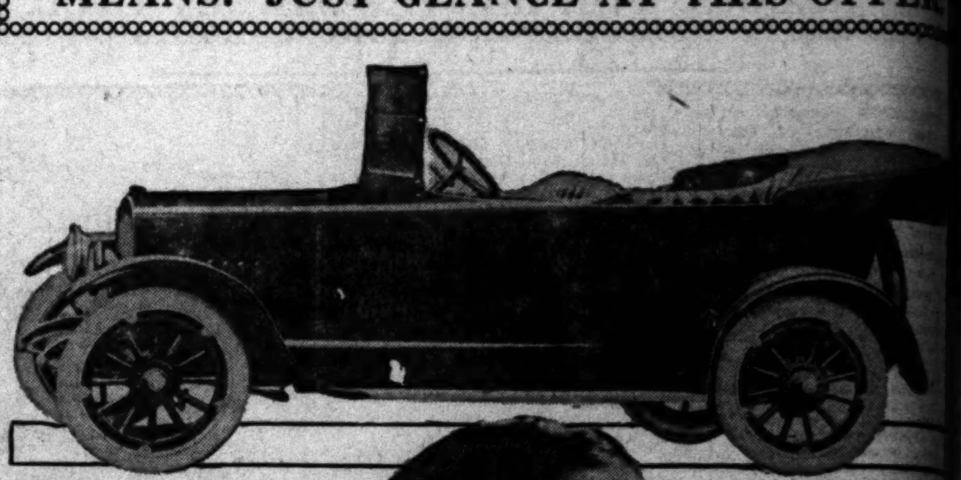
DO YOU KNOW WHAT REAL SERVICE MEANS? JUST GLANCE AT THIS OFFER



"SERVICE is the most abused word in the English language," says J. J. De Vaux, distributor for the Regal. "It is something which many preach but few practice. Although it sounds trite to say that the best advertising for any product is a satisfied customer, all manufacturers now realize the truth of it, and the Regal company in particular is endeavoring to go the limit, and to render the sort of service which so many advertise and so few give.

"Service with the Regal is not merely the making of prompt deliveries when a replacement is needed—it is built into the car in the shape of better material, simplicity of design, and sturdiness of construction—at the outset.

"Every Regal dealer, when he takes the agency, is expected to put in and maintain a complete stock of all commonly used parts, so that in case of breakage, due to accident or other causes, the damaged part can be replaced promptly without laying up the car for the length of time necessary to obtain the parts from the factory.

"If it becomes necessary to order a part from the factory, every effort is made to ship promptly. In fact, it is a rule that a part ordered must be shipped the day the order is received. In many instances more time and labor is spent by the factory in filling the order than the very low price received for the part. It is a practice of the Regal Motor Car Company to charge the minimum for parts. To that practice in part is due the regard which so many satisfied Regal owners have for the Regal company. They understand that neither the factory nor the agent loses interest in them as soon as the sale is made, and when they are in trouble we do not try to profit from their misfortune, but endeavor to assist them in every way possible.

TRUCK DEALER DISCUSSES VARIOUS KINDS OF "DRIVES

EVER since the invention of the automobile truck for commercial purposes, the problem of just what style of drive to use has always been an important one, said D. F. Poyer, local distributor of the Republic internal-gear drive.

In discussing this important problem Mr. Poyer made the following points in an interview yesterday:

"There are four methods of power transmission, now being used in commercial vehicles. These methods are chain, straight bevel live axel, worm and the internal-gear drive.

"After a long and painful experience with the bevel live axle it has been found to be impractical for heavy truck work. With the elimination of this method there are only three types of drives to consider or to choose from: Chain, worm and internal gear.

"One of these three methods, the chain drive, is the oldest known and has two important points in its favor. The first of these points is that all the load is carried on dead axles and second that the application of power by chains is a

LATEST CARBURETORS. MANY CHANGES IN

Carburetors have changed. The first carburetors were designed with the idea that it was necessary to have the air mixed with vaper only, and the necessary fuel was supposed to be converted into gas in the carburetor. Now, however, carburetors have been devised where the air is not only mixed with the fuel in the form of a vapor but also in the form of a fine mist or fog, which forms an explosive mixture just as well as the vapor does.

It follows, therefore, that under such circumstances a fuel can be used where part of it will vaporize readily, and the remaining part can be introduced in the form of a fog or mist, the total mixture giving satisfactory results in the cylinders. It is also clear that a mist or fog mixture of the fuel with air would contain a greater mass of useful fuel per volume than would be the case with an air mixture where the fuel is all in vapor form.

DEALERS SWAMPED.

The automobile dealers of Texas are simply overwhelmed with orders for cars. The buying element is largely made up of farmers who have profited enormously from the sale of their cotton crop at prices unprecedently high, except during the period of the Civil War. The money from the cotton crop is rapidly finding its way into all lines of business and the general prosperity of the people of the State is reflected in the increased demand for automobiles on the part of the residents of the cities and towns.

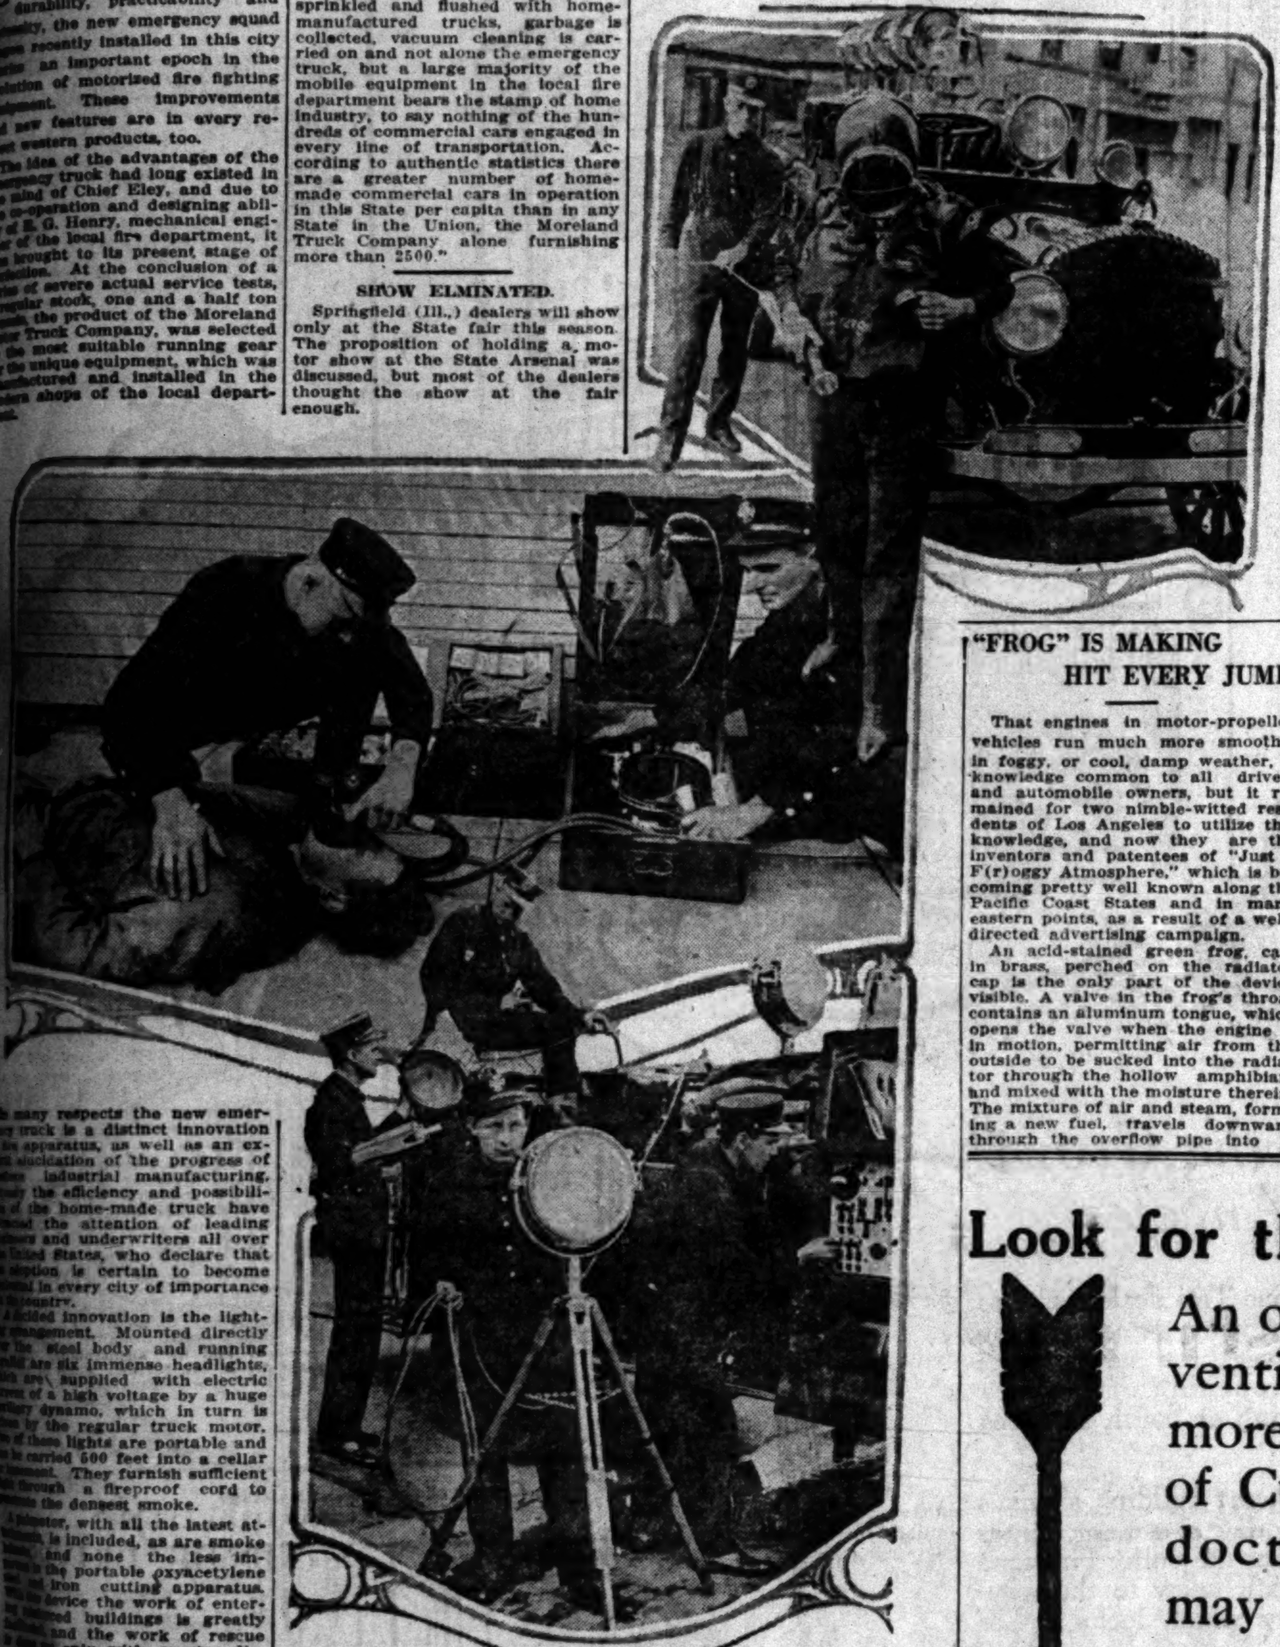
LOS ANGELES-MADE FIRE-FIGHTING APPARATUS IS TRULY MODERN.

COMBINING virtually all the vital elements of efficiency, durability, practicability and economy, the new emergency squad wagon recently installed in this city marks an important epoch in the evolution of motorized fire fighting equipment. These improvements and new features are in every respect western products, too.

The idea of the advantages of the emergency truck had long existed in the mind of Chief Eley, and due to the co-operation and designing ability of E. G. Henry, mechanical engineer of the local fire department, it was brought to its present stage of perfection. At the conclusion of a series of severe actual service tests, a regular stock, one and a half ton chassis, the product of the Moreland Motor Truck Company, was selected as the most suitable running gear for the unique equipment, which was manufactured and installed in the modern shops of the local department.



Ready to save life and property.

Here is the latest fire-fighting apparatus produced for the Los Angeles department. It includes powerful lights, which penetrate smoke and make it easy for the firemen to direct the stream of water directly on the blaze under all conditions, a pulmotor for emergency cases when firemen are overcome by smoke and gas, and smoke helmets which provide the fire fighters with air while working in smoke-filled rooms and basements. Chief Eley had a hand in designing this wonderful apparatus, and the truck itself is a Los Angeles-made product, a Moreland.

In many respects the new emergency truck is a distinct innovation in fire apparatus, as well as an excellent elucidation of the progress of western industrial manufacturing. Already the efficiency and possibilities of the home-made truck have aroused the attention of leading engineers and underwriters all over the United States, who declare that its adoption is certain to become universal in every city of importance in the country.

A decided innovation is the lighting arrangement. Mounted directly over the steel body and running boards are six immense headlights, which are supplied with electric current of a high voltage by a huge auxiliary dynamo, which in turn is driven by the regular truck motor. Two of these lights are portable and can be carried 500 feet into a cellar or basement. They furnish sufficient light through a fireproof cord to penetrate the densest smoke.

A pulmotor, with all the latest attachments, is included, as are smoke helmets, and none the less important is the portable oxyacetylene steel and iron cutting apparatus. With this device the work of entering [illegible] buildings is greatly facilitated, and the work of rescue is done not only with greater dispatch, but with a far greater degree of safety. In every detail the new machine is a first aid device of the most up-to-date type, and this theory is not overlooked even in the crew, a member of which on each shift is a trained nurse.

"One of the important features attendant upon the success of the new emergency truck is the establishment of the absolute fallacy of sending western capital beyond the borders of this State for motorized equipment of any nature. Western manufactured products have proven their quality and their scope is practically without limit," said Mr. Moreland.

"The streets of this city are sprinkled and flushed with home-manufactured trucks, garbage is collected, vacuum cleaning is carried on and not alone the emergency truck, but a large majority of the mobile equipment in the local fire department bears the stamp of home industry, to say nothing of the hundreds of commercial cars engaged in every line of transportation. According to authentic statistics there are a greater number of home-made commercial cars in operation in this State per capita than in any State in the Union, the Moreland Truck Company alone furnishing more than 2500."

SHOW ELMINATED.

Springfield (Ill.,) dealers will show only at the State fair this season. The proposition of holding a motor show at the State Arsenal was discussed, but most of the dealers thought the show at the fair enough.

EVER SEE A CAR WITH A BONNET?

THAT'S WHAT AUSTRALIANS CALL A "HOOD."

American-made Touring Car Starts Natives Talking when it Makes Long Nonstop Run—War Prevents European Machines from Reaching Australian Cities.

According to Melbourne (Australia) newspapers recently received in Los Angeles by the Bekins-[illegible] Motor Company, Grant distributors in Southern California, a Grant six touring car has been creating no end of fuss in the automobile circles of the island continent. Dailies of both Melbourne and Sydney have used columns in telling of the performance of a Grant six in a nonstop run of nine days and nine hours. Aside from making the run between the two cities, a distance of approximately 1300 miles, with the "bonnet sealed," as they say in Australia, the engine was kept running before large crowds at the ends of the highway.

The "five-seater," as they say over there, sells in Australia for about [illegible], which indicates that high ocean freight and a war tax have much to do in boosting the price abroad of American-made cars.

There has been a great dearth of European-made cars in Australia as well as elsewhere since the beginning of the war, and our consular reports show that American-manufactured automobiles are in consequence more in demand than ever.

GOOD PULL DOWN HILL.

The usual thing to do when driving down a mountain side is to hold back with motor and brake, but when E. P. McCurdy of Pittsburgh, came down Cove Mountain with the temperature at 6 degs. and a foot of snow on the ground he used his speed to pull his car down. [illegible] gallon of oil froze solid on the trip, which was between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

"FROG" IS MAKING HIT EVERY JUMP.

That engines in motor-propelled vehicles run much more smoothly in foggy, or cool, damp weather, is knowledge common to all drivers and automobile owners, but it remained for two nimble-witted residents of Los Angeles to utilize this knowledge, and now they are the inventors and patentees of "Just a F(r)oggy Atmosphere," which is becoming pretty well known along the Pacific Coast States and in many eastern points, as a result of a well-directed advertising campaign.

An acid-stained green frog, cast in brass, perched on the radiator cap is the only part of the device visible. A valve in the frog's throat contains an aluminum tongue, which opens the valve when the engine is in motion, permitting air from the outside to be sucked into the radiator through the hollow amphibian, and mixed with the moisture therein. The mixture of air and steam, forming a new fuel, travels downward through the overflow pipe into a brass cast ell or J, called a water separator. An aluminum trap here permits the overflow water to be discharged, while an amount of water sufficient to seal the curved part of the ell remains. The seal permits the moisture taken from the radiator to be drawn or sucked through a flexible tube into the constant air intake of the carburetor.

The inventors and makers, who have as their secretary and advertising manager former Chief of Police Clare Snively, claim for their device that it removes all carbon worries, increases power and mileage, and reduces operating expenses generally.

FEW GREEN TIRES REACH THE COAST.

"Automobile tires which give their best service must be properly aged," says F. H. Osler, of the Osler-Racine Rubber Company, and for this reason Southern California, or, for that matter, the whole of the Coast, has an advantage over the Central and Eastern States because there is very little chance of a local motorist getting a green tire.

A tire should be at least three or four weeks old before being put into service, but because of the enormous demand for tires, the factories have to ship them out just as fast as they can make them, without giving them a chance to age in their warehouses.

For instance, the Racine factory is turning out its "Country Road" tires on a twenty-four-hour-a-day working basis, and even at that are back in their orders, and as a result of this the motorists in the section close to the factories are apt to get tires that might not have been properly aged, but we here on the Coast, do not have this trouble to contend with because the length of time it takes to get the tires here takes care of this.

HERE'S A RIVAL OF THE PINK GARTER.

Have you tried the latest drink? From distant San Diego comes the new concoction, which is known under the name of a Saxon six cocktail.

Because of the popularity of this sturdy little car in the border town dispensers of throat-soothing liquids have introduced with pronounced success the new drink.

The Saxon six cocktail is composed of one-third gin, one-third cream, one-third curacao, but no gasoline or distillate.

That this new concoction will also prove popular in this city, when it is formally introduced next week, goes without saying, because of the fame already attained by the Saxon six motor car.

Credit for the discovery of the new drink is due the San Diego agent of the Saxon Motor Car Company. The J. V. Baldwin Company, local distributors of the Saxon six, will try out the new throat tickler, after which it will be presented for the approval of Angelenos.

Woods Dual-Power

The Dual-Power is both a gasoline car and an electric car. The owner can use either power singly or both together, according to driving needs.

It is a car without gears, shifting levers or clutch pedal, a powerful car controlled with a single foot pedal.

As an electric the Dual-Power charges its own batteries. No more expense and inconvenience of the charging station.

It is as smart as the smartest gas coupe, and as fast—the ideal town car. In the country it climbs the steepest hills and travels the roughest roads. Reserve power is unlimited.

Thus the Dual-Power is an all-round car and an all-year car, the most efficient of all cars for every class of driving.

Crowned with a beautiful four-passenger body—a Woods body—that is a triumph of the coach builder's art.

No description can do justice to this wonderful car, you must have a demonstration. Any test that you wish to make proves it the ultimate car—the car of efficiency, simplicity, economy and luxury.

Dear Sir:-

Our Vim trucks have delivered over 600,000 pounds of Merriam's candy in the past ten months. They have covered over 18,000 miles in doing it - one of them has never been in the shop, and the other only once to have the valves ground.

Pure goods and reasonable prices have been the big elements in popularizing Merriam's candy, while quality and material, sturdy construction and economy of operation have been the big factors in the popularity of Vim trucks with us.

We use distillate and gasoline, half and half, and get 17 miles to the gallon. We get 400 miles to the gallon of oil, and our tire mileage has been phenomenal.

When we are in the market for additional delivery cars they will certainly be Vims

A Tribute to the Growth of Los Angeles

Hundreds of Firestone Tire dealers of Los Angeles and the tributary region and the executives from the Akron factory were present at the formal opening of the new Firestone Branch Building at South Figueroa and Twelfth Streets.

The dedication of this great building signifies even more than the opening of a finer, larger branch home; it means that the entire Firestone organization dedicates itself anew to the service of the broad territory which looks to Los Angeles for its supply.

This building, the best equipped tire service branch on the West Coast, is behind your dealer. He is one with it and the entire Firestone organization in giving you service.

There have been times in the past when the demand for Firestone Tires has almost overtaxed the capacity of the Firestone Branch. For Most Miles per Dollar will always be a tire quality slogan that will swing a tremendous demand.

But today the vast extent of the storage space in the new Branch Building assures prompt delivery of Firestone Tires to your dealer, to you. In addition, a service can be rendered by the branch, through your dealer, that practically places a tire factory at your disposal.

Avail yourself of these advantages by buying Firestone Tires.

election ever securing is not more marked gratification which Stovall landing McLarry. George and Poly's work every since of the bushes, and for has pined for his serv- years that he was with offered every induce- reason for McLarry to under his banner—offered than he received from the Cubs. That's how much he esteems him. Poly still avers that he will take Stovall's job away from him at first base, so it would seem that competition is destined to follow George to the end of his career.

Sat Upon.

McLarry has turned insurance agent, and is planning a trip to Imperial Valley, where he has friends whom he thinks should be fortified with ironclad policies. Because of this, he yesterday informed Stovall that he wouldn't be back in time to start spring training with the rest of the bunch. Whereupon Stovall informed him that he would be back. That settled the argument.

.300 Feeling.

Pete Daley is out to display the stuff that he formerly showed Coast League fans when he was with the Angels. In those days Pete failed to hit .300 or better. Last season was an off-year with him such as every ball player experiences some time or other during his career. His fielding was up to par, but he was a trifle lacking with the stick. Pete says he feels that peculiar tingling sensation which always precedes a good season with the bat. He opines that it is about a .300 tingle.

P. L. Likes Chink.

Frank Chance wouldn't object to having Chink Mattick on his ball team. The P. L. esteems Chink for the wrongs which he committed against him in 1912. That year the White Sox beat the tar out of the Cubs in the city series, and the hitting and fielding of Mattick was the main factor in the defeat. Chance, unlike some managers, does not engender a dislike for a player who wallops him. Rather, it makes him like the athlete so much that he tries to get him on his own ball club.

• •

An Advantage.

By virtue of being the only playing manager in the league, Stovall believes that he will enjoy a distinct advantage over his hated rivals. He figures that this will enable him to carry nineteen players, including himself, or one more than any other team. An effort may be made to block this arrangement at the meeting of the league in San Francisco next week, but he expects to make a fight to carry the point. He opines that he is entitled to eighteen athletes in addition to himself, and that it is up to the other managers, if they object, to get in and play ball themselves.

WOOD WHEELS MAY SOON DISAPPEAR.

It is hard to tell what may be the outcome of the steel wheel made from pressings or stampings. This is a type that has reached an enormous popularity in Europe, where the wood wheel has been almost discarded, but this was due to lack of good wood.

The best sort of wheel wood is said to be getting scare in America, while the newer pressed steel wheels are some of them as light or lighter than wood, and as cheap to make. It is not improbable that the disk wheel will soon cease to look strange and that we shall see cars coming upon the market with many different kinds of wheels.

INDUSTRY FACES MANY PROBLEMS.

Never before, not even in the formative year of 1915, have there been so many new ideas for improvement of motor cars under consideration and discussion, remarks The Automobile.

There is the vital problem of handling fuel that is practically kerosene; there is the desire to reduce weight and cost of operation; there is the probability of electric and other forms of flexible transmission. As lesser matters, none the less important, we have the balancing of engines, the carbonization trouble and a general dissatisfaction with many details such as brakes controls. It has already been said that these last named are better this year, so is balancing, so is carburetion and so is lubrication, but the car of 1918 and that of the year following is going to be better still and perhaps very much better.

Fuel is the biggest problem the industry has ever had to face, and it is a really serious one. That is to say, it is not a matter of waiting for some solution to offer itself. It is up to the automobile industry either to use the fuel they can get or, conversely, to get the fuel they can use.

On the one hand engineers are doing their best with engines and carbureters to make them able to assimilate heavy oils successfully.

BIG CORPORATION IN CLEVELAND, O.

Plans are under way for the formation of a $2,000,000 corporation which will attempt to bring to Cleveland, O., one or more makers of every part and appliance of the automobile. Under present conditions, Cleveland motor car makers suffer from railroad embargoes, delayed freight shipments, damages in transit, etc.

The $2,000,000 corporation planned will purchase the business of out-of-town concerns or purchase an interest in them. At this time Cleveland car makers are purchasing more than $6,000,000 worth of bodies out of town and depend on Detroit for most of their engines.

AVERAGE PRICE OF CARS IS GOING UP.

The average list price of the 1917 open body automobile is $1687, $87 more than it was a year ago, $318 less than two years ago, $948 less than it was three years ago, when the zenith price of $2635 was reached. The enormous fall in average price in 1915 has been followed by a small rise, due partly to the abnormally high price of materials, but due also to some extent to the demand for rather better made and better finished cars. It seems that manufacturers having gone to the lowest possible prices are finding that the public is willing to pay a little more for a little higher class job.

ORANGE COUNTY GOLF MATCHES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEWPORT BEACH, Feb. 3.—Owing to the fine weather the links of the Orange County Country Club have been well patronized during the past week, and several matches were played in the various tourneys under way at the local club.

In the Strock cup play M. Sproull beat C. D. Holmes, 2-1; H. M. McCullough beat V. V. Tubbs, 4-3; E. L. Roberts, Jr., beat Dr. M. A. Patton, 4-2; A. W. Rutan beat E. McWilliams, 2 up. In the second round N. Hoyle beat R. Babson, 4-3; M. Sproull beat Mark Lacy, 2 up, and H. M. McCullough beat E. L. Roberts, Jr., 2 up.

In the Tubbs cup play M. Sproull won from C. V. Davis by default; Mark Lacy won from Dr. Flood by default; W. H. Spurgeon beat H. Smith, 2-1; C. D. Holmes beat E. McWilliams, 3-2. In the second round N. Hoyle beat Mark Lacy, 4-3.

In the President's cup play but one match was played, in which C. G. Twist beat R. E. Reid, 8-6. This match puts Mr. Twist into the semi-finals. S. L. Collins, twice winner of the President's cup, has already qualified in the semi-finals, and there is little doubt that Mr. Twist is the most likely contender as the runner-up to endeavor to keep Mr. Collins from obtaining permanent possession of the trophy.

At the Annandale invitation tournament of February 7-8-9, those who will compete against the Los Angeles club from Orange county are: S. L. Collins, C. G. Twist, A. C. Twist, F. B. Browning, R. E. Reid, E. B. Stanley, G. B. Stratton, H. Robinson, P. S. Wold, V. V. Tubbs, Elmer Prince, J. W. Tubbs and J. F. Parsons.

ART SMITH DIVORCED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—Art Smith, youthful star of the Panama-Pacific exposition air pilots here in 1915, was granted a decree today, Mrs. Aimee Cour Smith failing to contest her husband's suit, which charged cruelty.

They were married five years ago in Michigan.

Along the Lincoln highway alone of the principal transcontinental paths, new hotels ready for 1917 motorists cost $5,406,000, an indication of the greater ease that each year brings the long-distance tourist. These hotels are in nine different towns, and more than 100 hotels are being remodeled, enlarged and improved.

A New Kind of Service Here in Los Angeles

WHETHER you measure Tire Service in Dollars Saved, or in Comfort and Convenience, you will find that the Goodyear Service Station Dealers here in Los Angeles give you most.

First, they offer you Goodyear No-Hook Tires.

These Tires are made Strong, Safe and Sturdy, by unique advantages: Blow-outs are lessened by the high Goodyear fabric standard and the Goodyear On-Air Cure; Rim-Cutting is overcome by our No-Rim-Cut feature; No-Hook Tires are easy to remove and apply, because they do not rust fast in the rim; Punctures and Skidding are reduced by the Double-Thick All-Weather Tread; Loose Treads are obviated by our Wrapped-Tread Process; Blowing Off the Rim is prevented by the Goodyear Braided Piano Wire Base.

And these dealers give you, also, a new kind of Tire Service—for Goodyear Service Station Dealers believe in preventing tire troubles—not in merely repairing them after they have come.

They watch your tread cuts, test inflation, keep your wheels in alignment. Repairs are always costly. Even Free Road Service is charged in somewhere, if you only stop to think—perhaps in higher prices, or in extra labor.

So Goodyear Service Stations make sure that accidents cannot often happen. And they get their reward in the new customers they make.

The next time you buy a tire go to a Goodyear Dealer. The Goodyear Branch will gladly direct you to the nearest Service Station.

Trouble Ahead.

early to make definite changes in our plans, in case of war, there is sure to be a falling off of patronage, so the present rules governing the number of players and training plans would have to be changed. It is not improbable that the ranks of the players will be depleted if there is a call for volunteers."

MONTHS OF GRACE.

There is still two months' grace for the magnates as the season does not open until April 11, but they are all more or less in the air over the training trips. Both the White Sox and the Cubs have made final arrangements for their southern and western jaunts but these could be called off any time and it is not believed that under the circumstances the club owners would be held for damages on account of broken contracts.

There is one argument in continuing sports regardless of conditions. It has been pointed out that sports will furnish the right kind of safety valve for the American people, something which has been proven in time of stress in the past. Baseball was born during the stirring days of the Civil War and it did not suffer any great relapse during the exciting months of the Spanish-American War. It is true that the attendance was not quite up to the standard in the early days of the war, but none of the magnates went broke in 1898.

Several owners complained more about the trouble with Mexico than the Spanish-American War. It was claimed that the excitement engendered by the border trouble vitally affected the turnstile count. Even this was before the Federal League fracas started. Still that idea of the safety valve for the national strain may furnish the silver lining to the present war cloud, but compulsory enlistment would be a knockout to every out-door pastime in the country.

HITS COLLEGE SPORTS.

Outside of baseball all competitive sports will be hit, college athletics among the rest. With the adoption of a universal service probably every college team in the country would be disbanded. Efforts have been made in England to continue certain lines of sport, but with only fair success, prejudices against them having been a more important factor than anything else. There has been a certain amount of racing and boxing, but practically no athletics or cricket. Practically all the more prominent athletes are serving the colors. There has been no effort to continue sports in Germany or France, although both Germany and Austria have encouraged the continuance of horse racing.

In this country, already denuded of its best cavalry mounts, the War Department would have to turn to the thoroughbred breeding industry for remounts. This would put a stop almost automatically to horse racing on any extended scale except with the cheaper classes of horses commonly denominated as "dogs" on the country's race courses.

It's Out.

COAST RECORD BOOK COMPLETE.

COVERS ALL EVENTS HELD OF IMPORTANCE.

Bill Unmack Greatly Augments His Publication, Adding the Results of Intercollegiate Football Games, Sharpshooting, Yacht Races and Swimming.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—William Unmack, chairman of the records committee of the Pacific Coast Amateur Athletic Union branches, has issued his annual sports record book for the Pacific Coast.

Every branch of athletic activity is covered and the records are brought up to January, 1917. The issue is profusely illustrated with photographs of the Pacific Coast champions in the different lines of sport.

Among the new features is a complete record of the results of all intercollegiate football games played by Pacific Coast State institutions; all Coast sharpshooting records, both amateur and professional, and a complete summary of past ocean yacht races from this coast to Honolulu.

Pacific Northwestern, as well as all California track, field and swimming records, also have been added. This includes the Hawaiian Islands. All the features contained in last year's issue have been retained and greatly augmented, including many additional Pacific Coast League baseball individual and team records.

With the increasing competition on the Pacific Coast among the women and girl swimmers, Unmack's annual pays particular attention to the records made in the various events by members of the fair sex. This is a feature and is one of the most comprehensive references published.

HERE'S A NEW ONE.

Gov. Edge of New Jersey is planning an easy and practical way to raise funds for permanent road improvement. He wants to impose a State road tax of 10 cents on each $1000 valuation for five years, which would bring into the State a total of $15,000,000 for good roads. It is expected that this or a similar plan will result in making Jersey roads the finest in the country.

fying cup. He and Gartz tied for it and in the playoff, Bacon won, 1 up. While Craney Gartz undoubtedly won his laurels by sheer skill, there were many who felt Bacon was the logical champion of the club. He plays a good sound game, but the trouble seems to be his invariable good nature. As the men say of him, he cannot play golf with the cold, deadly pushfulness, the determined maintenance of any advantage which is a characteristic of so many star players. When Bacon is 2 up, he promptly feels sympathetic and generous. He hates to lick an opponent by too large a margin.

In the other flights it was a tragic story of defaulted matches. Dating the play for Friday and Saturday, instead of Saturday and Sunday, was too exacting for the average San Gabriel member, who usually has some more pressing calls on his time on week days. Wherefore the fourth flight defeated eight cup goes to Dr. Griffith without playing a match beyond the one in the first round of the flight when he was defeated by T. E. Schramm, 4 and 3. To win a cup by getting licked is something of an achievement. Rumor has it that Dr. Griffith means to donate the cup for a woman's tournament.

The same conditions enabled Edmund Parker to win the third flight defeated eight—his first golf trophy, I believe. Although he did play two matches, defeating Niven, 1 up, and Marple, 4 and 3 in the semi-finals, winning the finals by default. He may conscientiously retain his cup, however.

Both G. B. Kirker, who won the second flight, and G. A. Moore, who won the third flight, earned their trophies, too. Although both won two rounds of matches by default, they had a hard fight for their other two rounds. Moore defeated G. T. Yerby in the semi-finals 2 up, and Dr. Wright in the finals 2 and 1. Kirker defeated M. C. Adler in the semi-finals 5 and 4, and J. B. Salyer in the finals 1 up in 19.

The fourth flight went to T. E. Shramm, who licked Dr. Griffith in the first round 4 and 3, and O. J. Barrett in the second round 5 and 4, won the semi-finals by default of all parties in the previous match, and defeated F. R. Richardson in the finals 7 and 5.

Bacon had one good victory in his defeat of Elmer Ralphs in the second round 3 up and 1. He then accounted for D. A. Jacobs in the semi-finals of the first flight 4 and 2, only to succumb to Craney Gartz in the finals. Gartz, too, earned his laurels. He beat W. R. Wharton 2 up in the first round, Dr. G. Porter 1 up in the second round, and Victor Kleinberger 1 up in the semi-finals.

The first defeated eight trophy went to George Cline, who won from Laubersheimer 6 and 5, and from Capt. Wharton 2 up.

The winner of the second defeated eight was an earnest striver of indefatigable industry, J. Boyd. He defeated G. D. Noble in a 21-hole match, and then F. Champion in another 21-hole match.

The women players at the Midwick Club have gone in for suffragette economic independence. They have organized two teams for a series of keen matches, beginning on Tuesday—and will supply their own cups. Among those taking part are Mrs. Dudley Fulton, Mrs. Guy Cochrane, Miss Mildred Landreth, Miss Elizabeth Sherk, Miss Phila Miller, Mrs. C. A. Perley, Mrs. J. V. Eliot, Mrs. Guthrie and Mrs. Stuart O'Melveny. There will be six a side and the rest of the players will be culled from the golf debutantes.

There is also to be a women's event at the San Gabriel Club soon, but details are not yet forthcoming.

JAPANESE STAR IN TENNIS MEET.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Ichiya Kumagae, the Japanese tennis champion, is expected to compete in the 1917 American championship tournament, according to word received by the National Lawn Tennis Association. Kumagae proved the sensation of the season in this country last summer and was favored by some as the winner of the national singles title until put out of the tournament at Forest Hills, by George M. Church, now playing in the Orient.

The Japanese racquet expert, who is employed in a Tokio bank, hopes to get a leave of absence next summer as he did a year ago when his playing in this country earned him the honor of being ranked No. 5 in the list of American stars.

before the season starts, not only in our practice stunts, but when we meet the Cubs," said Stovall. "But I have certain plays in which I want to drill them, and this can only be done in secret. If there is a bunch of fans present, a representative or partisan of some other club could easily be among them, and probably would be. Only by barring everybody from the park on certain days can I drill my men with any privacy in certain maneuvers which I have heretofore used with success."

President Darmody passed a pleasant forenoon talking over the pioneer days of baseball with O'Neill. Later they were joined by Tom Nawn, veteran vaudeville performer. He and O'Neill, who accompanied the White Sox in their globe-circling trip, recounted some very interesting reminiscences of their experiences and travels.

Today O'Neill will pay another visit to Pasadena in the expectation of meeting William Wrigley. They plan to discuss the situation and chew gum together for a couple of hours.

Neither O'Neill nor Darmody believes that the present tangle with the central empires will have any effect on baseball. They figure that, it being strictly an American institution, it will not be influenced by foreign unpleasantries.

"In a way I think that war would be a good thing for the game," declared O'Neill, "because in the event of hostilities I am going to suggest that Dave Fultz be placed at the head of a regiment composed entirely of ball players who are strikers, and that said regiment be stationed in the first-line trenches. This would be a great thing for baseball."

ONeill, who has an unbounded sense of humor, last night wired Fultz, recommending this plan.

Tip says there is nothing in the situation to warrant calling off the trip of the Cubs.

ATHLETIC CLUB WINS FROM SCHOOLMASTERS

The L.A.A.C. defeated the Schoolmasters at baseball yesterday afternoon at Exposition Park, by the score of 7 to 2. According to Al Norton it was timely hitting, rather than a heavy onslaught that resulted in the victory for the athletes. The pedagogues looked like real ball players, once they took off their spectacles. The score:

L.A.A.C.	7	7	6
Schoolmasters	2	6	3

Batteries—McKay and Dascomb; Wardell and Frilot.

ALUMNI DROP A GAME TO SAINTS.

St. Vincent's well-known baseball aggregation managed to gather two runs from Ed Knox's Alumni team in a hotly contested game yesterday. The Saints played an excellent grade of the national sport and went the complete round without an error.

Shaffer was the heavy hitting sensation of the game and Elder succeeded in nearly equalling his record.

This makes four victories out of five games played by the Saints. The L.A.A.C. outfit managed to take one battle.

The score:

EASTERN TENNIS TEAM TO BE REPRESENTATIVE.

GEORGE M. CHURCH of Tenafly, N. J., Harold A. Throckmorton of Elizabeth, N. J., Theodore R. Pell and Bernon S. Prentice of New York and Conrad B. Doyle of Washington, D. C. will represent the East in the next team match with the West. It will be played March 9 and 10, in this city. Julian S. Myrick, president of the West Side Tennis Club of New York, who had charge of the arrangements for the East, made this announcement after receiving a telegram from Dr. Sumner Hardy, president of the Pacific States Lawn Tennis Association, confirming the details.

These inter-sectional contests have come to be one of the features of the tennis season and consequently there has been a great deal of interest among the fans, while the preliminaries were under discussion. The announcement of the eastern team's personnel will be received with satisfaction for the players are of such ability that they are certain to give an excellent account of themselves.

Church and Throckmorton are playing in the Orient and are scheduled to compete in the Mid-Pacific Carnival tournament at Honolulu beginning February 9. William M. Johnston and John Strachan, the California stars, also are entered for this event. The players are expected to catch steamers leaving Honolulu February 21 and 22, so that they will reach California in ample time for the inter-sectional match.

Doyle and Pell will leave the East the last week in February, and go right through to the Coast. This will give them a few days to become acclimated and to prepare for the big matches. Prentice is leaving for California next week, so he will have ample opportunity to round into form.

The high class of the eastern team is apparent in the ranking they received for their play last season. Church was placed No. 3 by the Ranking Committee, while Doyle, Throckmorton and Pell were all in Class 1. The playing ability of the men in this class is so nearly equal to some of those who make the first ten that it is extremely difficult to differentiate between them. Prentice is a tournament player of long experience and for more than a dozen years has held the championship of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club.

Mr. Myrick said that nothing had been announced as to the make-up of the California team. Johnston and Strachan are almost certain to have places on it, however, while "Peck" Griffin and McLoughlin may be expected to compete. In addition there are Bundy, Dawson, Roland Roberts, Warren, Hahn, Johns—all of whom have been East—besides other players of more than ordinary ability from whom the Californians can choose a team.

It is certain that they will make every effort to get together a strong combination, because of the outcome of the last East-West match. This was played at Forest Hills August 4 and 5 and resulted in an overwhelming victory for the East, six matches to one. The only match lost by the East was when Johnston and Griffin, national doubles champions, defeated Behr and Alexander. In the others, W. M. Washburn defeated R. L. Murray, Karl H. Behr defeated Willis E. Davis, G. M. Church defeated C. J. Griffin, R. N. Williams defeated W. M. Johnston, N. W. Niles defeated Roland Roberts and Williams-Church defeated Davis-Murray. The overwhelming victory of the eastern players was a distinct surprise and the Californians may be depended upon to even matters if possible, in this meeting. Four matches of singles and two of doubles will be played.

Dr. Hardy's latest telegram said that women's events also would be arranged, and that Mary Browne and the Sutton sisters are expected to play. Miss Molla Bjurstedt, national women's champion, has been invited to make the trip to compete against them.

The first East-West match was played in 1899 when M. D. Whitman, Beals C. Wright, Dwight F. Davis, Holcombe Ward and George Wright comprised the eastern team. The West was represented by Sumner Hardy, Samuel Hardy, Robert Whitney and George Whitney.

BOWLING NOTES.

Barney Oldfield and his co-pin smashers carried defeat to the San Bernardino Elks by taking four of the five games played in the first half of the Los Angeles Elks versus the San Bernardino Elks bowling match. Alfred Mackenzie had high average and Barnes and Perkins tied for high game, 243. Shanholtzer substituted for Barnes in the last two games.

The San Bernardino Elks entertained the visiting brothers royally. C. H. Belt, assistant superintendent of the Pacific Electric, was chairman of the Reception Committee, and Capt. Oldfield and his team mates are loud in their praise of the hospitality extended to them, and say that the Elks' quarters in San Bernardino are the most complete of any on the Pacific Coast.

In the rear of their clubrooms they have just completed and equipped with all modern gym apparatus, one of the finest, if not the best, gymnasiums on the Coast, and every form of the popular indoor sports, from handball courts to bowling alleys, is provided.

The Los Angeles half of the match is to be played at the Majestic alleys Wednesday, February 7. The scores:

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—Palmer, a colored boxer, took the measure of Battling Ortega yesterday and won a speedy bout on a decision. Eddie Palmer landed one blow that nearly put Ortega out of the fight. The negro had the best of the affair all the way through and was undoubtedly the best fighter. Ortega is somewhat of a fallen hero.

WRESTLERS END THEIR TRAINING

Lewis Wrestles with Some Wealthy Friends.

Martensen Takes a Walk Out into the Country.

A Little Dope on Just Who the Dane Is.

BY HOWARD ANGUS.

Strangler Ed Lewis and Paul Martensen announced yesterday that they had taken their last shower bath until after their wrestling match at Shrine Auditorium Monday night.

Neither man went on the mat yesterday. Lewis tumbled around on the mat awhile with some of the wealthy members of the L.A.A.C. and called it a day's work. Martensen took a walk out Glendale way to take another look at the farm that has taken his eye. Each worked just enough to keep the blood tingling in his veins.

The Strangler is favorably known here and needs no introduction to the fans. They know all about his three matches in this city—one with Nick Daviscourt and the other two with Gus Kervaras. They have read how he threw Santell in San Francisco and wrestled five hours to a draw with Stecher.

Lewis is a powerful 230-pound superman with the strength of a wounded bull. His favorite method of winning matches is wearing out opponents with that huge body of his and then clamping the headlock on them.

On the mat Lewis is the bull man. But off it he is the giant society butterfly. In the evenings he parades in a cutaway with a cane on his arm and a derby cocked over one eye. In the afternoon he goes automobile riding with movie queens, and there is a story that he is to marry a wealthy New York society girl.

But who is Paul Martensen, his opponent?

Paul Martensen is a 215-pound Dane who hails from Chicago, goes to bed at 8 o'clock and gets up at 5 o'clock a.m. His favorite fodder is oatmeal and milk. When Martensen wants to be real devilish and cut loose, he hires a bicycle and takes a ride out into the country. His sincerest conviction is that he can throw Lewis without ruffling his hair.

For three years he has been wrestling with more or less success. He has only been thrown by two men—Cutler and Stecher. Cutler defeated him a year and a half ago, while Stecher won about four months ago.

The match with Stecher, however, is said to have been one of the most spectacular ever held in Chicago.

At times, say Chicago advices, Martensen is apt to be rough and slam his opponent around in Gotch and Kervaras fashion.

Among the men whom Martensen has thrown are Strangler Lewis, John Freberg, Leo Pardello, Bill Demetral and Doc Roller.

The match with Lewis came early in the latter's career and the Strangler was not nearly as wise nor as heavy as he is now. Martensen was exceedingly rough, mussing the Strangler up a bit as well as throwing him. No inferences should be drawn from that contest, however, as to the outcome of this. Lewis is a different man.

Hey! don't drop that!

Paul Martensen preparing to heave a training partner on his ear. The big foreigner is in great shape for his bout with Strangler Lewis, which takes place at Shrine Auditorium tomorrow night.

Uhlan, the world's champion trotter, owned by C. K. G. Billings, multi-millionaire of New York, is enjoying immensely the golden sunshine of Southern California. The famous trotter is now with the Billings family at Santa Barbara, where the Billings household is spending the winter.

VERY VALUABLE.

Uhlan is the most valuable horse in the world. Mr. Billings has refused $150,000 for the graceful creature. He would refuse $300,000 just as readily. The horse is insured for $50,000, and night and day has two trained hostlers in constant attendance. There's never a moment when the horse is not under Mr. Billings's personal eye, but that two hostlers are within arm's reach. There's a day shift, and a shift of guards that continues through the night, ever watchful over the animal.

Every morning, after Uhlan is walked a brief time by his attendants, Billings mounts him for a ride along the beach in front of the William Miller Graham place, which Billings has leased for the winter. Sometimes their morning's outing will extend along the picturesque drive of Montecito.

STRONG FOR IT.

Billings is devoted to his graceful mount. Uhlan recognizes and appreciates his master's affection. Just before Billings leaped into the saddle Uhlan stepped eagerly to meet his master, and an intelligent whinney was quickly followed by the horse poking its nose down to its owner's jacket pocket, where a rich store of cube sugar was found. "Uhlan always knows where to find his morning's sweetness," said Billings, as he stroked the arched neck of his wonderful horse affectionately.

WORLD CHAMP.

Uhlan is coal black, slender, every inch of him suggesting the patrician. Uhlan holds the world's trotting record of 1:58, made in 1912 on the track in Lexington, Ky. He also holds all records for trotting. He made the half-mile track in 2:02 3-4, the mile wagon record in 2:00 flat, the mile to the pole in 2:03 1-4, covered a mile with a running mate in 1:54 1-2, took a quarter of a mile in 0:27 and holds the race record for a gelding of 2:03 1-4, and the record for a four-year-old gelding, 2:07 1-2. His record in the saddle for an eighth of a mile, carrying 191 pounds, is 13 seconds.

California B., just bought by Mr. Billings, is a stable mate of Uhlan's, as are a number of other notable racing horses. Mr. Billings announced that Uhlan will not compete on the track again, nor will other famous horses the multi-millionaire has bought. Uhlan is now Mr. Billings's favorite saddle horse.

BOXING GAME IS STILL ALIVE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Boxing fans were delighted and surprised to learn that the game would not be greatly affected in New York even if the proposed repeal of the boxing law takes place. Bouts will b allowed, according to Gov. Whitman, but they will be restricted by the police if too many clubs are opened in any one section.

This action on the part of the head of the State practically is an assurance that the game will be allowed to continue.

CHANDLER SIX $1395

This Great Car Leads All Sixes Because of Its Marvelous Motor

THOUSANDS of men and women who would pay hundreds of dollars more for an automobile, if paying more would get them more, choose the Chandler. They are not seekers after a low price. They desire the best six-cylinder motor regardless of price. They desire a Six because time has shown that a six-cylinder motor, correctly designed, gives all the power and all the flexibility of power that any motor can give; that such a motor has the life and snap and "go" they desire; that such a motor is genuinely economical in cost of operation.

So these devotees of the Six choose the Chandler, because through four years of intelligent, conscientious, manufacturing effort, and without radical or experimental changes of design, the Chandler motor has been developed to a point approximating perfection.

Chandler Low Price Is Important, Too

While with so many the question of price is of secondary consideration, still Chandler leads in price today quite as distinctly as it has always led.

In the face of advanced cost of all materials and labor, the Chandler price is but $100 higher than two years ago. And the car is finer than then. Not a feature has been cut out of it. Much has been added.

AND OTHER CARS IN THE CHANDLER FIELD HAVE ADVANCED AS MUCH AS THREE HUNDRED DOLLARS THE PAST YEAR, EITHER BECAUSE OF NECESSITY OR OPPORTUNITY.

The Chandler Company has not been willing to take advantage of a situation which would have permitted price inflation.

And this year we shall probably build and sell more cars than any other manufacturer building a car of even similar quality.

Wide Choice of Beautiful Bodies

You who demand such a motor as the Chandler demand grace of body design, also, and richness of finish. Chandler offers you five beautiful types of body, each mounted on the one standard Chandler chassis.

Carbon Easily Removed

Many motor faults are caused by deposits of carbon in the cylinders. Usually the carbon is allowed to collect until it is necessary to take the engine down, scrape the cylinder heads and grind the valves. This is expensive and often inconvenient.

All that is needed to remove the carbon is an efficient solvent, and in presenting the J. M. Pease Lubricant Carbon Remover we are offering a thoroughly guaranteed product that will positively do the work. You don't have to lay up your car. It works while you sleep. Price $1.00 with money back guarantee. General Supply Co., 205 Hollingsworth Bldg.
